WATTLE DAY, 1915.

"To recognise and concentrate the patriotism which lies in every Australian heart, and to materialise it in the golden plume of Australia's loveliest and most representative flower. This is the work which the Wattle Day League seeks to do."—Agnes L. Kettlewell.

And under no former circumstances has the league found such an inspiring occasion as to-day for the fulfilment of its mission. Not only will wattle be worn by loyal citizens, but the Wattle Day League and its helpers have seen to it that the hearts of our returned wounded soldiers shall be quickened by the sight of the fresh bloom. For those who would like to send a reminder of Wattle Day to relatives at the front (and obviously real wattle would not keep if despatched on this mission), we can supply

ARTIFICIAL WATTLE POSIES,
in small size for Buttonhole, with red, white, and blue ribbon attached. PRICE, 9½d each. We also have ARTIFICIAL WATTLE SPRAYS, PRICE 6½d each. Both may be purchased in the LADIES' NECKWEAR DEPARTMENT, CENTRAL PITT-STREET SHOP, and are shown together with other goods in our SPECIAL WATTLE DAY WINDOW, PITT-STREET.

WATTLE LOCKSTITCH NET FOR WINDOW CURTAINS.

The flower which has been universally accepted as the emblem of Australia's nationality forms a most attractive design on Lockstitch Net, the ideal material for Casement Windows, Drawn Blinds, Bed Hangings, etc.

Just now, when one is naturally thinking of freshening up the home for Spring, the wide range of designs we have in Lockstitch Net is proving very attractive, particularly as there are so many Native Flowers featured, and taking chief place among them is the Black Wattle, 60 inches wide. PRICE, 2/6 YARD.

Other beautiful reproductions of Australian Native Flora. The designs are on Ivory shade Net, and include Waratah, Flannel Flower, 36 inches wide. PRICE, 1/9 Yard.

Native Rose, Native Fuchsia, Red Gum, 60 inches wide. PRICE, 2/3 Yard.

Christmas Bells, 60 inches wide. PRICE, 2/6 Yard.

MANCHESTER DEPARTMENT, FIRST FLOOR.

PEAPES' SHIRTS TO ORDER.
NEW ZEPHYRS AND OXFORDS.

Now that Summer is entering we mention particularly Zephyrs and Oxfords, these cool light materials being plentiful among the exclusive designs recently imported.

Have your Shirts made to order for the Summer. They will be more comfortable, more distinctive, yes, and MORE SERVICEABLE.

There can be no doubt about that, because we import for this department materials which are far and away above the ordinary in quality and much better as to design and colouring.

We have already pointed out that future shipments are uncertain—and dyes unreliable. Now that we have the good fast-dyed materials here, men who order early will gain considerable advantage in the quality and in the price.

SHIRTS MADE TO ORDER,
From the New Zephyrs and Oxfords,

May we send you patterns and the simple self-measurement form? You will be pleased with the designs.

A SOLDIER AND A MAN.

YOUR SON,
YOUR BROTHER,
YOUR HUSBAND,

Your nephew, your cousin, or your relation, whatever he may be, he is not only a soldier but a man, a man of right, a man of vesture, a man of patriotism, a man of all the true instincts of his race, and worthy to be held in remembrance for all time. This we can help you to do in a faithful photograph enlargement, either taken from life or from any photograph you may have of him.

Before he goes to the front get him to come to us and have a good photo. enlargement of himself in his uniform, or, if he has already gone to the front, send us his photograph, and get a good enlargement taken from it; then, in years to come, you will have his lifelike picture in uniform as a sure token that he did his duty as a man in the great war.

Memories are good, but a true portrait is of great aid to memory: it will always give pleasure.

WE GUARANTEE A TRUE LIKENESS.
Get one of our Two Guinea Oil Paintings, absolutely true to life. We allow one-third discount off for photos. of soldiers in uniform; that is, only 28s to pay for a life-size (or as large as we can make it from the photo.), a 20 x 16 Oil Painting, in a splendid frame complete. Send us his photo. in uniform, and get a beautiful everlasting picture and a true likeness in Oils for 28s.

IF TAKEN FROM LIFE.
If taken from life we supply the Oil Painting, as above, and 6 Cabinet Photos., for 31/6, or if a soldier in uniform for 21s.
Soldiers may be taken at our City Studios or at Liverpool Camp Studio, which has been built on an up-to-date plan, and is equal to either our own or any other city studio.

AFTER-DARK PHOTOGRAPHS.
We take photographs on Friday and Saturday nights up till 9 o'clock quite as good as those taken in daylight, and at the same price.

Our Three Special Offers for 1915 are still going strong.

MACHINERY.

"PIONEER" LEATHER BELTING.
Another triumph for "PIONEER." Read this from a Country Sawmiller, received a few days ago:—
"The 'PIONEER' DOUBLE LEATHER BELTS supplied by you a few weeks ago are splendid. They are running slacker and easier than anything I have ever used, including expensive Imported Belting, which your Belts have replaced."
The Plant Owner should consider the lesser wear and tear on his machinery, and use "PIONEER." "PIONEER" will wear for years, and your Machinery driven by it will wear years longer than before.

MARRIAGE AND THE WAR.

Marriage is always a topical subject, which has as many aspects as the celebrated view of politics recommended to Count Smorltork, so that no matter how dry a speech may be at a meeting called for serious business, as soon as the word "marriage" is mentioned everybody in the audience sits up and listens and immediately begins to argue pro or con in mental agreement or the reverse with the speaker. Marriage was one of the topics just lightly touched upon at the meeting of women organised by the Commonwealth Patriotic Association on Wednesday, when, indeed, the speeches were anything but dry, and the interest of the audience, so far from needing any stimulation, was of so keen a temper that the meeting must be looked upon as one of the most important and successful gatherings of women ever held in our State. There were so many things to talk over at the meeting that marriage, as it may be, and certainly will be, affected by the war, was only mentioned as one of the subjects which will be thoroughly [illegible] at the forthcoming Housekeepers' Conference to be held next November.

Talking about our troubles—and marriage as it will be may fairly be ranked among troubles—does not do much good, except that the contemplation of other people's difficulties makes it easier to bear our own. But some attitude [illegible] concerning the marriages of the future [illegible] be put about now. They make us think, that to us it is strange for some of [illegible] G. K. Chesterton has lately remarked [illegible] way that thinking is the exercise most badly needed by the nation. Whether we needed the exercise or not, we are certainly getting it of late. We are cudgelling our poor brains all day long over one thing [illegible], and when we think of the [illegible] of all this thinking, and that it came upon us all so suddenly, that in itself is quite a violent mental exercise.

Marriage and the standard of living must ever be closely linked together. Mrs. David averred, in alluding to the topic at the above meeting, that our young mating couples in the future must be content with a much plainer style of living, and a much more modest start in life than what our "happy couples" of to-day expect. That young people "want to begin where their parents left off" is a common [illegible] to ostentation. But the new way of cutting this is much more inclusive. We talk vaguely of such and such happenings "after the war," but the appalling thought that there is not [illegible] to be an "after" is one that we should try and grasp. For middle-aged folk there is nothing now but the war [illegible] actual fighting will cease—soon, we prayerfully hope—but that will not be the end of it. The results will last long after all this [illegible] has gone to rest. So the marriages "after the war" will be unions on which the shadow still rests, the shadow of sacrifice and endurance, and determination to "do without" luxuries and extravagance.

For a while there was a great scare that marriage would be almost unknown in the next year [illegible] that our girls would be saved [illegible] the young men who should have [illegible] bridegrooms will have perished [illegible]. But the latest hope [illegible] in the direction that there will be [illegible] but not the best kind of man. A marriage with a coward or a shirker [illegible] little money does not present an [illegible]. As regards the lowering [illegible] standard of living, that may be just [illegible] a matter of no consequence at all [illegible] the social pace had been [illegible] The pace had been [illegible] pitch that it is a relief [illegible] simplicity and unostentatious [illegible] forced artificial gaiety of the [illegible] had been foregone without a pang [illegible] endless expense [illegible] of heart burning [illegible] constant aping [illegible] all but on top, and [illegible] of those all but on top by those [illegible] below, and so on right down the [illegible]. The modern wedding [illegible] till last year was too often [illegible] exhibition of snobbery. [illegible] would give one sigh of regret [illegible] with for ever.

[illegible] at the annual meeting of the [illegible] Society, discussed the important question of the falling off in national [illegible] will be seen in the next generation [illegible] the diminution of the birth rate. Birth rates are already falling [illegible] this is noted in the enemy [illegible] in Britain. He said that [illegible] falling off in births in the years [illegible] will be an advantage rather than a drawback, because as the [illegible] below the average [illegible] born will lower the national [illegible] He urged that the better [illegible] with advantage have larger families [illegible] at present the rate [illegible] the balance. If large families [illegible] educated and comfortably [illegible] become customary, that will mean [illegible] impetus to the lowering of the [illegible] living. Marriages of persons [illegible] but to shirk their duty to the State [illegible] will mean that luxuries and [illegible] will be altogether beyond the [illegible] the average family. But that will [illegible] anything to complain about.

WOMEN ON THE LAND.

Mr. [illegible] Minister of Labour and Industry, was [illegible] encouraging to the deputation which waited on him on Monday afternoon with [illegible] women practical instruction in all those branches of farming [illegible] work suitable for women. The speeches were short and to the point, and, although the Minister stated that [illegible] department to [illegible] in regard to an agricultural [illegible], yet he made very definite [illegible] Town Farm. [illegible] factories will be established [illegible] the Government cannot [illegible] they will buy it. The point of view that a trained woman with a [illegible] of her own can support herself and family if left to her own resources by her husband's death, or with only a few hundreds [illegible] to invest in land, was well brought out by one of the speakers (Mrs. Gilmore), who said that she had herself seen women earning a good living in that way in Paraguay. [illegible] Bodkin's contention that washing and scrubbing, which many women perform as daily tasks, year in, year out, are much harder than the lighter kinds of agricultural work, was much appreciated by Mr. [illegible] of the Botanic Gardens, [illegible] of imported beans [illegible], which, he said, could be easily raised here by women gardeners, and the money kept in the country. Miss [illegible], the spokeswoman, strongly urged that women could do nothing at all unless they were properly trained. Mrs. Vickery described what she had herself seen in Ireland, where experts go around the countryside and teach the women butter-making, cheese-making, poultry-raising, and what not. The deputation, which was representative of the Women's Horticultural Society, though other bodies were also included, was felt to be a step in the right direction, and a move from which only a good result can come. There was a sensible practical mood apparent, and the opening for women which was indicated was felt to be well within their powers, and also their feminine inclinations and proclivities.

WATTLE GOLD.

For nature lovers only is this description of a walk taken recently between Castle Hill and Glen Haven.

Leaving the train at Parramatta we caught the fussy little steam tram which leaves the station hourly for Castle Hill. The journey is charming, for after leaving the main streets of the town the road winds ever upward, between quaint old farm houses and orange orchards, and affords backward glimpses of the red roofs of Parramatta, nestling in the hollow.

Soon after passing the picturesque little post-office of Castle Hill we reached the terminus, and set out along the old Castle Hill-road. This continues upwards, and at every turn glorious views are obtained of the surrounding country.

In every direction are orchards, with the orange trees bowed down under their golden burden. But brighter, purer gold than this is that of the wattle, which creates a perfect riot of golden splendour. It forms a vivid contrast to the dark green of the old pines or the dull grey of the gum trees in the background. Sometimes a whole valley is filled with it; again, a single tree brightens up a hillside. We climbed a bank on the roadside, and reclined on a fragrant carpet of pine needles, while partaking of a simple luncheon, with appetites whetted by our walk and the keen, invigorating air.

Then, continuing our walk, we at length reached a sharp turn to the left, which brought us into the Glen Haven-road. A short distance along this we reached the house of some kind friends, who gave us a warm welcome and a refreshing cup of tea, for which we were the more grateful as our earlier repast had been unaccompanied by this luxury.

We then strolled round the orchard, and were quickly laden with oranges and mandarins. Down by the little creek we saw the wattle at closer quarters, and gathered great bunches of the feathery blooms; then walked on further to where, in a damp, shady spot, grew an abundance of the dainty maiden-hair fern.

Across the creek we inspected the passion-fruit vines, which looked very picturesque, climbing over the long wire fences. Between the rows of vines were splendid lemon trees, laden with huge, pale yellow fruit.

Returning to the homestead, we found it time to commence our walk back if we were to reach the tram terminus before nightfall. So, tying together our bunches of wattle, boronia, and other varieties of wild flowers, we set out heavily laden for Castle Hill. We took a short cut, which led us through field paths and past orange groves, until we came to an open hillside, where a welcome breeze fanned us as we climbed to the top.

Here and there a shaft from the sinking sun struck a patch of wattle, and made a vivid splash of colour. Then, later, when only a crimson glow lit up the western sky, the tall, slim gum trees stood out sharply against their glorious background.

Just as we reached the tram the evening star gleamed softly brilliant from the dark blue canopy overhead. There followed a comfortable ride in the tram, with the lights of Parramatta shining ahead. Then into the train, and so home.

MELBOURNE NOTES.

Lady Helen Munro Ferguson visited the showgrounds camp to open the new tent erected by the Y.M.C.A. Lady Helen said it was always a great pleasure to her to take part in a Y.M.C.A. function, as they had done such splendid work for the troops. She felt sure that the pleasures to be had in the tent would go far towards relieving their lives of monotony. A visit of inspection was paid to the new convalescent restroom, where her Excellency conversed with several of the patients.

Most striking advances have been made of late by the Salvation Army in securing new buildings to carry on agencies of philanthropy. Recently a new home for girls was opened by Lady Helen Munro Ferguson. The new home was once a family mansion, known as Blackhall, in East Kew. It has now been renovated to suit the needs of institutional life. One visitor was so pleased with the aspect on opening day that he donated £100 towards the funds. The new building has been named the Catherine Booth Memorial Home. There are 65 inmates, and Adjutant Horsly is the matron in charge.

The Victorian branch of the Red Cross Society, through its voluntary aid detachments, and working with the assistance of the St. John Ambulance Society, has undertaken to provide a rest home to accommodate 150 wounded soldiers. Dr. Edith Barrett, of the Central Red Cross Society, has undertaken to supply an equipment of bed linen, towels, slippers, deck chairs, and other necessaries. The plan drawn up provides for sleeping accommodation for 150 men, a concert-room, games-room, reading and smoke rooms, dining-hall, kitchen, nurses' quarters, office, and store, with adequate bathrooms and lavatory accommodation. The Minister of Defence has undertaken to supply the regulation rations for the home, but the committee will gladly welcome extra supplies from sympathisers.

Over 70 cats were exhibited at Worth's Park in connection with Australian Ladies' Kennel Club fifth championship show. There was keen competition for many of the awards. Mrs. Smee's Princess Marie, which carried off two first prizes, was won in the raffle at the patriotic dog show at Government House recently. Miss Robinson's Tony of Arrandale (imported) won first prize in the Chinchilla Persian open class, and was also adjudged the best cat in the show.

Mrs. Charles Strong's resignation of the vice-presidentship of the National Council of Women was accepted with regret, as she has given a valuable aid in the past deliberations of the council. At the last meeting a discussion ensued upon a letter received from the sister society in New South Wales re compulsory registration of women's abilities for work. It was decided to approach the Federal Government and ask for a national register. Miss Cuthbertson, inspectress of factories, said the State Government had taken a census for farmers' requirements in labour for the coming harvest, including woman's work, but had neglected to take the census of available workers. The Housewives' Co-operative Society was affiliated. Mr. Archibald Strong, at the conclusion of the business of the meeting, addressed members, the title of his lecturette being "Patriotism."

VERONICA.

FOR WAR SERVICE.

We talk of being registered for war service, and we each ponder quietly on what it means, and on what we ourselves can do. Willing to serve we are, of that there can be no doubt. But how many of us are able, as well as willing? That is the question. In this service, the will can never be taken for the deed.

There is little doubt that the majority of our capable women are, at present, fairly well employed, for a capable and willing woman generally finds work, even though it may not lie ready to her hands. She will now probably register for more work, and prepare to wear herself out. But many women will register who have hitherto been comparatively idle, or merely busy with their own trivial affairs. Of the thousands who registered for service in England a few months ago, only a few hundred were found able as well as willing. A shocking comment on British methods of education. We have followed closely on the English ideal, and we, too, may find hundreds of slow, useless, untrained women, fired with temporary enthusiasm, but not worth training and teaching. For a habit of constant work cannot be acquired in a day or two. Our greatest hope is that, as we have a smaller leisured class than older countries, and as the Australian girl is notably adaptable, we may not be obliged to see quite so many rejected.

But leaving that aspect of the subject for the future to determine, what are those who are capable and willing going to do when they are registered? The first idea of many is office work. There will, of course, be vacancies in offices. There must be some already. But they will be filled by girls already employed, now waiting, who will only step up a little more quickly. It would not be fair to them, for women, otherwise independent, to push in and alter existing conditions. Exactly the same may be said of work in other places. There is an increasing tendency to employ women in shops of all sorts—behind counters, as waitresses, as accountants, as correspondents. Hundreds are now so employed. They will need little, if any, registered help, for the raised cost of living has increased the number of juniors.

Among the very few shops in which women are not now employed, except at the desk, is the butcher's. In England, girls on bicycles have been for some time carrying round the breakfast cutlet, and they are said to be cleaner and more punctual than the boys they have replaced, and they do not so often hinder the pretty housemaid. Will any of our registered women offer to be butchers' boys?

Nearly all the distribution of fruit and vegetables in Sydney is done by men, and the fruit business especially is in need of reorganisation. We have too many middlemen, and the customer seldom gets exactly what he thinks he is paying for. Will women register to take this work in hand, and to act as conscientious distributers of fruit? They would, if they did so, benefit the public generally, as well as set many men free to enlist, either in our town, or the Italian army. Vegetables are nearly always dear in Sydney. Not because we have not suitable conditions, but because of the price of labour, and because few men make the growing of kitchen stuff a small secondary industry. They want to grow in thousands, and despise dozens. Will women register to cultivate land, and grow vegetables? In Hertfordshire, a gentleman lent, a few months ago, 20 acres of land, and girls out-of-work, or with too much leisure, dug it and planted it. They are now earning a good living by selling to the neighbourhood, or by sending by post direct to distant customers. They will soon be able to pay rent.

Many more openings might easily be mentioned, but the most important of all work for women claims attention, the work connected with life itself. A nation can afford to neglect anything rather than its children, for without them it must perish. Our children's hospitals do excellent work, as do our creches and our kindergartens, and all the kindred associations. But any one who would follow a convalescent child home from hospital or creche, would find that in nearly every case, it goes back to the ignorance, the dirt, the poverty, which made it need the hospital's attention, and which will make it need the same attention again and again. The same may be said of the medical inspection bestowed on children in schools. Advice has no value when it is disregarded. Medicine cannot alter the effect of continual ignorance and neglect. There is room here for a small army of women who might work to save life. Another instance: We have now, thanks to wise organisation, nurses who visit the mothers of the needy, and do all that is necessary for the health and comfort of both mother and child; but a busy nurse has no time for more than her simple duty, and often, very often so inspectors say, the young inexperienced mother gets up too soon, because the other children must be fed, or the tiny home be made tidy, and so does herself a permanent injury. And the best women do so more often than their lazy sisters. If we are going to try to replace the men who go to die for us and the Empire, we must acknowledge that the most effectual way to replace them will be to take care that the children they leave behind do not perish. Will women register to save life?

There is one business which to the looker-on seems seldom well done—the business of an inspector of nuisances. He is generally polite, but he so seldom inspects effectually. Or, perhaps, he inspects, and then forgets. Women are generally trained from childhood to get rid of dirt. And if they are well trained, they do not put garbage into a heap and leave it, or make a place tidy by sweeping paper into a windy corner. If there is one public office more than another that should be given exclusively to women, it is that of an inspector of nuisances. Will women register to make their town or city clean?

LOIS.

THE QUIET HOUR.

E. G. S. writes:—"In these days, when nerves are so severely taxed and strength seems at times to desert us, a timely thought or suggestion sometimes is a help. I am not writing in ignorance. I have a brother, many relatives, and friends at the front, and two very dear cousins are among those in the honour roll—one in France and one at the Dardanelles. I find the "quiet hour" a great help to me. A quiet hour should be snatched each day for these restful thoughts. One hour from the rush of work, excitement, and worry, from the thoughts of battle, bloodshed, and sorrow—to spend with Peace.

I hear tired, busy ones say, "Impossible. We've no time." Do you know, it would repay you, tired, sad mother, and over-excited girl. To wean our thoughts away from sorrow and strife at such a time is hard; but just pause and look above you at God's sky of blue, with soft white clouds floating across; listen just a moment to the wind in the trees, try and tune your heart to its music, and the sweet notes of a bird. Wander a little while in your sunshiny garden, plucking here an exquisite bloom, and there uprooting some horrid weed, that threatens to choke a favourite. Take from a tired mother a tiny babe, crooning low baby talk for it alone. Try all the time to keep your thoughts and words only on happy and peaceful things. Don't take a book or sewing with you; don't do anything; just see all the beauty around you, hear nature's music throbbing everywhere, in the lilt of a song, the hum of a bee, a song-bird's call, wind in the trees, or the voices of little children. Then, when your hour has flown, and it will fly quickly, return to your knitting, collecting, sewing, your household duties, or meetings. You will be astonished how fresh you feel, how strong to help others who are weary and sad, how happy of heart for God's many blessings still left to you, even though sorrow and death are everywhere.

Do try my "quiet hour," it will do you good, and our brave boys want sunny hearts and smiling faces among their womenkind just now more than ever they did before.

HOME AFFAIRS.

CONVENTIONAL MOURNING.

While the general feeling nowadays seems to be to make the outward signs of mourning rather inconspicuous than otherwise, yet many people who have suffered bereavement cling to the old liking for a proper display of black garments trimmed with crepe, and there are so many conflicting opinions as to the length of time such mourning should be worn, and the depth of crepe, that I shall give a few simple general rules governing the etiquette of the matter. Men, very rarely, indeed, wear mourning garments now. I happened to notice a funeral group lately—a fairly large party of men—and there were quite as many navy serge or dark tweed suits as there were black frock coats and evening trousers, while hats varied from high silk "toppers" to soft felt. When men decide on donning full black for a funeral they wear their evening trousers. "Sweet Lavender" is an old play, but many of us remember the laugh which used to follow Dick Phenyl's remark about his dress suit. "The coat is quite good, but the trousers have been attending funerals for years." Men's mourning is a slight matter. Even the black sleeve-band is rarely seen now.

NOVEL STYLES IN LINEN GOWNS FOR THE SPRING.

Before touching on mourning let me just say concerning another conventional topic—namely, the bridal costume—that prospective brides who are having a court train made for their wedding gowns make a blunder. Court trains have been quite unnecessary since courts have been adjourned, and the London court milliners are merely constructing the simplest frocks for weddings among the leaders of society. A quite short train accompanies the dress, which is often made of lace, ninon, chiffon, or muslin, and sometimes it just sweeps the ground to line the necessary gracefulness. It cannot be too often repeated that all elaborate display of any sort is absolutely out of taste at the present time.

The correct mourning for a husband is a year's full weeds, a year's black, and then half-mourning for any desired time. Weeds rightly include a white cap and cuffs, and many widows adopt the French long flowing veil, which on the Continent is worn for varying degrees of bereavement. It is a graceful fashion, as all long veils show a much more pleasing line than a short length of flimsy stuff can give. The widow's veil and weeds, once discarded, there is no hard-and-fast rule, and most mourners prefer black and white, especially in summer time. A well-cut coat and skirt of thin serge or covert coating, worn with a thin black blouse of some dull silk, would meet the summer's requirements, except for the very warm days, when a gown of thin material should be worn. With regard to blouses, either black, white, or black-and-white, "Maizie" gave full descriptions of all the new shapes in her column three weeks ago, and there is no need to repeat them here.

A black sports coat is almost a necessity for wear over a white blouse, with a black skirt for mornings, or home or informal afternoon wear. Dyeing is resorted to very freely to turn any coloured coats that may be in possession to a mourning hue. Much home dyeing goes on now; the process is not difficult, but requires care, and it seems safer to give the article to be treated at a professional dyer's, for we have several really good tradesmen of that class in our city. Dyeing comes in most usefully where children's clothes are to be black, for a very smart coat and skirt for a girl in short frocks can be constructed out of a matron's discarded and dyed suit; the narrow skirt, when adjusted to the girl's length, is often found wide enough for present requirements, and, speaking off-hand, the coat, if of average length, will be found to need but little alteration.

For a father or son (or mother or daughter) conventional mourning requires that six months shall be given to crepe, three months black, and three months half mourning; but here again the convention is not very rigid, and people suit their own tastes and pockets. Mourning is an expensive business to set about, as there is really no true economy in buying cheap black. Black and white checks do not constitute half-mourning, unless the pattern is small, as sad-coloured grey is more correct. Violet is always admissible. Very little trimming is placed on the black hats and toques, and all fancy shoes with varnished uppers and excessively high heels are out of place. For notepaper only a thin line of black is needed, and handkerchiefs are seldom black-bordered.

PENELOPE'S WEEKLY NOTES.

STATE FISH.

Anxious to obtain further information about deep-sea or trawler fish, "Penelope" has paid yet another visit to the Oxford-street shop. The pavement crowd has now almost disappeared, but the crowd about the long counter, eager-faced and impatient is still large enough to make private enterprise dispersing "ordinary" fish, hot-hearted with envy.

"Barracouta," said one customer, eyeing that peculiar-looking fish dubiously. "I suppose it is just like other barracouta?" The salesman wore a proud smile. "No; it is not like other barracouta," he said disdainfully. "This barracouta is out of the clean, deep sea, and is consequently different from mud barracouta."

The appearance of almost all the deep-sea fish differs so greatly from that of the fish to which we have become accustomed that a little of our distrust of the new-comer is, perhaps, pardonable. The silvery grey fish, and the fish of dull, grey hue, our eyes have been trained to regard, and now behold the deep-sea fish, all, or almost all, pink to red.

Nannegai, for instance, is more like red bream, also egg and bread-crumbed and fried. Comparing nannegai and bream "Penelope" could not but feel that the former was just the latter, quite young and caught while enjoying his salad days in the deep; and the latter was the hoary-headed nannegai, not venturesome enough now for deepest waters. A foolish fancy perhaps, but it occurred again, when the nannegai, discreetly egg and bread-crumbed, and fried a golden brown, later on, came to table on a dish—with, as companion, a "hoary-headed" (but, of course, be-headed) bream, also egg and bread crumbed and fried. So incomparably young and tender, firm and sweet-tasted, is the flesh of the nannegai.

"The sweetest fish that comes out of the sea," was the salesman's recommendation—and it was truly merited. The cost of the nannegai was 5d, that of the bream 11½d a lb. The morwong 5d, and the giant boarfish 7d a lb, are both very good steamed and served with anchovy or egg sauce; or they may be steamed, and then made into fish-pie or pudding or curry. Or, again, any remainders of either fish may be freed from bone and transformed into that delicacy—a fish salad. Gurnard at 4d a lb is another splendid deep-sea fish, good either boiled or fried, but perhaps better boiled.

For those who prefer the better-known fish, good mullet are at present obtainable at from 8d each; garfish cost 1d apiece, whiting is 1d a lb, blue cod is a lb. Just now excellent halibut at 1s 6d a lb is to be had. Halibut is a good grilling fish. It needs to be divided into slices, just under an inch in thickness, dusted with pepper and salt, brushed over with butter, and cooked over a clear fire on a gridiron for about 10 minutes. Just now oysters are very good—their price is 1s and 1s 3d a dozen.

The price of butter has suffered a sharp decline! It is now 1s 8d a lb, with a prospect of becoming still cheaper soon. So is one of our housekeeping troubles passing from us. Eggs also are cheapening, and becoming so plentiful as to threaten to cause a glut in our markets. They are 1s 1d to 1s 6d a dozen—cheap enough now to cause the demand for breakfast table chops to grow considerably less. Bacon is still scarce, and lard, cheese, and honey are still listed among our "hardly obtainables." The mere promise of spring, however, has alleviated some of our housekeeping troubles, so that our hopes of a further alleviation in the very near future are certainly justified. Thus, we are told, the milk people are to be asked to show reason why the price of milk should not be reduced.

The fruit shops are, many of them, making a brave display of strawberries just now. Quite a generously filled punnet of medium-sized berries may be bought for 1s 6d. The Queensland strawberry is extremely plentiful with us. Generally speaking, it is a much smaller fruit than that grown locally, but it is good, sweet, and sound, and no dearer for its long journeying. The paw-paw (6d and 9d each) and the pineapple at the same price, are plentiful, and worth buying. Bananas are 9d and 1s a dozen, the small river banana 6d. Seville oranges are 2d and 4d each; navel oranges the same price. Nuts are usually very welcome as dessert at this season. Walnuts, Barcelona nuts, Brazilian nuts, and almonds are all very popular, and may be bought for 1s and 1s 6d a lb. Those who fancy they cannot digest them—or who really cannot—should try them grated, and with salt, of course.

There is nothing new to note in the vegetable world. Cabbages and cauliflowers are both very plentiful, and their price varies according to their size, from 2d to 8d each. Peas are 1s 9d and 2s a peck, and still young and good. French beans are 1s 3d a peck. Carrots, parsnips, beetroot, and turnips are 2d and 3d a bunch; onions, pumpkin, old potatoes, swede turnips are 1½d a lb; new kidney potatoes cost 3d a lb. These last-named should be boiled with a little mint, and be served well rubbed over with butter. They are also good boiled and served in milk.

Lettuces are 1d a head; spinach 1d a bunch, and celery 5d a head. Rhubarb at 4d a bunch is to be recommended. A little ginger cooked with it is liked by many.

FROM NEAR AND FAR.

Lady Edeline Strickland invited Mrs. Holman to luncheon last Thursday, to say "au revoir" to the wife of the Premier, before her departure on Saturday for a three months' trip to America. Mr. Holman and many friends went down to the Darling Harbour wharf to see the Sonoma off, and several of the committees and women's organisations with which Mrs. Holman is connected sent flowers.

A pretty incident occurred recently in one of our country schools, which was being visited by two of our wounded soldiers. The children—especially the infants—were particularly impressed at the sight of "really and truly" heroes, home from the war, and were very anxious to show their interest in a practical manner. One of the wounded, a young married man, was accompanied by his wife and baby, and as the latter was being duly admired, a little voice from the crowd said, "Here's a penny for the baby's money-box." Thereupon, from all sorts of hidden and mysterious recesses, came forth pennies and half-pennies, until quite a respectable start for a small bank was made.

One of the many schemes organised and carried through by the Mayoress of Orange, Mrs. E. T. M'Neilly, in aid of the various patriotic funds, is the collection of a large number of handkerchiefs for the use of the troops. She has at present 17 dozen, ready for despatch to Egypt, and has obtained them by the simple expedient of purchasing a few to begin with, selling them for 6d each to buyers who handed them back, and with the proceeds purchasing more. Several dozens have also been donated. On each handkerchief are stamped the words, "Orange, N.S.W., Australia Day." Mrs. M'Neilly is also busy collecting small towels for the same purpose, and these, like the handkerchiefs, are gifts which are in the power of the poorest to make. The services of the Mayoress to the Australia Day celebration are to be recognised by the ladies of the committee, who are inviting her to an afternoon tea in the lounge of the Club Hotel.

The Ashfield Public school band played selections. The takings amounted to £101 3s 3d.

Mrs. Buckland, Mrs. Perry, and Mrs. Pettitt, assisted by other ladies, managed the various stalls, which were well filled with useful and ornamental articles. The Dulwich Hill Public school fife and drum band played patriotic airs. The cash result of the fete was £60.

Those with gardens are asked to donate flowers, and those without gardens are invited to come and buy the flowers. It should be mentioned that the promoters approached a leading florist with the question of whether such a shop would injure the regular florists' trade, and in the most generous manner a negative opinion was expressed.

Christmas cheer for Lemnos Island was the kind thought prompting the meeting organised and presided over by Lady Anderson Stuart at the B.M.A. rooms on Monday afternoon. The soldiers in the hospital are to receive gifts at Christmas time. Each man if possible will get a present, some extra parcels being put in for unknown soldiers. The War Chest has undertaken to forward these parcels, which will be prettily tied up with "patriotic" ribbon, and made to look as "Christmassy" as possible. A committee was formed, with Lady Anderson Stuart as president, Mr. F. E. Winchcombe treasurer, Mrs. Sydney Jamieson hon. secretary, Miss Jamieson assisting secretary. Lady M'Millan, Mesdames Winchcombe, C. Read, and Worrall were elected the executive committee.

OUR SOLDIERS' RELATIVES.

A BRISBANE CLUB.

It has been said often enough to become almost a platitude that one of the effects of the war is to draw women closer together. This can hardly be wondered at when it is considered how all classes are suffering from the common bond of anxiety as to the fate of their loved ones. The horrors of war have made all women kin, and have roused desires not only for service in the way of Red Cross and other patriotic efforts, but for a clearer, and, consequently, more sympathetic, insight into the trials and sorrows of each other. Time was when only a small minority of women knew what unutterable loneliness it caused to be suddenly deprived of the man of the house. Nowadays an ever-increasing number bravely stifle their feelings, and wish God-speed to husband, and in many cases several other relatives who depart for the front. Perhaps the greatest sufferers at the outset were the wives of reservists. Events have shown that, in the case of many of them, after only a few months'—and sometimes weeks'—residence in Australia, the husbands were called on to return to England and rejoin their regiments. With no relatives or friends, and few acquaintances, these women have learnt only too thoroughly the real meaning of loneliness. Various church guilds and other philanthropic bodies did their best to get into touch with those who were specially friendless when their men folk went to the war, but there is always something official about such efforts, and however kindly they are made a certain fellow-feeling seems to be lacking.

Knowing all these things, the members of the Brisbane Women's Club—many of whom are soldiers' relatives themselves—decided that some concrete and friendly union open to all women relatives of men at the front was a desirable goal to strive for. It was soon found impracticable for the Women's Club to develop and work the idea in their own premises. The matter was accordingly referred to the National Council of Women, with a suggestion that they, in conjunction with officers' wives and representatives from the Women's Club, devise a scheme of friendly [illegible]n for relatives of men at the front. Lady Goold-Adams, wife of the State Governor, was present at the inaugural meeting, at her own desire. She has shown a keen interest in the movement ever since, and is with Mrs. G. Lee, wife of the State Commandant, patroness of the Women's Mutual Service Club, which was eventually formed. Mrs. J. J. Kingsbury, president of the National Council of Women, is also president of the new club. Mrs. H. W. Pendlebury, wife of Major Pendlebury, is the hon. treasurer, and Mrs. C. A. Macfarlane, hon. secretary of the Brisbane Women's Club, is also hon. secretary of this one for relatives of men at the front.

The originators of the movement were fortunate at the outset in having placed at their disposal, free of charge, the room of the Adult Deaf and Dumb Mission, and that of the Australian Journalists' Association, both of which adjoin each other in a centrally-situated city building, and neither of which is required during the day-time by those societies. This generosity enabled the club to start immediately, without the necessity of troubling about funds for rent and furniture. On July 7 the club was formally opened by Lady Goold-Adams, and about 80 members were enrolled. Since then another hundred women have joined. A membership fee of 1s per annum is charged, and afternoon tea is provided daily for the sum of twopence. The club is open daily from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m., and has an average attendance of 29 members. The demand for Red Cross work was so great from those not already in touch with branches of that society that the club is now a sub-branch, doing regular work. Members are encouraged to bring their little children with them, and a supply of toys is provided for their amusement. Arrangements have been made for regular demonstrations by experts in economical cookery, and the cutting out of women's and children's plain garments, to be given to members. This branch of service begins during September.

There is a large committee of officers' wives, and a few representatives from the National Council of Women and the Brisbane Women's Club, three of whom are on duty each day, in order to supervise the work and attend to the many matters which club members desire information about. It is being found that the serving as an information bureau is not one of the least of the club's activities.

After the arrival of a mail from the front there is a great interchange of news and comparison of picture postcards books of views, etc. Many mothers of young families call in frequently, and find just the friendly companionship and fellow-feeling that they so badly need. During the club's short life several of the members have received word that husband, son, or brother has been either wounded or killed in action, and they confess to receiving much comfort and help in their dark hours through the instrumentality of fellow club members. Others who were almost in a state of despair through loneliness have made congenial friends, and the constant expressions of gratitude and acknowledgement of the help that accrues from the mutual service of friendliness and sympathy is most cheering to all concerned.

KADINA.

SERVIAN SCULPTURE.

A. E. M. writes from London, 8/7/'15:—

"I went this week to see the sculptures of Ivan Mestrovic, the Serbian, whose work is on exhibition at the Victoria and Albert Museum. There has been raging a storm of criticism and controversy round him, for it takes more than a mere European war to quieten the various art factions: but personally I was overwhelmed by the man's genius. His force is colossal. He expresses great, primitive emotions in a great way, and with an absolute absence of coarseness or grossness. I can understand anyone who has never known anything but ease and safety finding his work cruel, and even repulsive, for his art is the expression of a race which has known much that is cruel and repulsive. But, in my opinion, there was not one piece that could possibly be called coarse. The most striking things, I thought, were the four statues called "Mourning Widows." They were different types of Serbian women, all expressing the same tragedy. But in each face there was more than the personal sorrow: behind the loss of husband was the tragedy of race, the concentration of ages of sadness, the endurance of an oppressed people. In all his women Mestrovic expresses this same tragic endurance and helplessness; on the men there are more active force and rebellion, but the sculptor shows how heavily oppression sits on the women of a conquered race. Just now such art has a peculiarly poignant interest, apart from its own genius, and it is extraordinary that there are still to be found people in England who can carp at it for not being "pretty and delicate."

MENDING LACE CURTAINS.

A pair of lace curtains that were washed recently were so badly torn it seemed impossible to mend them; but they are done, and you cannot find the repaired places without hunting for them. The secret of success is to dip pieces of curtain net—which may be bought with different-sized meshes—into cold starch, lay them over the torn places, and press with a hot iron. Press firmly all the edges, and you will be pleased with the result. The iron must be hot enough to cook the starch, being careful not to scorch the goods. Often curtains are longer than is necessary. In that case a piece may be cut from the top and used instead of buying the net. If it is necessary to wash the curtains again, catch the rents lightly together after moistening and remaving the patches which are to be saved and used again.

WHY ROYAL WORCESTER CORSETS ARE THE MOST POPULAR.

Behind the continued pre-eminence of Royal Worcester Corsets, there is a reason. They are the original creations of designers who first ascertain what fashion is going to demand in the matter of lines, curves, and poise, and then proceed to accomplish the desired result. And women prefer Royal Worcester Corsets not merely because they have the name, and meet all the demands of Fashion, but because they have proved how perfectly they fit, and how wonderfully comfortable they are in the wearing. The new Models (now showing in our Windows and Showroom) are positively the best Corsets from a hygienic standpoint that have yet been made. The ample boning, cleverly placed, gives the needed support with the utmost comfort, while moulding the figure into natural graceful lines. The bust is higher and fuller, there is the slight natural curve at the waist, and the skirts both back and front are slightly shorter to allow more freedom, but yet are long enough to control the hips and thighs. And, further, the Royal Worcester Company have designed Models to suit each individual figure at any price you desire to pay. Our Corsetieres are always willing to give expert advice, and help you choose the correct Model for your individual figure.

The prices range from 5/11.

Owners and trainers intending to participate in the good things provided by the Australian Jockey Club during the coming spring campaign at Randwick should note that the general entry closes at 4 p.m. on Monday next, with the secretary, Mr. C. W. Cropper, and nominations will also be received up to that hour at the office of the V.R.C., Melbourne, the S.A.J.C., Adelaide, and the Q.T.C., Brisbane. In order to avoid the risk of missing a chance of securing such valuable prizes, as well as to facilitate the work of the office, entries should be lodged as early as possible. For the 19 items for which entries are invited the added money amounts to 14,550 sovs, and of this sum 6500 sovs endows the w.f.a. events, which include the Spring Stakes, Craven Plate, and Randwick Plate, of 2000 sovs each; the handicap events for three years old and upwards absorb 4400 sovs; 1550 sovs has been provided for races restricted to three-year-olds; and 1800 sovs for the races over obstacles, which include two hurdle races and a couple of cross-country events. Such an excellent programme—the best in Australasia—should command a bumper entry. It should also be borne in mind that first forfeits for the Derby, Epsom Handicap, the Metropolitan, Breeders' Plate, and Gimcrack Stakes fall due at 4 p.m. on Monday, and all horses remaining in after that date incur the usual liabilities.

Advices from the Eumaralla stud record the following foalings, and for whom Poseidon is responsible:—Warfare, by Havoc—Georgina, b f; La Bolero, by Pioneer—Christabel, b c; Court Beauty, by Royal Artillery—Tres Belle, b f. The aforementioned mares will visit The Nut (imp.) this season.

In his general report on the race meetings held under the Southern District Racing Association, Mr. Norman V. Devlin, stipendiary steward, states that during the past 12 months in 257 races, horses handicapped from 7st 7lb down have carried an average of 3lb over weight. Light boys were very scarce in the country, and he urged upon the committee of the association the advisability of asking the handicapper not to go below 7st in the majority of races.

Messrs. Wm. Inglis and Son announce that they will hold their annual spring sale of bloodstock at Payten's Newmarket Stables, Randwick, on October 7 (Thursday in A.J.C. week).

From the Plashett Stud comes word that the first three foals of the season at that breeding establishment are by Holsworthy, and the matrons are Doldrum (by Antaeus), Brown and Gold (by Metal), and Olive (by Geraint). The youngsters are big and strong, with very good legs, and are well shaped.

Narrabri Jockey Club's patriotic meeting (October 13 and 14) and Wyanga Amateur Picnic Race Club (October 13) race meetings have been granted registration by the A.J.C.

First Stitch (8st 3lb) has been erroneously included among the horses handicapped for the Canterbury Park Stewards' Mile, instead of Festive Mirth at the same weight.

The stout Musket blood was well in evidence at the principal meetings held in the Commonwealth last Saturday. At the Warwick Farm meeting, Compromise, the winner of the Hurdle Race, is a son of the Trenton horse Trenchant; the New Zealand-bred Tea Tere, who secured the Liverpool Mile, gets his Musket infusion through his dam, Lady Fisher, by Cuirassier; and Sir Vive, who annexed the Warwick Handicap, is by Fucile (son of Carbine). Welumba, who secured the Hurdle Race at Wagga, is by Mosqueton (son of Carbine); Loru, who won the Riverina Handicap, is by Pistol (son of Carbine), and Muggaboh, winner of the Novice Handicap gets his Musket strain through his sire, Carbineer. In five of the races on the card for the second day of the Adelaide Racing Club's Grand National Meeting the winners inherited strains of the Musket blood. Lady Pistol (Eastwood Hurdle), Marmur (Dequettville Stakes), Gambit Queen (Beaumont Trial), and Pistolier (Mayor's Mile), are all the direct descendants of Carbine's imported son, Pistol; and Petrarcla, winner of the Corporation Handicap, gets her strain through her great granddam, Piecrust, by Martini Henry; while Golden Charm, who appropriated the Welter Handicap at Williamstown (Vic.) gets her infusion through her sire, Aurum (son of Trenton).

Among the racing fixtures that need attention, on Monday next, is that of the Rosehill Spring Meeting on the 18th inst. The programme is a very attractive one, and includes the Rosehill Guineas, for which nominations have closed; the Spring Stakes, a w.f.a. event, with penalties and allowances endowed with 250 sovs, and run over a mile; the Rosehill Handicap of 125 sovs; and three minor items, including a race over the battens, of 100 sovs each. Nominations for the five events will be received by the secretary, Mr. Geo. W. S. Rowe, up to 4 p.m. on the 6th inst.

Entries close at 4 p.m. to-day for the half-dozen events on the card for the Wyong Park meeting on the 7th inst., with the secretary, Mr. Edwin Woodbury. The prize money totals 275 sovs, of which 65 sovs, and a lady's gold bracelet watch endow the Wyong Park Handicap.

Mr. H. R. Evans, secretary, invites up to 4 p.m. on Monday next, entries for the half-dozen events on the programme for the meeting of the Gosford Racing Club on the 14th inst., and for which 270 sovs prize-money has been provided.

RANDWICK TRAINING NOTES.

Uncle Sam put in an appearance at Randwick yesterday morning, and cantered a couple of turns on the inner sand track. The dual Caulfield Cup winner looks very good to the eye, and appeared eager for a faster gait than his rider allowed. A heavy white frost covered the heath when the business of the day began, but it quickly disappeared before a warm, bright sun, which made the conditions ideal for outdoor exercise. The outer half of the course proper was in use, and one of the first to take advantage of it was Cagou, who covered seven furlongs in 1m 32½s, a performance that was not afterwards beaten, though it was generally reckoned that the track improved considerably, as the moisture left by the frost had completely dried up when the after-breakfast brigade turned out. St. Spasa and Clash of Arms cantered round to the five furlongs post, and ran down from that point in 1m 5s, St. Spasa apparently having the better of the bout. Their countrymen, Flippant, Red Dennis, and Half a Glass, were despatched for a mile gallop, and they finished as named in 1m 47½s. Red Dennis and Wallace Isinglass are typical Birdcatchers, in colour, conformation, and markings, even to "the Birdcatcher spots," which are so conspicuous in Herring's famous painting of the great Irish sire, who left such an indelible stamp upon the British thoroughbred.

Nombi moved along for about six furlongs at a fair pace, and Wallace Isinglass ran away from Sir Tarka in a half-mile sprint (in 52s), which he tacked on to some useful work. The Mogul and Golden Ale did a mile gallop together in 1m 49s, and Agincourt ran a furlong less in 1m 35¼s; while Flash of Steel and Third Prize (separately) ran five furlongs in 1m 8s without trouble. Little had the best of Leta and Common Law in a run over nine furlongs, which occupied 2m 3s. With Almo for a working mate, Cetigne covered a mile and a half. Beginning at a useful pace, he gradually increased the speed, and finished up the last six furlongs in 1m 23s. This son of Grafton looks exceptionally well. Wombah and Fighting Chance were sent half-a-mile in 53s, and there was little to choose between the pair. It was the first speed gallop Fighting Chance has had at Randwick. He is a colt by Yetman (imp.), and a visitor from Brisbane, where he won a good two-year-old race last season. The improved appearance of Merrimee reflects credit upon the skill of her trainer, H. J. Robinson, who sent her over seven furlongs with his English horse, Canzone, and, with a trifle in hand, they ran the distance in 1m 35s. Waltz and Lardner were bracketed for a gallop over a mile in 1m 51s, and Golden Hop put in a six-furlong solo in 1m 22½s. Reputation went attractively over about a mile and a quarter, and left the last six furlongs behind in 1m 21s, winding it up with a dash of brilliant speed.

Blueberry, Alasco, Well Dressed, Grail, Royal Laddie, Mythic, Charleville, Capilletto, Plasticine, The Christian Brother, Ravello, Sir Vive, Giru, Del Monte, and many others worked usefully; and Sir John Barleycorn ran a mile in 1m 52s; while Simon Frisco, Narivo, and Royal Rufus shaped fairly well.

After breakfast Three Star gave Gal and Drummuir a trouncing over a mile in 1m 48s, and Gringo went a similar distance, which he ran with plenty in hand in 1m 48¾s. Mountain Knight, who worked in the presence of his owner, Mr. E. J. Watt, was given his usual strong gallop over 11 furlongs, and covered the last eight in 1m 45s; while his stable-mate, Scotch Artillery, who has improved out of knowledge in appearance since he joined Harry Rayner's stable, followed with similar work. Mr. Denison's imported mare Bhanavar had the foot of Thoolomi in a four furlongs sprint, which occupied 52s. Woorak, with Bracken up, bounded along, with a strong hold on his head, over seven furlongs in 1m 35s; while his stable-mates, Kingsburgh and St. Natty, were restricted to a mile working gallop, which they ran inside even time. Tartanus slipped over five furlongs in 1m 5s, and Malt Mark traversed seven furlongs in 1m 33½s. Sir Alwynton and the English mare Hecate covered a mile in 1m 47½s, and pulled up well. Ulva's Isle only pottered about; while his mate, Secret Service, ran a mile in 1m 47½s. The Fortune Hunter and Allaru galloped a mile and a quarter at a stout working pace. Athenic, with M'Lachlan up, slipped over half a mile in 50½s, and seven furlongs in 1m 37s went down to Finn's jumpers Misteroo and Cowboy. Carlita pulled up well after a mile and a quarter in 2m 17s. Gigandra galloped seven furlongs usefully, as did Westcourt and La Penna; while Petalster, Maidan, and Tonquin all sprinted smartly.

TWO-YEAR-OLDS.

The first of the two years old contingent to gallop were a filly by Earlston and Confetti, and a youngster by Cooltrim from Quietest, who ran three furlongs in 39s. Mr. T. A. Stirton's Knightlight colt, Choir Knight, very badly beat Rouleau (Kenilworth—Gold Grip) over half a mile, in a tick under 53s, and Sir Paddington, a ready-made son of Paddington (imp.), pulled over Prinesa (Maltster—Princess Ena) throughout a run over half a mile, in 54¼s. The first three furlongs were run in 38¼s, when the filly was done with, but the colt was pulled back to keep her company. Prinesa is a big growing filly, the property of Mr. Stirton, who has decided to give her a spell, and allow her to mature. Nesta Knight, a black filly by Knightlight from Nesta, and a speedy young lady, worked usefully. After breakfast Mr. S. S. Cohen was present to see his Cooltrim filly. Truim, beat French Flag (Kenilworth—Neried) over half a mile, in 52s, and Resanov, a half-brother (by Orzil) to Ventura, was too good for a filly, by Petrillo, from Scotch Airs, in a three-furlong run, which occupied 39s.

Kilmarnock, a fine-looking Ayr Laddie colt, trained by Scully, went most attractively over half-a-mile in 51¾s, and John L. D., a colt by Maltster from Kummulla, ran three furlongs in 38½s, beating Clem W. The owner of this colt, Mr. John Garvan, was present, accompanied by Mr. K. T. Austin, who was out on crutches for the first time since the distressing accident, which kept him about 10 weeks in hospital. Allsop's pair, Golden Shoe and Gavot, ran down three furlongs in 38¾s, the first-named having the better of the bout. Golden Shoe is a well-grown, well-turned filly, by Wallace from that fine Multiform mare, Golden Slipper. The best two-year-old sprint of the morning went to the credit of Yarramun, a colt by Mousqueton from Saffron. He ran down three furlongs alone in 37¾s, and could have done a trifle better. A colt, by Linacre from Twirl, had no chance with a good actioned, attractive grey filly named Atavism, by Featherstitch—Kindamindi, by Grafton. This pair are trained by P. Nolan. Burton's pair, Baldpate (by Comedy King) and Burnalda (by Bernard) covered the three furlongs course in 38s, a time gallop that was just equalled by Mount Wood (Mountain King—Streetwood), and Tressillian (Kenilworth—La Fleche). This smart pair are trained by W. Curran. Harry Rayner galloped Mr. E. J. Watt's youngsters, Indian King (Mountain King—Bee Bee) and a half-brother to Tatterley over half-a-mile, which they ran in 52s. Useful work was done by a host of others, including the Wakeful colt and Certes.

POLO AND THE WAR.

SYDNEY CLUB'S ROLL OF HONOUR.

Polo players throughout the State will regret the death of Second-Lieutenant Merivale, who was one of the first polo men to join the ranks of the Expeditionary Forces. The deceased officer was, for two seasons, hon. secretary of the Sydney Polo Club, having succeeded Mr. Colin C. Stephen in that position. When the 1913 season was in full swing, and within a few days of the Countess of Dudley Cup Carnival, Lieutenant Merivale was stricken with a very severe illness, which kept him out of the saddle for the remainder of the season. Next year, however, he resumed his secretarial duties, and returned to the playing field. Lieutenant Merivale's unselfish disposition was frequently manifested in the club games at Kensington, when he was always amongst the first to offer to stand down, so that a clubmate might have a gallop. He left Sydney very quietly as a trooper in the 6th Light Horse Brigade, but quickly won his step, and that he did his duty heroically no one who knew him will doubt.

"Jack" Merivale, as he was known to all his friends, played his final important game last season at the Countess of Dudley Cup Carnival, when he was one of the Sydney Club's B team, opposed by Glen Innes Club, in the Adrian Knox Cup tournament. The line-up on that occasion was:—Mr. A. W. Turnbull, captain (back), Mr. H. C. Hume (3), Mr. J. L. Merivale (2), Mr. R. C. Middleton (1). Mr. Turnbull now holds an imperial commission, and is serving with the Royal Field Artillery. Lieutenant Merivale usually played No. 1, and his name will now be inscribed "No. 1" on the Sydney Polo Club's Roll of Honour.

GLEN INNES CLUB.

News is to hand that Major J. F. White, the well-known and capable captain of the Glen Innes Polo Club, is in hospital at Cairo. Major White—then lieutenant—left Australia with one of the Light Horse brigades, and he was also one of the first players to volunteer for the front. Major White led the Glen Innes team against the Sydney club four upon the occasion when the late Lieutenant Merivale played his last game. The Glen Innes line-up was:—Mr. H. F. White (back), Mr. A. M. White (3), Mr. J. F. White, captain (2), and Mr. J. Sinclair (1). Major White is also one of the presidents of the Glen Innes Picnic Race Club.

SPORTSMEN'S CAFE CHANTANT.

Mr. T. H. Eslick, the hon. organiser of the amateur sportsmen's effort to raise the sum of £1000 for the Australian wounded in an afternoon and evening at the Town Hall next Saturday, by means of a Cafe Chantant, bazaar, and fancy dress ball, is calling all the workers together for final instructions on Thursday next. Arrangements are proceeding very well, and yesterday 200 tables were provided for in the centre of the hall, which is to take the form of an Elizabethan Village street. The Ladies' Tennis Association has undertaken the refreshments, and 70 bodies daintily costumed will be in waiting.

ATHLETICS.

SUMMER RACING.

For the first time since the inauguration of the annual competitions for the Dunn shield, the contests for the club supremacy of the State will not be held this year. This was the decision arrived at by the New South Wales Amateur Athletic Association, at last week's council meeting, when the question of open racing was brought up for consideration. The mover of the resolution contended that the falling off in nominations, for events held since the commencement of the war, was sufficient reason for the cancellation of important meetings, apart from the question of the likelihood of continued sport tending to influence men against recruiting. There was not a great amount of discussion upon the matter, and whilst a couple of delegates urged the need for providing for men who were unable to enlist, their arguments were not strong enough to prevent the motion being carried by a good majority. The decision was in conformity with the actions of all associations affiliated to the A.A.U. of Australia and New Zealand, for that body notified the result of a recent mail vote, agreeing that all Australasian track, field or cross-country championships should be eliminated until after the termination of the war. This will not, however, militate against local competitions, for although open events will be few, there is no intention of opposing regular club meetings, which will be carried on as usual, the A.A.A. having accepted the Sports Ground trustees' offer for the use of that track on every available Saturday afternoon.

It is the intention of the controlling body to organise a military sports for members of the Expeditionary Forces, provided that the sanction of the authorities can be obtained. Although nothing has so far been done in this direction here, other States and New Zealand have organised some excellent meetings for the troops, and this has also been a feature of athletic gatherings in England.

Newington College opened the schools sports programme on Saturday, the outstanding performances of the gathering being registered by R. F. Cripps in the senior division, and G. Zietsch in the junior section. Cripps, who was prominent in last year's Great Public Schools' sports, is also a member of the Olympic A.A.C., with which body he has already been successful in open and club competition. He won the 100 yards championship in 11s, 220 yards in 25 1-10s, and 440 yards in 56 4-5s. The running broad jump championship was placed to his credit with an excellent leap of 21ft 0½in, and he also finished second in the 120yds hurdles and running high jump. Zietsch annexed the 100yds, 220yds, 880yds, 100yds hurdles, and running broad jump championships in the under 16 section, in each of which he accomplished some smart performances.

Nominations are due on Saturday next for the 120yds, 440yds, one mile, one milk walk, 120yds hurdles, and 880yds relay handicaps, open to members of the N.S.W. Amateur Athletic Association, to be decided at the Eight-Hour Day sports on October 4. The secretary of the N.S.W. Athletic League will accept entries on Saturday for the 120yds, 220yds, 880yds, and 250yds steeplechase handicaps, open to professional runners at the same gathering.

The majority of amateur clubs have cancelled their fixtures for Saturday next owing to the Amateur Sportsmen's Fun cafe chantant, to be held at the Town Hall on that date.

BOWLS.

NOTES ON REFORM.

The revival of the one-time exciting and popular interstate matches should be the object of every bowler who has the interests of the game at heart. At present the subject should be discussed only as a principle—as something to be achieved when the war is over. But even so the matter must shortly be seriously debated. The annual meeting takes place at the end of the month, the association has held the final meeting of its financial year, and unless the new committee is intent upon reform at the outset of its term of office its enthusiasm will soon evaporate.

It is not always easy to discover the need of an Australian bowling council, but the council has to be accepted for good or evil and it will largely rest upon the association soon to be elected whether the council is to remain a burden—to some extent—upon the States, or is to be fashioned into an instrument that will further popularise the sport.

There is sure to be an effort to defeat the "long-pennant" system—that will be the first event in the parliament of the game. Then will come, it is to be hoped, a fight to compel the council to restore the interstate games, and grant to them the prestige they enjoyed before the council robbed them of all their former importance. It will mean a great deal to bowls to once again have exciting matches between New South Wales and the other States. The council's scheme of a big Australasian tournament does not, and never will, take the place of the once highly-prized interstate engagements. If home and return matches—for example, first in Melbourne, and then in Sydney in the one year—would be overloading the sport, the return can be deferred until the following year. The council's tournament cannot be interfered with—it is a right and proper and inevitable event. But there was no reason to kill the interstate game. There is some way in which the two things may be reconciled. Bowlers have so far lamented the passing of the old order, not so much sentimentally, but because the sport has suffered; nevertheless no one has arisen to push reform through. The opportunity is again given. A newly-elected body should be restless with energy, and it is to be hoped that the council will have evidence of the fact during the months of October and November. It is a sad state of affairs when bowlers know what they want, but do not set out to get it. There is no need to regard the council as standing in the path of reform; the council will respond when bowlers make plain their desires.

SAILING.

EIGHTEEN-FOOTERS' FIXTURES

The delegates appointed by the Sydney Flying Squadron and the Sydney Sailing Club have jointly drafted their programmes for the season. Following the opening race on the 18th September, it is proposed to hold a joint race on the 25th September. The first purely club race under the auspices of the Sydney Flying Squadron, is fixed for October 2, while on the following Saturday the Sydney Club sails its first race. The programmes, which include a number of patriotic races, will be submitted for adoption at the two clubs' meetings next week.

BOXING.

Billy Murray and Les. Darcy, who are to meet on Saturday, will go through their afternoon's work at the Rushcutter Bay Stadium to-day. Other young boxers will give tryouts. The admission will be free, and ladies will be admitted. These exhibitions are to be given every Wednesday afternoon, and will give boxing followers a chance to see for themselves how the men perform.

Eddie M'Goorty leaves to-night for Brisbane, where he meets Joe Bonds on the 11th.

Jimmy Clabby, the brilliant middleweight, is returning to Australia shortly.

The Tramway Sports Association's boxing tournament on behalf of the Wounded Soldiers Fund will commence to-morrow at the Stadium, and be continued on subsequent Thursday nights.

LAWN TENNIS.

WILDING MEMORIAL FUND.

Subscriptions will now be received by the Australasian Lawn Tennis Association to the fund instituted by it for the purpose of perpetuating the memory of Anthony Wilding. It is intended to invest the amount received and to apply the interest therefrom to provide a trophy of a suitable description annually, which will be the property of the winner of the Australasian singles championship.

This plan follows closely the practice in connection with the All-England championship at Wimbledon, as the winner of the singles at that meeting receives a cup presented by the relatives of the late W. and E. Renshaw, to keep fresh the memory of those famous brothers, whose many triumphs at Wimbledon were instrumental in first directing public attention to the merits of lawn tennis. The first of the Renshaw memorial cups was won by N. E. Brookes.

Although effect cannot be given to the object in view until the termination of the war, it has been thought advisable to open the list now, and, though claims upon generosity are numerous, the number of Wilding's admirers is so large, and the esteem in which he was held so sincere, that the comparatively small amount required should be easily obtained.

As was fully expected when the competition began, the ladies' interclub premiership was carried off by the Strathfield Club, which had no difficulty in going through the many rounds of the event without a single defeat. The strength of the club is indicated by the fact that the second team contested the final round, and the third occupied a high position at the termination of the preliminary matches. As in former years, many of the leading players of the State did not take part in the competitions.

The task of conducting competitions such as these is far more arduous than the uninitiated imagine. The arrangement of the draw, so that, as far as practicable, every team shall have an equal number of matches at home and away, requires considerable care, while the tabulating of results is a laborious matter. To Mr. J. S. Lobban, the hon. secretary of the competitions, the bulk of this work has fallen, and the competitors gave expression to their realisation of this by the presentation which they made to him last week, a recognition of work well done that was thoroughly deserved.

The captain of the winning team, Mrs. Redmond Barry, is at the head of affairs in the matter of providing refreshments at the Sportsmen's Cafe Chantant, to be held at the Town Hall on the 4th inst., and is receiving cordial assistance from numerous other lawn tennis players. The function, being in aid of the wounded soldiers, will appeal to all followers of sport as one which they should attend and support in the usual manner.

The team of players from the Eastern States of America, consisting of Williams, Church, Washburn, and Mathey, that left for California to meet a side from the west, broke its journey at Pittsburg in order to compete in the clay court championships. The visitors annexed all the prizes in the singles and doubles. Three of them qualified for the semi-final of singles out of a very large number of entries. Possibly there would have been four, but for Williams being drawn against Mathey in the round before the semi-final. Even so, another Eastern player—Niles—gained the fourth place. Williams then beat Niles, and followed this by defeating Church in the final. Church and Mathey beat Williams and Washburn in the final of the doubles.

On the last day the spectators had a demonstration of how courts could be dried rapidly. Rain fell in torrents before the completion of the singles, lasting for an hour. When it ceased the courts were covered with deep water. The Eastern players could not remain until next day, so it was determined to see if the courts could be made fit for play. The bulk of the water was swept off a court with brooms, and as a section of the court became visible it was sprinkled with petrol. When a match was applied there was a burst of flame, followed by clouds of heavy black smoke. The flames would burn fiercely for a minute or two, and as they died away patches of court appeared magically dried. So by instalments the whole court was dried; then, when rolled and the lines marked, the matches were proceeded with and completed. Clay courts in this respect have an advantage over grass, but the petrol method of drying must be somewhat expensive.

The Mudgee Tennis Club's championship tournaments have been won by the following:—Captaincy, G. Mogg; gentlemen's doubles, G. Mogg and J. Mills; ladies' singles, Miss Ada Mills. G. Mogg has enlisted, and goes into camp this week.

ROWING.

NEW ZEALAND CHAMPIONSHIP

J. Hannan, who is a New Zealander, is to row William Webb, of Wanganui, for the sculling championship of the Dominion on September 24. Hannan has arrived at Wanganui, where the match is to take place, but evidently finds himself in need of some further coaching or requires expert advice in some other respect; otherwise he would not have cabled Mr. Harry Floyd to come over to Wanganui immediately. When Hannan was in Sydney a year or so ago learning how to scull, Mr. Floyd assisted him materially, and spent a lot of time with the young New Zealander, instilling into him the correct method of plying his sculls. Since the Webb-Hannan match was arranged it was freely rumoured that Mr. Floyd intended going over to join Hannan's camp, and no doubt the news reached the challenger, who, of course, would have been only too glad of further tuition during the last month prior to the race. But Mr. Floyd does not intend going over even to see the match, having arranged a trip to Java. As far as is known, Hannan has had no one to keep him up to the mark in his rowing since he left Sydney, which is a big handicap on a man so new to the game as he is. If Webb has recovered anything like his old form—and it is believed that he has—Hannan will need to be a much improved sculler if he is to win.

It is just 45 years ago since the Sydney Rowing Club was formally opened at the east side of Circular Quay, where the P. and O. Wharf is now. In the long interval the club, like most of the other amateur clubs, has had its ups and downs, but for many years past figured as one of the most successful of the clubs financially. Perhaps the approaching season will be the worst in the whole experience of the club, as many members have left for the front. Even when faced, though, with a big financial problem at the middle of the current year, the substantial support of the club's old members and officials brought matters to a successful issue.

More of the Leichhardt Rowing Club members have enlisted, the latest batch being as follows:—J. Hoskins, L. Dobbs, C. Guan, R. Symons, and M. Mizon. Hoskins is a son of Mr. T. J. Hoskins, M.L.A., president of the club.

Enterprise Club has lost its captain, T. Rodrick, who has already gone into camp. He was chosen to represent the State in the interstate eight-oar race of 1913, the crew, however, being deprived of a chance in the contest owing to an accident just after the start.

Sydney Pearce has not, so far, proceeded any further with the making of a match with B. Thoroughgood for the heavy-boat championship of the State. Pearce is prepared to sign articles at once, but it seems that the promised backing for the Double Bay sculler has not yet materialised, and he can do nothing further in the matter until it does. Meanwhile Thoroughgood is anxious to come to business as early as possible, as he may retire ere long if no bona-fide challenges are forthcoming.

FOOTBALL.

RUGBY UNION SEASON CLOSES.

The final day's sports and reunion proved a very happy idea last Saturday, and the forces of all the clubs gathered at the Sports Ground had a most enjoyable afternoon. The clubs turned out at their full strength—such as it is, in these times of war depletions, and many men who have had but little football this season arranged to help their comrades try and win the Knock-out Competition. Notably among the shining lights of previous seasons were F. Wood, T. Griffen, L. Seaborn, F. Wellington, etc., and they all met with a fine reception. The games throughout were splendidly contested, and fought out to very close finishes. The two competitors in the final won by the very narrowest of margins in the first round—as the scores were equal the matter of force-downs had to be taken into consideration to decide the question. In all other cases there were but small margins between the sides, and there was more life and dash in the sides than has been the case in any games this year. The final provided the tit-bit of the afternoon, and the Eastern Suburbs and Mosman teams fought out every inch of the journey in a style that kept the onlookers keyed up to the highest pitch of excitement. The older and more experienced side won by gaining sufficient headway in the first half, but Mosman made the pace so fast and willing in the second spell that it seemed certain to win. There is a lack of finish to the back play of the losers, but they made up for this in vigour and dash. Eastern Suburbs, therefore, secured the verdict.

The Newcastle Union has decided to postpone the trip it had arranged to Sydney until next season. The final of the Newcastle-Maitland competition has yet to be played, and will be between Newcastle and the winner of the match East End v West End, at Maitland next Saturday.

Although the Rugby Union's playing season has ended, the work of the rifle club will be continued, and a comprehensive fixture list for September has been issued. The club will drill every Tuesday night at Government House Grounds, and a lecture, mostly on musketry, will be delivered every Friday evening. On Saturday, September 11, the club will furnish a platoon to the battalion parade called by Major Buchanan for that date, and Colonel Wallack will review the clubs. On September 25 a club shoot open to teams of four will take place at Randwick range.

Phil. Ruthven, the Armidale player, who has represented the State in matches against Queensland, New Zealand, and England, has enlisted, and his example in leaving home ties is leading to good results in the district. Already the pressure is being felt, as the New England secretary has notified the Rugby Union that a revised list showing over 100 names from that centre instead of the 42 already listed will be posted in a few days. Ruthven has always figured prominently in the sport of Armidale, and has proved himself a leader in both the active and administrative side of sport.

The Great Public Schools competition has been won by Sydney Grammar School. The premiers won every game but one, in which they made a tie with St. Ignatius. The St. Joseph College and St. Ignatius College were equal for second place.

RUGBY UNION ENLISTMENTS.

The names of Rugby Union players who have been accepted for active service or who are at the front is gradually approaching the 1000—the number it is estimated have gone from the Union's ranks when all the lists are in at headquarters. A few more are to be added to-day. List already published, 1237. Newcastle: A. B. Artis. Balmain: S. Arnott and B. Styles. Western Suburbs Juniors: H. R. Alden, J. C. Nicholls, F. Nicholls, S. A. Weston (Gladesville), G. Jones, W. Scott, J. O'Neill (Five Dock), E. Helson, D. Load, B. Gibson, R. Tyler, F. Butler (Haberfield), S. G. Hawkins (Gladesville). Total, 1253.

RUGBY LEAGUE GAME.

CITY CUP.

Considering that two such well-accredited sides were in opposition, the most important fixture of the opening round of the City Cup competition, between Eastern Suburbs and South Sydney, at the Agricultural Ground on Saturday, provided exceedingly poor football. Both sides went in for indiscriminate kicking, and in this respect Eastern Suburbs had much the better of matters. They did keep the Southern backs running about in search of the ball, but all the latter's kicking invariably found the safe hands of Challis, who replied with interest. There were few passing movements of any continuity. The features of the match were three splendid penalty goals by D. Frawley, who led the Easterners after spelling for a considerable time, and a brilliant try by Harold Horder. The latter's effort was great. Cleverly intercepting a careless pass at his own 25, and veering away from Challis, he covered the rest of the field without opposition. Eastern Suburbs had the better of the first half, and led by six points to three at the interval; but in the second half their superiority became much more pronounced. Challis was at his best throughout, while Tidyman was the pick of the winners' three-quarters. Cubitt was strangely quiet; quite the opposite of what the side's supporters expected to see. The Eastern forwards were superior to the Southern pack in the scrummages; their success here certainly paved the way for the side's ultimate victory; but in the loose Almond, Graves, and Oxley were a more convincing force.

Although Glebe beat North Sydney at Wentworth Park by a margin of 21 points, there was really not such a difference between the two teams. Indeed, the Northerners oftentimes had the better of it, but they failed in that they missed many chances. On the other hand, Hickey, F. Burge, and Company, took advantage of practically every opportunity that presented itself. Neither side gave a great display. There was far too much kicking to make the game very interesting. However, some splendid individual efforts by F. Burge, who scored four tries, Hickey, and Leggo, were witnessed.

The season's premiers, Balmain, added to their successes by triumphing in a fairly comfortable manner at the expense of Annandale. A feature of the match was the play of the Second Grade man J. Craig, at full-back. He played with the coolness of a veteran, kicked with unerring judgment, and tackled fearlessly throughout. Robinson was the most conspicuous performer in the three-quarter line, but he had solid support from Fraser, Johnson, and Halloway. Balmain's forwards were an even set, but on the whole, lacked the crispness and dash that was shown by the Annandale pack.

Although there was plenty of excitement at Erskineville Oval, the standard of play provided by Newtown and Western Suburbs was not high. During the first half the Westerners held their opponents, but after the interval a remarkable change occurred. The Newtown backs monopolised the game, and towards the close had completely overwhelmed their opponents.

AUSTRALIAN RULES.

LEAGUE SEMI-FINAL.

As was generally anticipated, Saturday's engagement, at Rushcutter Bay Oval, between Sydney and Newtown, in the first semi-final game for the season's premiership, drew a record attendance for the season. The day was anything but an ideal one for a favourable exposition, as a strong wind blew in fitful gusts throughout the course of play; and, at times, carried the ball away from the reach of expectant players. However, several on either side showed excellent judgment in anticipating the flight of the ball, and some fine high-marking punctuated the play. The efforts of Tyson (Sydney) during the first half of play was particularly fine, and though the same standard was not maintained by this player during the second half, he was throughout the star of the 36 players engaged. Next to him was Ellis, of Newtown, who came down from the soldiers' camp at Liverpool to help his former comrades, and he received solid support from Wittweer, Blackburn, Furlong, Henderson, Young, Purcell, and Rawnsley. For Sydney, Conn, Harris, Griggs, Moody, and Shannon rendered best support to Tyson, and the fine dashes of the former carried operations, time after time, into Newtown territory. The match was played in excellent spirit throughout, and was well handled by field umpire Barry, whose impartial and strict judgments evoked general commendation. Newtown reaped all the honours of the last 15 minutes of play, and finally gained a well-won victory by the substantial margin of 53 points to 23.

The second semi-final game will be played between Paddington and Central-Western on Saturday next, at the No. 2 Sydney Cricket Ground, and the winners of that game will meet Newtown, on the same ground, on the following Saturday, when the whole of the net proceeds of the match will be given to the Australia Day Fund.

The second grade semi-final, played as the early game at Rushcutter Bay Oval, on Saturday, between Sydney and South Sydney, was of a one-sided character, and ended in an easy win for Sydney by 62 points to 14.

This season's football, as far as the first grade of the schools competition is concerned ended last Friday, the Double Bay Public School winning the Munro King Shield and the State championship. The winners came out on top with an unbeaten record, playing three rounds of matches in their own district, and two inter-district matches, and putting up in all 37 goals 146 behinds, totalling 368 points, while only 12 goals 26 behinds, total 98 points, were scored against them.

BRITISH ASSOCIATION

THE STATE CHAMPIONSHIP.

Merewether's second attempt to dispossess Granville of their laurels ended exactly as the first did, a 3 to 1 defeat; but, in the last effort, they fought ably till the closing ten minutes of two hours' play. Then Granville increased the tension, and Hoffmann and Cottam saw to it that the breaking point was made the most of. Great interest was evinced in the fixture, and such hearty barracking has not been heard for many a match. A big contingent from Newcastle travelled down with the Northern premiers. Granville opened with everything in their favour, but Merewether not only kept them out, but were a goal to the lead at the interval—a magnificent effort by Alberts. The change of ends made Merewether look certain winners; but Gill and Doherty defended stoutly, whilst consistency in the front rank was at length rewarded by an equaliser from Hoffmann. Level scores at the end of ninety minutes' play made an extra half-hour compulsory, and, when time had almost run out, Hoffmann snatched victory for the metropolitan premiers, and then Cottam thoroughly sealed Merewether's fate. The game was a classic, and was ably refereed by Mr. W. A. Wright.

In criticising the elements who successfully played the parts they were selected for, first mention should be made of the wonderful goal-keeping of Elgey, a performance all the more remarkable when it is realised that this is his twentieth year in big football. Next in order was Gill, who defended superbly, although Wallworth and Doherty were as sound without being as obtrusive. Granville were well served by Mobbs, whilst Fairweather displayed unheard-of talent in coping with such foemen as Jennings, Watson, and Coppock. Each half line was splendid, Granville a shade superior to their adversaries. Moore, the pick of the sextet, Hilder and Speddon very effective centres, Pickersgill not quite to standard, and Coppock positively brilliant, despite a leg injury. Hoffmann and Cottam, with Jennings and Alberts, were the dominating features of the forward brigades, Alberts particularly playing to advantage. Davis and Grey displayed great speed and penetrative power, whilst Watson, Dane, Thorpe, and Smith were reliable links in the two effective chains of combination.

Although overshadowed by the late fixture, Corrimal and Sydney provided an entertaining battle-royal, which resulted in the South Coast representatives reaching the semi-finals, thanks to Arthur Jones and McCauley. Sydney failed to make the best of the winning of the toss, their forward brigade playing too loosely, effectively helping Wrightson and McMahon to nullify attempts to beat Drain. Sydney led 1 to nil at the interval, but in the second half Corrimal's consistent pressure brought corner kicks, which were made very good use of.

So much partisan disapproval was evinced when Referee Wright disallowed Granville's goal from a free-kick that it seems seasonable to remind those who differed that a goal cannot be scored direct from a free-kick for an improper throw-in. Elgey's attitude on that occasion—he did not attempt to stop the shot—should have been sufficient. There are eight exceptions to the law, and Elgey benefited by one other exception also: "Charging goal-keeper at wrong time, the charging being otherwise fair." The matches referred to were the determinants for the semi-finals of the State Championship Tournament, and so the 28th final for the Gardiner Challenge Cup is now a matter of weeks, and it will practically close the season. Next Saturday West Wallsend (fresh from their victory over Annandale) will engage the champions at University Oval. Sydney and Corrimal are listed to decide their duel at the same venue on September 11. Pyrmont and Adamstown should supply an interesting early fixture (in the State Junior Championship) to next Saturday's big game.

Balmain has the distinction of being the only Sydney eleven left in the Northern Districts' championship, Annandale having been eliminated by West Wallsend. The game was won and lost in the first half, the victors registering four to the visitors' one, whilst a well-contested concluding section was played, though scoreless. Young Wallsend, West Wallsend, Balmain, and Merewether are left in, and interesting semi-finals appear inevitable. The first of these will be contested at Newcastle Showground on 4th ult., and Balmain will have the prestige of the Metropolis to account for.

Rozelle are to be complimented on their success in winning the senior honours in the Club League. Their success means that, if football is played next season, a big effort will be made to revive Rozelle District Club. Mascot have had a fine season, and, although they did not secure the premiership, for their first attempt, they performed remarkably well. The juniors have now thoroughly interested themselves in the disposition of their State championship, and the outstanding feature of last Saturday's trio of fixtures was the defeat of the Richardson Cup holders (West Wallsend). Adamstown, Balmain Juniors, and Pyrmont stepped to the next round. Greater enthusiasts than the school exponents would be difficult to discover, and, although no interdistrict championship will be contested this season, many Sydney exponents are planning trips to Newcastle, South Coast, Lithgow, and Penrith. Newcastle's representatives again proved too good for the metropolitans last Saturday, Grey scoring the only, and winning, goal. This week-end a party of Newcastle High School players will journey to Sydney to play two matches at University Oval.

Reference was made last week to the dangerous illness of Private J. Edge, A.A.M.C. His death is now reported. Drummoyne has also suffered a bereavement in the death in action of G. Cummings.

METROPOLITAN ASSOCIATION.

The First League competitions were resumed on Saturday, when the hitherto unbeaten record held by Balmain Caledonians was disturbed by Burns Anniversary at the Sydney Grammar School ground, the Balmain team being beaten by 3 goals to 2. Balmain Caledonians, however, still have a substantial lead in the competition with 27 points, Sydney running next with 23, followed by Burns Anniversary with 22 points.

Balmain Caledonians fielded a strong team against Burns Anniversary, the only absentee being J. Lyons, the centre forward; but, although this interfered with the combination, Sutherland, who filled the vacancy, did very well, and was a source of worry to both Hetherington and Anthony, the opposition's full-backs. Burns Anniversary deserve credit for their victory.

Sydney and Lancashire Society finished on Saturday on even terms at Arncliffe, with one goal each. The game was a peculiar one, inasmuch that during the whole of the first half Lancashire Society did not cross into their opponents' territory. Sydney eventually attacked Lancashire Society's goal, but were only once successful in finding the net. Sydney made great efforts to win, but bad shooting by Brown cost them a goal just on time. Alec. Mill was unable to play for Sydney, owing to an injured ankle.

A. M'Lean, who played representative football for the New South Wales Association this season, made his first appearance with the Metropolitan Association last Saturday, and played for Sydney as outside right, and did exceptionally well. His place with the team in the final of the Dewar Cup championship is assured. The replay match in the Charity Cup competition, between Burns' Anniversary and Newtown, will take place at Easton Park on Saturday.

Metropolitan Association players are still enlisting freely, and 16 members of the Lancashire Society Club went into camp on Monday. Following are names of the latest recruits:—Lancashire Society Club, J. Boshell, H. Carter, J. Bayliss, T. Schofield, W. Whillegg, J. Hassell, W. Hartley, C. Holt, H. Simpson, F. White, Heathcote, Sedgwick, T. Clegg, H. Lewis, Fisher, and F. Holt; Balmain Thistle Club, Quillan, M'Nee, Murphy, and M'Millan; Petersham Club, Hagner, Seabrook, Christie, and Anderson; United Slaters' Club, F. M'Gaven, Goodacre, Black, Gillies, Payne, Rowley, M'Nieran, A. Solomon, and J. Henry; St. Paul's Club (Rozelle), Glasham.

CYCLING.

DUNLOP PREMIERSHIP.

Owing to the committee of the Australia Day Amateur Sportsmen's Fund having asked the governing body to suspend all sport for next Saturday, so as to enable members to attend the Cafe Chantant, which is to be held in aid of the fund, the final of the Dunlop Interclub Premiership will be held on the 11th inst., when the holders of the shield, Enfield-Burwood, will meet Central Cumberland, who, by virtue of their wins last Saturday, are the only two teams left in the competition.

The racing in the heats of the contest was decidedly disappointing, and it was expected by followers of the sport and officials that the semi-finals would produce something better. Although the quality of the riders was actually better than that shown in the heats, still the racing from a team's point of view was, to say the least of it, a farce. In the first semi-final, Central Cumberland defeated Marrickville by the narrow margin of two points, and, although the actual count was close, the finish was very straggling, only two riders fighting out the sprint for first place, which was won by W. Lee. Three reasons conduced towards a straggling finish, namely, spills, punctures, and want of combination, the latter showing in a marked degree. In the second semi-final, what promised to be a good race, was spoilt by Western Suburbs being weakened by the absence of G. D. Anderson and L. Beet, both of whom have enlisted, and were in camp. Their places were taken by S. Edworthy and G. H. Bradcock, neither of whom showed anything like the form required to win a hard-run race. In this heat, as in the former, team race methods were absolutely discarded. T. Tracey, breaking away early, and making use of the pacers, increased his lead, eventually winning easily. Hooper won the sprint from a bunch of three others for second place. Western Suburbs were further handicapped for want of pacers, only having two on the road, and those not of the quality required.

Entries closed last night for the events to be controlled by the League of Wheelmen for Eight Hour Day. For the first time for many years, the amateur body will not be represented at the gathering, which, considering the small number of League riders who will be competing compared with former years, is to be regretted.

Aubrey Taylor, who left Sydney in April, for America, to take part in the amateur championships of that country, returned to Australia on Friday a professional, having been declared a professional by the parties governing the sport in America. As this was Taylor's second visit to America, he should have known the risk he ran, and the visit seemed to be ill advised had he desired to retain his amateur status. The sport in America is conducted on vastly different lines to those governing it here, and although the controlling body there is recognised by the I.C.U. and the English amateur body, it is composed of the same officials who control the professional side of the sport.

MOTOR CYCLING.

The flexibility hill climb, which was set down for next Saturday by the Motor Cycle Club of New South Wales, has been postponed till September 11. On Sunday the club has arranged a "billy" run to French's Forest, for side cars and others. Members meet at the Milson's Point punt at 10.30.

The Motor Cycle Club's general monthly meeting will be held to-night, when the question of new clubrooms will be discussed.

Last Saturday's reliability trial was a great success. About twenty started, and as several finished without loss of points, the definite winner will be decided on by working out the secret check control. Alf Robinson's performance on a 3½-h.p. Speedwell and sidecar was a fine one, considering the condition of the roads.

SWIMMING.

AUSTRALIANS IN AMERICA.

Mr. Syd. Eve, the former lessee of the Spit Baths, who is now in America with his two boys, who are known so well here as fine exponents of fancy diving, has written to Mr. W. W. Hill, and tells of the success of his charges. The father is now employed at the Alameda Baths, California, while the sons have taken part in some competitions with marked success. "Our youngsters are making quite a name for themselves," writes Mr. Eve, "by winning all events to date. Both Jim and Dick have beaten the boy champion of San Francisco on four occasions, and have won two very nice silver cups and a number of medals. Dick is staying with his uncle, Syd. Cavill, up the Sacramento River, a couple of weeks. The people here do not swim as much as the Sydney folk, but swimming is gaining ground and interest. It is a pity Miss Durack never came, as there is not a woman here that would come anywhere near her. The U.S.A. championship was won by Miss Cowler (50 yards in 33 3-5s). She defeated Dorothy Becker. I saw Duke Kahanamoku in an exhibition at the Piedmont Baths, Oakland, a few days ago. George Cunha and a host of other Hawaiians were also there. Luke won 50 yards championship in 24 3-5; 100 yards in 54 3-5; and 220 yards in 2m 26 2-5. The last-named is a record. Several enthusiasts here considered before the race that he would only get third place. He, however, surprised everyone in the 220 yards event. The high and fancy divers are some class. I think they are better than ours, although the conditions seem much better. The platform is not so high, and, besides, they wind does not affect them. Then, again, there is always the same depth of water—no tides to contend with."

The 50 yards and 100 yards times of the famous Hawaiian were expected by all who knew him, but the 220 yards figures are a surprise. However, they bear out the remarks made in this column at the time of his visit to Sydney, when it was contended that having gained such speed with his propeller-like foot action, it was only a matter of time for better staying power to be developed to make the stroke just as wonderful over the middle distances as it has proved in sprint races. The world's record is held by C. M. Daniels, who covered the distance in the time of 2m 25 2-5s, in the New York tank (short course). Kahanamoku's figures are, therefore, 1s longer, but he is 2s ahead of the best Australian record, jointly held by Beaurepaire and the late B. B. Kieran, at 2m 28 2-5s.

LAW REPORT.

HIGH COURT.

(Before the Full Bench: Sir Samuel Griffith, C.J., Mr. Justice Isaacs, Mr. Justice Higgins, Mr. Justice Duffy, Mr. Justice Powers, and Mr. Justice Rich.)

COMMONWEALTH CRIMES ACT.

Argument was continued in the case in which constitutional objections were taken to the indictment charging Arthur Kidman, Frederick William Page, Arthur George O'Donnell, and Edward Leslie with conspiring to defraud the Commonwealth by procuring excessive prices for the supply of goods for the use of the Commonwealth military forces. The objections were taken when the trial came on for hearing before the Chief Justice, sitting in the original jurisdiction of the High Court. His Honor reserved the points for settlement by the Full Bench, and set out the following questions:—

Whether the Commonwealth Crimes Act of 1915, so far as its provisions are retrospective, is within the competence of the Commonwealth Parliament?

Whether the High Court has original jurisdiction in respect of offences against the common law?

Whether the Amending Judiciary Act of 1915 conferred jurisdiction to deal with offences against common law?

Whether the Commonwealth is a party to the indictment?

Mr. Mitchell concluded his argument on behalf of Kidman.

Mr. E. A. Barton, instructed by Messrs. Dowling, Tayler, and McDonald, appeared for O'Donnell. He supported the contentions of Mr. Mitchell against the validity of the retrospective sections of the Act.

The case stands part heard.

SUPREME COURT.

NO. 1 JURY COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Pring and a jury of four.)

DISPUTE OVER WHEAT CONTRACT.

Brunton and others v R. S. Howard and Sons, Limited.

Mr. J. L. Campbell, K.C., and Mr. Delohery, instructed by Messrs. Minter, Simpson, and Co., appeared for the plaintiffs, and Mr. Rolin, K.C., Mr. E. M. Mitchell and Mr. Street, instructed by Messrs. Sly and Russell, for the defendants. This was an action brought by John Spencer Brunton, Walter Thomas Brunton, and Stewart Dudley Brunton, trading as Brunton and Co., flourmillers, carrying on business in Sydney, against R. S. Howard and Sons, Ltd., grain merchants, to recover the sum of £425 9s 6d, under an agreement entered into on November 2 and 3, 1914, in consideration of the plaintiff's agreement to cancel another contract, of July 29, 1914. The plaintiffs' case was that on the date last named they contracted with the defendants to purchase from them 12,000 bushels of "f.a.q." wheat at a certain price, to be paid by plaintiffs on the terms that defendants should deliver 2000 bags of f.a.q. wheat in December, 1914, and 2000 bags f.a.q. wheat in January, 1915. At the time of the contract, and up to the time of the agreement, upon which plaintiffs now sued, the defendants had not the wheat specified, and were unable to obtain it, except at a price much greater than the price which the plaintiffs agreed to pay. In these circumstances plaintiffs on July 29 agreed to cancel the contract, provided that defendants would pay to them in the month of December, 1914, the difference between 4s 6d per bushel and 5s 3½d per bushel on 12,000 bushels, amounting to £425 9s 6d, the sum now sued for. The defendants, however, had failed to carry out the arrangement.

Defendants pleaded that the contract of July 29, 1914, was made in New South Wales prior to the passing of the Wheat Acquisition Act, 1914, and was one for the sale of New South Wales wheat, 1914-15, to be delivered in this State. It had not been completed by delivery prior to the passing of the Act, and the defendants said that the agreement as to cancellation was subject to the proviso that the defendants agreed to give to the plaintiffs preferential rights to purchase from them all the 1914-15 New South Wales wheat, which might thereafter be offered by sellers to the defendants, to be delivered in this State; and the plaintiffs to pay the defendants the same price as other buyers might offer to them.

It appeared that after the making of the original contract, the Necessary Commodities Control Act had been passed, under which the Government had power, among other things, to fix the selling price of wheat, and on October 16 the selling price of 4/6 per bushel was fixed. Mr. Campbell pointed out that, as a matter of fact, the administrators of that Act considered that it did not apply to new wheat at all, but only to old, and later on the Wheat Acquisition Act was passed, and no doubt the proclamation issued under that Act referred to the new season's wheat, as well as the old, and the price fixed was 5s 6d. Following upon the passing of the Act, the representative of the defendants had a conference with plaintiffs, and the agreement as to the cancellation of the original contract was arrived at.

By consent, a formal verdict was entered for defendants by direction of his Honor, with leave reserved to the plaintiffs to move the Full Court to have it set aside and entered for them.

VERDICT BY CONSENT.

Tomkins v Turner.

By consent, a verdict was entered for plaintiff, Hilda Constance Tomkins, in the sum of £250, which was to include costs. Mr. Minter (of Messrs. Minter, Simpson, and Co.) appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. McKean for the defendant. The dispute arose out of certain work done by defendant in connection with some business of the plaintiff.

NO. 2 JURY COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Ferguson and a jury of four.)

VERDICT BY CONSENT.

Rosenfeld and Co. Proprietary v A. W. Cormack, Ltd.

Dr. Brissenden, instructed by Messrs. Mark Mitchell and Forsyth, appeared for the plaintiffs, and Messrs. C. H. Coghlan and Co. for the defendants. In this action, which was on a bill of exchange, a verdict, by consent, was returned for the plaintiffs on terms filed in court.

ALLEGED LIBEL.

Marks v "Sunday Times" Newspaper Company, Limited.

Mr. Shand, K.C., and Mr. Sanders, instructed by Mr. P. M. Sanders, appeared for the plaintiff, and Dr. Brissenden and Mr. Bavin, instructed by Messrs. Read and Read, for the defendants. This was an action brought by Ernest George Marks, journalist, against the "Sunday Times" Newspaper Company, Limited, to recover compensation for an article published in defendants' newspaper, which he complained of as libellous. His case was that he is the author of a literary work entitled "Napoleon and the War," the first edition of which had been sold out, and a second edition in course of circulation. Plaintiff also had in preparation a second literary work tracing the evolution of modern democracy to the Napoleonic wars, and defendants published in the issue of the "Sunday Times" of February 14 an article on "Napoleon and the War," adversely criticising this work, and stating, among other things, referring to the articles: "Actually, in their present shape they are revealed for what they are—the hastily strung together extracts from a copious but not very intelligently constructed collection of notes concerning the Wars of Destiny. The [illegible] with which Mr. Marks invests some of the [illegible] is really laughable." Plaintiff said that the article was false and malicious; that it had injured his credit and reputation as a journalist and author, that it had held him up to public ridicule and contempt; and that it had seriously affected the sale of the second edition of "Napoleon and the War" and the publication of his second work, "The Evolution of Modern Democracy." Damages were laid at £5000.

Defendants pleaded not guilty.

The case stands part heard.

IN EQUITY.

(Before the Chief Judge, Mr. Justice Simpson.)

IMPORTANT MINING SUIT.

YERRANDERIE MINING LEASES.

Silver Peak Mines, Ltd., v Williams and another.

Mr. Langer Owen, K.C., and Mr. Davidson, instructed by Messrs. A. J. Tayler and Greenwell, appeared on behalf of the plaintiffs, the Silver Peak Mines, Ltd., and moved to continue the interim injunction granted by his Honor, restraining [illegible] Williams, as nominal defendant, on behalf of the Minister for Mines, from further proceeding with the cancellation of the plaintiff company's leases at Yerranderie, in the Burragorang Valley, and from allowing the defendant, Charles Hodges Davis, or any other persons, from proceeding with an application for leases of the lands comprised in the company's leases, and for an injunction restraining the defendant Davis from further proceeding with his application to enter the property, and from interfering with the company's leases.

The statement of claim set out that in October last the Mining Warden granted the plaintiffs a suspension of the labour conditions for the purpose of carrying out improvements necessary for the [illegible] working of the mines on the leases, which improvements were not completed when the period expired. An application for a further suspension was refused by the warden in February last, and subsequently a notice appeared in the Government "Gazette" declaring the leases cancelled as from 11.20 a.m. on June 1 last. It was alleged that "defendant" notice of the cancellation had been given to the defendant Davis, (who, it was alleged, was the general secretary of the Federated Mine Employers' Association of Australia), or his agent, and that at 11.20 a.m. on that date Davis purported to peg out plaintiffs' leases, and now claimed that by virtue of the "Gazette" notice plaintiffs' leases were void, and that he was entitled to them. Davis made application for the leases to be granted to him, and against that application they lodged an objection. The matter came before the warden on June 28 last, when he recommended that Davis's application be granted with respect to mining lease No. 1, and refused in respect of others. It was further alleged that Davis had also been granted authority to enter leases on private lands, held by plaintiffs.

Mr. Bethune, instructed by the Crown Solicitor, appeared on behalf of the nominal defendant on behalf of the Minister for Mines, and consented to the injunction being continued till the hearing of the suit. Mr. Armstrong, instructed by Mr. A. C. Roberts, appeared for the defendant Davis, and opposed the application, submitting that there was no case in which his Honor would grant an interlocutory injunction.

After hearing argument, his Honor decided to continue the injunction till the hearing of the suit.

SECRET PROCESS IN PHOTOGRAPHY.

Chatfield v Stephen and another.

Judgment was delivered in respect of the demurrer raised by counsel for the defendants in the suit of Robert Percy Chatfield v Adam Stephen and Robert Sands, in which plaintiff asked that the defendants be ordered to specifically perform an agreement, in which, it was alleged, that they had covenanted to sell to him the secrets and patent rights in a special process and improvements in half-tone photo. and chromo photo-lithography and letterpress.

Counsel for the defendants demurred to the statement of claim, and submitted that, as the plaintiff had not formed and registered a company in the terms of the agreement, he had no rights under the agreement, and that the agreement was not capable of being specifically enforced by the Court. It was admitted that plaintiff had attempted to form a company.

His Honor, after setting out the facts, said the demurrer was based on the ground that no company had yet been registered by the plaintiff. It had been contended that, on the true construction of the agreement, a company must be formed before June 30, 1913. The time had been extended to February 25, 1915, but he thought it was clear, whatever the true construction of the contract was, that a company was to be formed on or before February 25, 1915; and that that was a condition precedent in the agreement. His Honor also thought that, from the nature of the contract, time was the essence, and that as a company had not even yet been registered, the plaintiff was not entitled to a decree for specific performance, and the demurrer must therefore be allowed with costs. Plaintiff was given leave to amend his statement of claim, if he wished to do so.

Plaintiff was given a week to amend his statement of claim; in default of any amendment, the suit to be dismissed with costs.

Mr. Davidson, instructed by Messrs. A. J. Tayler and Greenwell, appeared for the plaintiff. Mr. Maughan, instructed by Mr. C. L. Tange, for the defendant Stephen; and Mr. S. A. Thompson, for the defendant Sands.

(Before Mr. Justice Harvey.)

ALLEGED CONTEMPT OF COURT.

Kilner's, Limited, v Kilner and others.

The matter of the application on behalf of Kilner's, Limited, general carriers and removal contractors, of 41 Broadway, Glebe, plaintiffs in the suit against Alfred Kilner and others, general carriers and removal contractors, of George-street West, Sydney, for a writ of attachment against the defendants, Alfred Kilner, Robert Sydney Ferns, and Emily Clara Ferns, for alleged contempt of Court in using the name "Kilner" in connection with their business, otherwise than in accordance with the order of the Court of May 21 last, and in advertising and displaying on their premises and vehicles statements calculated to induce the public to believe that their business was connected with the business of the plaintiff company, was mentioned.

His Honor said that the defendants having complied with the directions given by him when the matter was last before the Court, he would make no order, except that the defendants pay the costs of the motion for attachment, as they had been guilty of certain breaches of the order for injunction.

With respect to the suit, his Honor, by consent, made a decree in terms which were signed by counsel and filed in Court.

Mr. Maughan, instructed by Messrs. W. G. Parish and Stephen, appeared on behalf of the plaintiff company, and Mr. Flannery, instructed by Mr. J. J. Jagelman, for the defendants.

Australian Steamships, Ltd., and others, v Ship Kareena.

Mr. Weston, instructed by Messrs. Sly and Russell, appeared for the claimants, the owners of the steamer Burwah; and Mr. Sullivan (of Messrs. Sullivan Brothers) for the crew of the same vessel. It appeared that the claimants brought a suit against the owners of the steamship Kareena to recover for salvage services rendered to that vessel by the Burwah in towing the Kareena back to Moreton Bay after she had become disabled by the breaking of the tail shaft, while the vessel was about six miles from Point Lookout, on a voyage from Brisbane to Sydney. The suit was afterwards settled by the payment of £1250 to the claimants, and the present application was one for the apportionment of the amount between the owners, officers, and crew of the Burwah.

His Honor, after hearing some evidence, taken de bene esse, reserved his decision.

Mr. Maddocks Cohen appeared for the accused, who pleaded not guilty.

Accused admitted being in the house. He said he had been drinking heavily, but denied setting fire to the house.

The jury returned a verdict of not guilty.

Holywood was then charged with the larceny of certain articles from the house. He pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to a month's imprisonment.

In the case at the Central Criminal Court on August 30 last, in which Joseph Alexander Hamilton, was charged with having murdered Alice Constance White, at Sydney, on June 13 last, Mr. Moriarty, instructed by Mr. T. J. Hughes, appeared for the accused.

WAR AND ITS OBJECTIVE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Human effort is of little value without a definite objective. Our objective during this war is to win decisively, with a minimum loss of life. This paramount consideration is being overlooked by those who are urging that Australia should not respond to Messrs. Vickers' call for mechanics, on the ground that the place for our men to make ammunition is here. It is at once the duty, and the desire, of the manufacturers of this State, and their staffs, to assist the Minister for Defence in the difficult enterprise of making war supplies, with a view to attaining the above main objective, while, at the same time, making Australia more self-dependent in the matter of defence. The latter object should not, however, be allowed to form an obstacle to the former.

The history of this State's efforts in ammunition making is well known to all the engineering firms. When the Premier initiated the movement here, it was understood that shrapnel shells were urgently needed; and for many weeks efforts were made to secure the necessary particulars, one or two shops even making some shell cases to the data available. Then it was made known that high explosive shells only were wanted, and the protracted delay, awaiting details from the Imperial authorities, was repeated, culminating in the Minister's announcement in your to-day's issue to the effect that the specifications are now ready for high explosive shell cases and fuses, and that Australian steel has almost passed the necessary tests. At the same time, English files are received showing that Mr. Tennant recently informed the House of Commons that "there is no lack of production of shell bodies, and that it is the production of other components that entirely governs the output." This illustrates the difficulty we have here in following the changing requirements of the war.

Now let us consider the position at home. Early this year Mr. Asquith stated that the Allies would be in a position of superiority in arms and men by the end of the year. The obvious inference is that we shall be in an inferior position until then. A little later, the Minister for Munitions said: "The superiority of the Germans in material was most marked in heavy guns, in their high explosive shells, in their rifles, and, perhaps most of all, in their machine guns. These have proved to be about the most formidable weapons in the war. They have superseded the rifle, they have almost rendered the rifle unnecessary. . . . The difficulty is that these weapons cannot be improvised in a short time. The machinery for making machine guns takes eight or nine months to construct before you begin to turn out a single machine gun. . . . It is vital for the life of our people that every available machine gun which can be produced should be turned out without the least delay." This explains why our brave ally Russia, even with the present terrible pressure upon her, promptly denied the "Times" statement that her Government was looking to the Western Allies to advance. Much as she wanted immediate relief, she would not have it at any risk to the ultimate issue. And shall our view of the main objective be any less worthy of the Great Cause? Vickers's call for mechanics indicates that all the extensive machinery and the large number of minutely-accurate gauges are now ready for the unimpeded manufacture, on a large scale, of those machine guns which are essential for keeping down the loss of life, not only of the British in Europe, but also of our own troops in Gallipoli. Is this, then, the time to allow any lightly-considered parochial objection to block the way? Surely every man who is willing and qualified, and who is not imperatively required here should be not only allowed, but also encouraged, and, if necessary, assisted to go, and thus add to Australia's already splendid record, yet another genuine service towards attaining the main objective.

HIS MEXICAN WIFE.

BY ARTHUR APPLIN.

(ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.)

CHAPTER II.
THE BOMBSHELL.

Sir John Boddington pushed his chair back from the bureau at which he sat, and, raising his head, smiled at his son and daughter. And his eyes grew tender.

"You'll do, George! Yes, you'll do very well. By gad, it takes me back thirty years or more to look at you."

He turned to his daughter and beckoned her a little closer. He gazed at her a long time without speaking, and when he spoke his voice was very low, softened by memory and forgotten days.

"You look very beautiful, Sylvia, my dear. You remind me of——"

"Of her mother, I hope—as she looked twenty years ago!"

Lady Boddington had entered the study unperceived, and was standing behind her two children. Sir John rose from his seat and bowed low: "Your Majesty, I was not aware of your presence!"

And then all four, mother and father and the two children, broke into hearty laughter. For Lady Boddington and her son and daughter were just starting for a fancy dress ball given by the Darnleighs, who lived some fifteen miles away. The engine of the motor car was already humming outside the front door. Lady Boddington was going as Queen Elizabeth, while Sylvia and George had chosen the costumes of a Mexican girl and a Mexican cow-puncher respectively.

Still laughing, Boddington kissed his wife's hand. "I suppose I dare not embrace your Majesty? My dear, you look magnificent." He turned towards his daughter. "And as for Sylvia—well, don't lose your heart or your head."

She nestled close to her father and stroked his cheek lovingly. "You know I have already lost my heart, so I suppose my head's safe, Daddy! Now look at me again and tell me if my dress is quite correct. I shan't rest until I've danced the tango in it. It's just heavenly, isn't it? Do Mexican girls really wear clothes like these?"

Sir John Boddington nodded. Though there was laughter on his lips his eyes were still heavy with dreams. "Yes, or they did thirty years ago." He sighed. "Where's Daunton?"

"Here I am," a cheery voice replied from the hall. "Rather ashamed to show myself, because I'm not in fancy dress."

"Isn't it a shame!" Sylvia cried. "I tell him he shan't have a single dance. He might at least have blackened his face and gone as a negro if he couldn't think of anything else."

"Burnt cork comes off, you know," her brother said slyly.

Sir John glanced at the clock. "You had better hurry or you'll be late. It'll take you an hour to drive there, the roads are so bad. Off with you!"

Sylvia was the last to leave the room. A breeze from the front door blew through the hall, and a stray lock of brown hair tumbled across her sun-kissed cheek. Boddington had seated himself again at the writing-table. Suddenly Sylvia turned and ran across the room to his side:—

"It's an awful shame to leave you alone, Daddy. I do wish you were coming."

Sir John beamed. "I'm too old for fancy balls, my dear; besides, I've had my fun. Thank heaven, I'm not too old to remember the joy of dancing and singing and loving under the stars. Just enjoy yourself—and see that your mother has a good time, too. You look a picture, Sylvia."

"Just like the girls you used to meet and dance with away in old Mexico city, Daddy?"

"Just like the girls I used to meet and dance with away in old Mexico city," he echoed. "You'll set all the young men's hearts beating, Sylvia."

She shook her head. "There's only one young man for me, Dad. I'm only eighteen and a half, but I know it—Bill!"

At that moment William Daunton's voice was raised lustily, telling Sylvia they were all waiting for her in the motor car. Blowing a kiss to her father she danced out of the room.

The door banged noisily behind her. A moment later the front door shut. The throb of the motor rose loudly, then slowly died away. And silence came.

Sir John Boddington sighed, and leaning forward rested his arms on the writing table and gazed across the room, his eyes fixed on a picture hanging on the wall. Boddington owned many valuable works of art, but this could scarcely be numbered among them. It was a post-impressionist picture of a street in old Mexico. The colouring was strong and vivid; it was full of atmosphere. Above the picture were two old-fashioned duelling pistols; a long Mexican stockwhip, a curious silver-handled dagger, the blade beautifully inlaid, and a couple of Mexican hats—the third had been taken down that day for his son to wear at the fancy dress ball; also an enormous pair of silver spurs.

A long time Sir John Boddington sat in the same attitude. Twice the clock chimed the passing of the hour, but he did not hear it. Very seldom now dreams came to him. Very seldom he allowed himself the luxury of retrospection. But to-night he had gone back twenty, thirty, forty years.

It was in this very room he had stood facing an irate father who had given him a hundred pounds, a ticket to California, his blessing—and request not to return to the paternal roof until he had learnt how to live, how to work and earn his own livelihood.

Thirty-five years ago. From California he had drifted into New Mexico. Yes, undoubtedly he had learnt how to live there. How to love—and how to hate!

A maid-servant entered the room with a tantalus, syphon of soda water, and glasses. She placed them on the table and asked her master if anything else was wanted. He started from his dreams and passed his hand across his eyes, sweeping away the vision of thirty years ago. He looked at the rosy-faced, prim servant, he gazed round the luxurious oak-panelled room of his country house, and again he sighed—but not regretfully now.

"No, I shall not want anything else, Hammond. Tell the servants they can go to bed. I'll see that everything is locked up."

"Thank you, sir."

"Let me see, when does Brookes with the rest of the servants come down from Curzon-street?"

"To-morrow morning, sir."

Just as she was closing the door the ringing of an electric bell echoed from the basement. At the same moment the grandfather clock chimed the hour. Ten o'clock. Boddington frowned.

"Is that the front door bell?"

"I think so, sir."

"Surely no one can be calling at this hour. See who it is."

Standing up, Boddington commenced to collect some of the papers and documents scattered about his table. He had been turning out a huge oak chest that stood in a corner of the room, opposite a large safe partially concealed by great tapestry curtains that hid the wall behind his bureau. The contents of that old oak chest had stirred memory. There were papers and deeds relating to happenings that had occurred before his father's death. The waste-paper basket stood by his side. Boddington intended to go through the contents of the chest that night and make a clean sweep of the past.

The servant entered the room again. "Two gentlemen and a lady to see you, sir." She held a silver tray with a card on it.

Boddington looked at the card: "Mr. S. Amery, Hotel Imperial."

The name was not familiar. "Two gentlemen and a lady? Did they say their business?"

"No, sir. The gentleman who gave me the card seemed very glad when I said you were at home."

Boddington glanced at his watch. After a moment's hesitation he told the servant to admit them.

Pushing aside the papers and documents, he stood with his back to the fireplace, waiting.

His visitors were announced: "Mr. Amery, Mr. Laronde, Miss Miriam Guryado."

The door closed. Boddington looked first at the two men, then at the woman. They stood in a row just inside the door. Boddington failed to recognise one of them. But he had a curious feeling as if the past of which he was dreaming had suddenly been visualised before his eyes.

Perhaps it was the woman. The masses of dark hair, the splendid eyes and the red lips, the slim, supple figure. No English-woman—he saw that at a glance.

"Please sit down." He drew forward an armchair for Miss Guryado. "Tell me what I can do for you."

Amery advanced and held out his hand. "So you've forgotten me, John B! Well, I suppose I have changed a bit. We've all changed. But I should have known you anywhere."

Boddington frowned. The voice was familiar; there was something familiar, too, in the loose uncouth movements of the man. He took the proffered hand.

"I am still at a loss."

Amery jerked his head towards Laronde. "Forgotten Joe, too?"

POULTRY.

Questions relating to fancy or commercial poultry-keeping, diseases, etc., should be addressed to "Ancona," "Herald" Office.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Laying.—The Australian competitions are for six birds in each pen; so an actual comparison cannot be made with your nine. A pen of Orpingtons at Burnley, in the fourth month, laid 157, which would mean 235 for nine birds, a good deal better result than yours. A pen of the same breed at Gatton laid 145 last month, and one of Orpingtons, in August of last year, at Hawkesbury College, laid 182.

Belgium.—The cause of cripples in incubator-hatched chickens is sometimes attributed to the temperature having become too high or too low. But there is nothing definite on the subject. The disease you mention is treated in "Diseases of Fowls." Write to the Department of Agriculture for a copy. You cannot feed fowls by weight or measure. Laying hens will eat much more than non-layers, and growing stock require a still larger amount. Give them as much as they will eat up quickly, or, say, about a handful to each bird.

Spurs.—A fowl affected for the time you mention should be destroyed. Spurs on hens are not uncommon, and appear on Leghorns more frequently than other breeds. Spurs are not defects.

Auburn.—There is no breed of fowls to answer the description you give. The feathered legs indicate an Asiatic cross, and as the plumage is white, and body bulky, the parents may have been a Langshan and white Orpington.

Armidale.—If the hens are laying when the male bird is placed in the run, the eggs can be relied on as fertile in about a week.

Lakemba.—If you write to the Agricultural Department a copy of each of the poultry publications will be forwarded to you free.

At the current egg-laying competition at Hawkesbury College there are 12 pens of six birds each competing to determine the advantages of good housing, which is frequently claimed as of first importance in respect of egg yield. There are six competitors, who forwarded 12 birds each. These are to be placed in two pens of six each, one with the usual comfortable college roosting-house, the other pen to roost in trees. The result to Tuesday of last week was published in Saturday's "Herald," and showed that for the 21 autumn and winter weeks the 36 hens exposed to all weathers laid 2155 eggs, against 1980 by the 36 kept in the orthodox way. The results are conclusive enough—if fowls do not lay well in winter it is not owing to the climatic conditions.

There was last week a considerable fall in eggs, one shilling per dozen being now the current rate. This price usually obtains throughout August, but owing to short supplies poultry men have benefited by at least 3d per dozen for several weeks past. At the end of last week, however, there was a marked increase in quantities, thousands of dozens reaching the city by road, rail, and boat. If a clearance at the above reduction is not effected, and the cold-storage people hold off, still lower rates must be accepted.

It is every poultryman's experience that the lower price ruling for eggs in the spring months is a better paying one than the high winter rates, owing to the fact that the September and October supplies are usually three time as great as those of the late autumn. For the past dozen years prizes have been offered at the egg-laying competitions to encourage winter-laying, but despite the time of hatching, improved strains, breeds, and feeding, etc., the improvement in the laying for the four winter months is scarcely appreciable. The following are the averages per pen of six birds at Hawkesbury College for the four months, from the fifth to the 13th test, inclusive:—290, 231, 284, 281, 274, 265, 240, 227, 257. In other words, the hens at the 13th competition averaged 43 eggs each for the four winter months, or scarcely 11 eggs each per month. It is the winter scarcity that keeps eggs dear, and no scheme has yet been devised to materially influence winter-laying. Spring is the natural season of feathered stock production, and all attempts to change such have failed.

Another advance in the prices of all descriptions of poultry took place last week, and was due, no doubt, to the limited quantities forwarded. White Leghorn hens, which a few months ago brought half a crown a couple, are now worth double, and heavier hens bring up to 7s. Muscovy ducks brought to 7s, and drakes to 13s 11d per couple; and roosters of moderate quality up to 10s. The shortness and dearness of food for several months resulted in great numbers of all classes of poultry being sold at whatever price could be obtained. The results are now in evidence, and warrant the assertion that poultry of every description will only be obtainable at Christmas at famine prices.

Some years ago from September to Christmas immense numbers of turkeys arrived by rail at the Sydney poultry salerooms, chiefly from inland districts. While this business still continues, not one tenth of the quantities now reach the city, due to the 20 or more rabbit-freezing works, of late years erected in various towns. The proprietors of these purchase the birds by the live weight, pay on the spot, and thus save freight to Sydney, commission, and occasionally some deaths on the way. Blayney, Young, Harden, Galong, Braidwood, Bungendore, and other works on the respective lines have of late been operating extensively in these goods, some places having from 500 to 1000 in store. The goods are in waiting for the Sydney Christmas market, and failing a paying one, there is a good oversea demand.

NOTES.

Mrs. E. M. Hope, of Neutral Bay, who has for a long time been a prominent exhibitor of field spaniels, has decided to clear out her kennel of the breed. Included in the lot are several notable prize-winners, both in this State and in Tasmania. Mrs. Hope's decision to retire from exhibiting is partly due to the fact that two of her sons are leaving for the front.

Mr. J. M. Grant, who some time ago was well known in collie, Irish, Australian, and Scottish terrier circles, is now living at Bowral. He still breeds a few dogs, chiefly Australians and Sydney silkies.

Mr. Frank Roper, hon. secretary of the Cattle Dog and Sheep Dog Club of New South Wales, writes that the parade next Saturday at Leichhardt is receiving good support.

Miss C. P. Brooke, hon. secretary of the Pomeranian and Pug Dog Club, reports that special prizes for the club's show are coming in freely. The show promises to be the best the club has held.

Mr. Peter Clinch, an old dog-breeder, died at Redfern this week, in his 90th year. He was a successful exhibitor of Yorkshire terriers.

PATRIOTIC DOG SHOW.

The recent Patriotic Dog Show at the Agricultural Ground resulted in a substantial profit, estimated at £268 8s 10d. The receipts came to £379 13s 10d, and the expenses to £111 5s. There are still a few returns of tickets sold to come in. The chief receipts were: Entry fees, £113 18s; sales of dogs by auction, £57 12s 6d; gate, £41 13s; tickets sold, £91; donations, £23; raffle of Mrs. Brookes's Pomeranian dog, £17; catalogues, £11 15s.

The principal expenses were: Printing schedules and catalogues, £57 16s; advertising, £18 18s; prize ribbons £14 9s; attendants' wages, etc., £6 15s; general, £15.

The result would not have been so satisfactory if it had not been that the R.A.S. clerical staff worked overtime free of charge. Several of the dog clubs also assisted in the clerical work. Ribbons to the value of £18 were paid for by several clubs.

The committee of the show will meet next Tuesday at Ocean House, Moore-street.

ROYAL SOCIETY AND KENNEL CLUB.

A conference was recently held, at the suggestion of Mr. H. A. Richardson, president of the Kennel Club and Mr. S. Hordern, president of the Royal Agricultural Society. These gentlemen, with Mr. R. A. Musgrave, met the Dog Committee of the R.A.S. to discuss a proposal that the Royal Show should be held under Kennel Club rules.

It was agreed that it was desirable that there should be one controlling body for dog shows, and that dogs should be properly registered. The chief point of difference was that the Kennel Club rules provided that the Kennel Club shall be the final court of appeal for disputes and protests.

On the other hand, the Royal Agricultural Society, and about 100 other agricultural societies are affiliated, and there is a board of appeal elected by the R.A.S. council. It would, therefore, be impossible for any of the societies represented by the board to accept the Kennel Club as a final court of appeal.

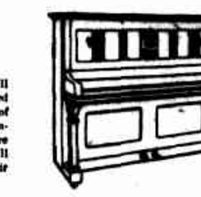

It is likely that the Dog Committee of the R.A.S. will recommend to the council that the dog section of the Royal Show should be held under Kennel Club rules, provided that the R.A.S. court of appeal continued to be the sole court of appeal for the Royal Show.

It is understood that the Kennel Club is favourably disposed to meeting the view of the Royal Society in the matter. In all probability at the next Royal Show the dog section will be held under Kennel Club rules.

FARM AND STATION.

CHILD LABOUR.

Will there be any practical outcome of the controversy that has taken place concerning the question of child labour on dairy farms? No doubt the publicity alone will have a very useful effect. The public attention that has been directed towards this important matter must have a certain value. It is to be hoped, however, that definite action will be taken to secure a thorough inquiry into the subject, and also to prevent any further wrongdoing by a minority, however small the minority may be in this case. A great deal has been stated by different correspondents in these columns within the last three weeks, and both sides of the controversy have been represented well. Further correspondence would mean little else but reiteration, and a continuance of charge and counter-charge, which really have no value in settling an important social question. What is of particular interest is the fact that there seems to be a general agreement that there are individual cases of children being badly treated on some dairy farms.

As to the extent of this evil—there can be no question that it is a grave evil, as it is in any case of ill-treatment of children in town or country—there is a considerable difference of opinion. It is no particular reflection on the dairying industry that some parents or employers should fail in their duty towards the children or employees. The same thing will be found in every walk of life, in all callings, and doubtless will be until human nature generally attains a far higher standard than that to which humanity so far has struggled. But we at least have reached a stage when any such thing as child slavery will not be tolerated by the community. It is immaterial whether the child is toiling on a dairy farm or in a city factory. One of the blackest pages in the world's history is that which records the sacrifice of child life and labour in the past, and no remnant of it is wanted now. Only an infinitesimal and unworthy section of the community can hold any other view. Where any child is being overworked on a dairy farm, or elsewhere, those responsible should be punished. The great majority of dairy farmers will support that attitude, actuated by exactly the same sentiment that makes them resent strongly any implication that their industry, as an industry, is conspicuous for bad treatment of children on the farms. Because such an implication is felt there is a demand for an inquiry by a responsible commission. The appointment of such a commission would be a wise step, as we may then hope for some definite understanding of the position, and that is the first step towards a definite remedy. It will then be found whether existing laws are, or are not, sufficient to protect children who are overworked on dairy farms as they should be protected.

That, of course, is a very different thing from preventing children from assisting their parents in the farm work. Any suggestion to prohibit children working on a farm must be opposed by anyone with a practical knowledge of country life. It would be a serious blunder from either a social or economic standpoint, and one directly against the interest of the child itself. There is no connection between the child willingly and happily helping to a limited extent with the work on the farm, as every boy and girl reared in the bush has helped, and the "cow-slave" as pictured by Mr. Fraser. It would be a lamentable thing if a laudable desire to crush an evil should result in destroying a factor for good; and the help that the average country child gives normal parents, possessed of a knowledge of their responsibilities as parents, undoubtedly is a good thing for the child, the parent, and the State. Let the whole matter be inquired into thoroughly, and a sane course adopted, which will punish only when punishment is due.

CHILD LABOUR.

Mr. Donald E. Fraser ("Jimmie Pannikin") writes:—"With Mr. Richard Shepherd, I certainly hope that out of this discussion, we shall get somewhere near the truth. A Royal Commission would get so close to the approximate truth that I, for one, would rejoice greatly. Mr. Shepherd calls my continually-repeated and never-altered, or twisted, or distorted, charge, 'a tremendous climb down.' In the newspaper report of my public address to the Granville Brotherhood in the Granville Town Hall, these words occur:—

I do not for a moment pretend that the majority of children (dairy farmers' children) are treated in this way. That would be absurd. There is, however, the minority, the contemptible minority, who, through ignorance, stupidity, or greed, sweat their own children, and sometimes unfortunate State children.

"Surely this is a plain, straightforward statement. I am not to blame for the impression given that the whole dairying industry is included in my condemnation. That erroneous and iniquitous impression on the public mind (if it exists at all), is due solely to the misrepresentation of my utterances, made by Mr. Shepherd and his followers. At the very beginning of this controversy Mr. Shepherd said: 'Mr. Fraser practically brands the whole dairying community with one of the most brutal charges that can be made against his fellow man—that of parents making slaves of their children for pecuniary gain.' Ever since Mr. Shepherd has been charging me with making sweeping assertions, and attacking the dairy farmers as a body, well knowing I had not done anything of the kind. Mr. Shepherd asks what do I mean by saying: 'Authentic reports of child-slavery come so persistently from every part of Australia where dairy-farming prevails, that the evil appears at least to be latent in this whole industry?' If those do not include the whole industry, what are we to infer from it?' The quite obvious inference is that dairy-farming lends itself, under present pernicious customs and usages, to child-slavery, and that there is overwhelming evidence from trustworthy, reliable public servants—and many others—that the percentage of dairy farmers who make cow child slaves of their own, and of others' offsprings, is too large to be regarded by child-lovers as an utterly negligible quantity. Mr. Shepherd and all others who really have the best interests of the dairying industry at heart, should join forces with me in a resolute endeavour to wipe out the deep and dirty stain that disfigures the great and growing industry."

FOREST AREAS.

DEFINING 5,000,000 ACRES.

The Minister for Lands stated yesterday that the work of defining the 5,000,000 acres of forest reserves throughout the State is proceeding satisfactorily.

"I hope by the end of the year," said Mr. Ashford, "to be in the position of practically having the whole area defined. I intend next session, after the area has been defined, to introduce an Amending Forestry Act, which will provide for the handing over to the Forestry Department of the entire administration of the whole of the area. With regard to temporary forests, arrangements will be made for making them available for settlement when depleted of timber; but, pending that, Crown leases, settlement leases, and so forth, will be entirely under the control of the Lands Department, except for the collection of royalty on timber. A great many harassing conditions have been imposed on leaseholders in the past, and I propose to make arrangements to get over that difficulty. While the forest reserve leases and others are under the control of the Lands Department every effort will be made to induce the settlers to conserve timber for themselves, and steps will be taken to distribute literature on the best kinds of trees to grow in any particular district. I hope to be able to supply all those going in for reafforestation on their own account with trees from the State nurseries free of cost for planting."

STOCK TRANSPORT.

Mr. W. T. Moss, secretary Animals' Protection Society, writes:—In your issue of the 25th instant you had an article, a eulogy on the expeditious handling of stock in Queensland, which might be an instructive example to the railway management here. I know that recently certain instructions were issued to railway officials regarding the careful handling of stock in transit, but after having received numerous complaints pointing to the fact that the cruelty to animals in transit is as bad as ever it was, I can come to no other conclusion than that the railway regulations and instructions are more honoured in the breach than in the observance.

The following has been brought under my notice:—"A few days ago a consignment of bullocks was sent to Bourke from Cornulla station, via Finley. After being three days without food or water they arrived at Finley, and the drover was compelled to leave them in the trucks all night, because the railway employees refused to shunt the trucks for him unless £2 was paid for the work." I have already commented on this "tip" question. It is a disgraceful thing for stock owners to be obliged to tip railway employees to ensure safety for the stock they consign on the railways.

Another case was reported to me yesterday. This I personally investigated. A truck of two-year-old draught colts and fillies were trucked at Richmond for Inglebura on the 24th instant, and upon arrival at Flemington siding on the 25th instant of the 11 trucked nine were down and apparently injured in the truck. A staff of drovers, with the assistance of railway officials, had some difficulty in removing the injured animals. One was so bad it had to be destroyed. Two others that may recover were removed in a lorry and placed in slings. Two were left in a yard adjacent to the siding. One of these I put out of its misery; it was badly injured, and one eye gone. Another with an eye gone and in a bad state may recover if slung and cared for.

From what I can gather, there was more shunting than was necessary. The animals were consigned to Inglebura from Richmond, a distance of about 40 miles. Why they were brought to Flemington and not uncoupled at Granville and sent to their destination is a puzzle that is disturbing the owner.

These matters should be subjects for strict and urgent inquiry by the Railway Commissioners.

The Living Room
—in our £100 Furnishing Scheme.—

THE illustration above shows the Living Room in our £100 Furnishing Scheme. The Furniture is, for the most part, made of solid Oak, and well seasoned. The design is of the "Craftsman" type, and peculiarly adapted to the severe conditions of Australia, with its sudden changes of temperature.

The Furniture is strikingly handsome, conscientiously made in every detail, and comprises:—4ft 9in Oak Sideboard, with bevelled Glass back, good Cupboard and Drawer accommodation; Oak Dinner Waggon, 3ft wide; Oak circular Table, 4ft in diameter; Settee, with loose seat cushion covered in Roanoke; 4 small Chairs with drop-in seats to match; an Oak Rocking Chair, with Roanoke seat; a "Morris" Chair en suite, and a very comfortable and well made Easy Arm Chair, covered in Cretonne.

UPPER MURRAY IRRIGATION.

The Premier has received a report from Mr. Dare (Acting Commissioner for Water Conservation and Irrigation) relating to Upper Murray waters.

"For some time past," he states, "an investigation has been in progress with regard to the site of the large storage dam on the Upper Murray provided for in the schedule of the Murray Waters Act. This dam is to provide a storage of 1,000,000 acre feet, or nearly one-third more than the capacity of the Barren Jack dam, and will rank among the largest works of its kind in the world. The investigation is being carried out under the joint direction of the State Rivers and Water Supply Commission of Victoria and the Irrigation Commission of this State, the cost being borne conjointly by the two States. In each of the sites tested the rock has at some portion of the cross-section been found at a great depth, from about 140ft to over 200ft below the surface. Before a final decision can be come to with regard to the dam site further investigation will be necessary."

HARVEST LABOUR.

"Station Hand" writes:—"Ranchero Bueno," in his modest request for 40s per week with a cottage and small holding in return for farm employment, which is to allow him time to keep cows and grow vegetables, etc., is really sublime in its Arcadian simplicity. Does he think farming an Eldorado? 'School Teacher,' a Government official, in a nicely ring-fenced profession, well paid for the few hours per week which he works, and also full pay for all holidays, together with other advantages unknown to the farm and station hand, coolly proposes to rob the real rural worker of the chance of a little extra pay, by taking on harvesting at a low rate on the pretext of serving his country. It is a cheap holiday the teacher is after as he saves his salary, gets board and lodging, with some pocket money thrown in, in return for labour which is, after all, of very doubtful value. This is to be done on the plea of patriotism instead.

The farm and station hand works all the year round at from 20s to 30s per week, the latter a rare figure. His hours are long, with a tendency to expansion. His hut accommodation is often, to put it mildly, very indifferent, and his food has since the war received a considerable amount of reduction in quantity and quality. This man has to know his business well at all points. He gets no holidays. His Sundays are encroached upon, and he is liable to the sack at all times. Yet school teachers and others like him coolly propose to undercut this poor pay in the name of patriotism. I would also ask our Ministers how this tallies with their "preference to unionists" policy in respect of other trades. I think, as do many other rural workers, that this incursion of outsiders is about the last straw, and that the farming and station work, already far from attractive to many good men, will no longer have any hold for them, and as an answer to such gross injustice farm labour will be scarcer than ever.

"Cityman" writes disputing "Countryman's" ideas about harvesting:—"I have done eight seasons of it, and can say it requires skilled and special labour. I have been amongst New South Wales and Queensland farmers, and they always say, 'I want a man that has been at the game.' It requires a hardy and experienced man to do harvesting work in the broiling sun all day. I think there will be a lot of 'smoke-o's' in the field this year. The horse work in stripping wheat requires a thoroughly experienced man, as there are four to six horses to drive, and the levers and machinery to work at the same time."

THE HARVEST AND RECRUITING.

"Straight Talk" writes:—Although farmers are anxiously anticipating a huge shortage of labour for the coming harvest, Mr. Holman is addressing a special circular to country centres urging the farmers to send their sons to the front. At the same time the Government is sending out broadcast the "Labour Exchange," supplement to the "N.S.W. Industrial Gazette," containing some hundreds of situations which unemployed men are waiting to fill. From the nature of these applications for employment, one must conclude that the applicants are men of military age, and of good physique. It is these men whom farmers are invited to employ, and "no fees are charged to employers or to employees for the service of the Labour Exchanges." The Premier asks farmers who have trained their sons to plough, and sow, and reap, to send them to the front, and take in exchange Mr. Holman's city supporters, who don't know a plough from a pitchfork, and pay them double wages for their ignorance. The country "shirker" is to be driven to the war. The man who is doing good and necessary work in producing food, is to make room for an unemployed shirker from the city, whose absence would leave no gap in the industrial ranks. It is no wonder that the farmer bucks against the Premier's sudden approval of decentralisation—for recruiting only. It may be good policy for the Premier to keep as many supporters at home as he can, but until the men on the land see fewer "shirkers" at Saturday football matches around the metropolis, and the crowds of eligibles around the registry offices in Elizabeth-street begin to lessen, they are not likely to urge their sons to leave them at the mercy of the Sydney shirkers to get their harvest in.

INDUSTRIAL LEGISLATION.

THE NEW BILLS.

ATTITUDE OF EMPLOYERS.

The Parliamentary Bills Committee of the Employers' Federation of New South Wales has considered the labour bills now being introduced into the State Parliament, viz.:—The Eight Hours Bill, Trades Union Bill, Labour Exchanges Bill, and the Early Closing Bill. There are clauses in each of these bills to which strong exception is taken, and which would, in the opinion of the federation, be detrimental to trading and industrial interests if carried into effect. The following is the committee's report:—

"In the Trades Union Bill provision is made for including political objects. The federation is of opinion that trades unions have now every facility they can possibly require, and should not be given further powers by Statute.

"The present Trades Union Act is administered by the Registrar of Friendly Societies, but it is proposed to substitute in his place a Minister of the Crown. It is contended that the change would open the door to political wire-pulling, and the probable result would be purely political administration.

"A rule is provided compelling any person desiring to join a union to make application to the executive, and await their decision. This is an objectionable clause, and should be eliminated from the bill.

"The federation suggests that any person of good character should be allowed to join a union without ballot or election on payment of an entrance fee and contribution (this is the practice in New Zealand). The Minister's proposal, it is felt, would tend to make unions close corporations, and would practically give a union power to prevent nonunionists from obtaining employment under many present awards.

"The State Labour Exchanges Bill provides that every employer shall send to the Minister each year a return, stating the names, addresses, occupations, periods of service, and apparent age of all persons employed during the preceding year. Such a return, in respect to casual labour, it is held, would be absolutely worthless as a record. For example, takes the wharf labourers, a man may give the name of 'Smith' at one wharf, and be known as 'Schmidt' at another, so that one worker may be accounted for by two or more employers. The same thing applies to nearly all other kinds of casual labour. An objectionable feature of this clause is the almost prohibitive amount of statistical and clerical work it would entail on shipping companies and other large employers of casual labour.

"The Eight Hours Bill provides for both a double and a time and a half rate for overtime as minimum rates according to the class of employment. This is an increase on many of the awards now in existence, and is carried into effect would mean a very serious tax on employers. The federation recommends that the fixing of overtime rates should be left as at present to the wages boards or Arbitration Court.

"Another section gives the Court power to prohibit overtime, for the purpose, it is alleged, of distributing the work available, so as to relieve unemployment. If this was allowed it would seriously hamper many industries. Take the shipping; owing to the exigencies of this industry there should be no curtailment of overtime; to do so means the retarding of trade, loss to the employer, loss and inconvenience to the general public, and no gain to the worker. Similar remarks are also applicable to workshops or factories of limited space or machinery. The federation is of opinion that the employer should be allowed to use his own discretion in the matter of overtime, as he, having to pay a higher rate, is not likely to work unnecessarily long hours, thus increasing the cost of output.

"The Early Closing Bill provides that no person in the employ of a baker shall deliver bread to a customer on the third Wednesday in each month, but provision should be made for the supply to shipping. Ships very often enter and leave on the same day, and as the bill now reads, on such days they would be debarred from getting a supply of bread.

"One section says an employer must apply to the Minister in writing for permission to work a carter certain overtime, and if he is permitted to do so, must pay such carter a rate of overtime as fixed by the Act. This we consider would be an impracticable clause, and should be eliminated from the bill.

"There are many debatable innovations and restrictions in these bills, which are in the direction of giving additional power and privileges to trades unions. How far they will assist the industrial development of the State is quite another matter."

REMEMBER MONTENEGRO.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I have no other resource except to beg of you sufficient space for a few lines as to Montenegro. As far as I know it is the only stricken country that so far has received no money from New South Wales; and I think from Australia, either.

Some time ago I stated through your columns that if any one would give £100 I would cover it with a like sum, and cable the £200 to the Consul-General for Montenegro in London immediately. There has been no response. I must ask again. One patriotic association secretary, in a little place of less than 150 people, has written asking if I would cover all the funds they at present have, some £45, with a like sum, for the good cause. He says, "I am sorry we have not the full hundred." I deeply regret having to keep to the original proposition. The Carcoar Patriotic Committee, uninfluenced by me in the matter, is handing me £20 out of its depleted funds, with the understanding that I am to hold it till I get what I ask for, and confidently expect I am then to cable it with the rest to London. I am ashamed to ask again if this appeal brings no adequate reply.

RANDWICK ASYLUM.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The main thing about the Military and Naval Hospital Home Bill seems to be that it is not wanted for the purpose that its provisions set out to accomplish. Nobody, outside of the Ministry and Sir Joseph Carruthers, has a good word to say for establishing a barracks, capable of holding 1000 men, for homeless and incapable soldiers. Let it be agreed then that this scheme is a hopeless fatuity, in that the building would never be used by Australian soldiers. It comes curiously, too, from the Government that turned out the Governor-General on the grounds that his housing should be a Federal matter, to interfere quite gratuitously with the Federal business of seeing to the needs of soldiers who shall be homeless and incapacitated. This idea was very effectively put out of court in the Legislative Council by Colonel Mackay and Sir Charles Mackellar, the latter stigmatising it as a reversion to the poorhouse system of England. Turning people out of their homes without compensation is becoming a habit with this Government. Their attempt now is upon the Randwick children, and it is a doubtful point whether the Government has the power to compel them to live in any conditions not approved of by their parents or guardians. Surely Mr. Griffith will be antagonising a large section of his most ardent supporters if this bill becomes law without some drastic amendments, for it is from the labouring classes that most of the children of Randwick come.

CRITIC.

THE OPEN-AIR HOSPITAL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Your article in Saturday's issue of the "Herald" has doubtless been read with great interest by many. May I be allowed to add a few details not brought out. One is, that, though the strictest economy is practised in this noble experiment, there is nothing lacking or forgotten in carrying on successful treatment. The best men are available, the newest and most delicate instruments are at hand, and the strictest discipline maintained. The cheapest in the long run is always the best. Nearly 1000 patients are fed within an hour. Again, you refer to the diseases treated, and it is most interesting to find that cases of pneumonia are so very successfully treated. My church paper states that only three out of 72 cases did not recover. That out of 35 cases of spotted fever, i.e., epidemic cerebro-spinal meningitis—a disease which appears to have been very fatal in some of our camp hospitals—only 11 died. Lockjaw seems to have been also successfully treated. Certainly the grand experiment made at Cambridge in humanity's sake, and especially from love for our wounded brothers—some of whom, I believe, are Australians—has been remarkable, the results marvellous. Attention may well be drawn to the work, and it is hoped the example may be vigorously followed in Australia.

I am, etc.,
W. J. GUNTHER.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 1, 1915.

A GREAT REFUSAL.

Mr. Fisher's statement in the House of Representatives that the Government still intends to put its referendum proposals to the vote in December will be read with grave disappointment throughout the Commonwealth. No one will complain that either Mr. Fisher or Mr. Hughes has misled the public into the belief that they would vary the decision given with their approval by a majority of the Federal Labour Conference. The real cause of our disappointment is the belief which has been steadily growing that Ministers would in time realise how abhorrent any political debate will be to the bulk of their fellow citizens, and how dangerous it must be to the national cause. When the Labour Conference was sitting Australians could not imagine that the war would have the significance for them which it is seen to possess to-day. We had not then realised what it means to a people to have a hundred thousand of its sons under arms, to receive heartrending casualty lists almost daily, and to be conscious all the time that for the sake of our own future and our own honour we must send more and more men, and spend greater sums of money. If a representative body of men, with an unfettered discretion, were to-day to consider whether they would compel the nation to vote on grave and debatable outside questions, it is inconceivable that they would decide to do so. The arguments have only to be stated to reveal their own weakness. Ministers no doubt are not put to the same test as a deliberative assembly, because they do not have to listen to the arguments in favour of their decision. But it seemed not unreasonable to hope that they would come by intuition to sympathise with the universal national feeling, to recognise that they cannot wrest the attention of the public from an all-absorbing crisis, and therefore an attempt radically to alter the Constitution is abhorrent to the instincts of patriotic citizens, and a breach of trust towards them in their capacity as electors.

Of the arguments that have been put to Mr. Fisher from time to time two have gained in force during the last few weeks. The first is derived from the effect of the conduct of Government on public opinion. It is the fact that in this country, in spite of all sneers at politicians and public life, one of the main functions of Parliament is to form and mould public opinion. The publicity given to political affairs enables Ministers to decide to a very large extent the importance which events shall assume in the eyes of their constituents. At present, if the opinion of the whole world is the test, there is one event which demands all our attention and all our energies, which transcends every other in importance by as much as birth and death transcend the incidents of every-day existence. If the conduct of Ministers is the test, party politics and catch-words are just as important. We give Ministers the credit for sincerity in their speeches as they give their opponents credit for patriotism. We are sure that Mr. Fisher believes in the necessity for sacrifice and Mr. Hughes in the perils which he described in his recent appeal to the electors. But as long as politics are conducted as if we lived in times of peace these speeches and appeals will never penetrate the imagination of the electors. Men cannot be made to see the need for a violent change in their scheme of life when no change is made in the lives of political leaders. They will go on thinking that this world-wide catastrophe is no affair of theirs as long as they see that Ministers still debate their Constitutional and party problems. The time has long since arrived when Ministers should tell the people that all ordinary concerns must be forgotten while the nation is in danger. In every other part of the Empire the crisis has been marked by a dramatic change in the course of government. In Australia alone no direct appeal has been made by the national leaders. On the contrary the debate is to be transferred from Parliament, where men are politicians by choice, to the constituencies, where electors are to be compelled to vote, and money is to be spent not on the ordinary services of the country, but on this extraordinary popular controversy. Mr. Fisher gave one of the strongest arguments against his decision when in his speech on the Supply Bill he spoke of the danger of seven separate Governments, each piling up its own national debt. It was clear from this speech that Mr. Fisher considers it may be necessary to recast the whole Federal system after the war. He sees the danger of confusion in taxation, and of waste in the diversion of the ability available for political services between the State and the Federal Parliaments. Holding these views, Mr. Fisher must look forward to another referendum when the war is over, since it cannot be suggested that the taxing or the borrowing powers of the seven Parliaments are affected by the present proposals. Yet we are told that these bills which allow two bodies to exercise the same powers at the same time must be submitted now for the general good of the Commonwealth. Mr. Fisher still clings to the belief which politicians usually abandon after a few months of office that a fact ceases to have its correct meaning when a Minister says it is to have another. He still says, no doubt sincerely, that these proposals are noncontentious, because the Government insists that they are necessary. He added, in his reply to Mr. Cook, that the amendments would add to the security of the Commonwealth. Mr. Fisher should give one single instance to show how the Commonwealth will be strengthened if these bills are carried. Until such an instance is given he will find that doubts will arise as to the sincerity of the demand for these bills, and from them doubt will extend to the sincerity of all the appeals for sacrifice addressed by Ministers to the people.

THE WOOL OUTLOOK.

The proposed removal of the embargo on the re-export of wool by the Imperial Government reminds us that a new season is near at hand. Though there is always a good deal of talk about wheat and dairy products, after all it is wool that is our staple product. If wool sells well it is axiomatic that the Commonwealth prospers, if it sells but poorly at low rates then there is no buoyancy in Australia. The relative importance of wool among our products, however, needs no emphasising. It is well recognised, except, perhaps, by those city-dwellers who have succeeded in getting the secondary industries which give them employment out of their true perspective. We are far from setting one class against another, far from desiring it to be understood that any one class is more essential to the community than another. All play their different parts in the general scheme of things. But if there ever was a time when those who grow wool could arrogate to themselves the belief that their labours are more than usually essential to their fellows, it is to-day. Wool, like food and munitions, is an essential to a successful winter campaign. The autumn will soon lengthen out into winter in the northern hemisphere, and the Allied and enemy soldiers in the trenches will demand the warmest of clothing to keep life within them. No one who has not had actual experience in the trenches with the thermometer below zero can form the slightest conception of what our men must face. Fortunately they will be well provided for. Can we say the same of the enemy? If the Allied blockade is anything more than a name, there will be a great shortage of wool in Germany and Austro-Hungary this winter. True, the Germans will have foreseen and provided as far as they are able for their shortage of this all-essential product. But it will take more than the narrowing of women's skirts to make up the deficiency. There may not be one pound of shoddy wasted. But this will make less difference than might be supposed, for all the waste that takes place in Germany, even in normal times, is negligible. In Berlin they have even trained the population to carefully put by the tips of cigars that are ordinarily cut off and thrown away. Once a year these are collected by the appropriate organisation, and sold to the tobacco factories for fillers. So quite a number of hospital cots are maintained. With a people so trained to economy as this there is not much reserve to fall back upon in war times. What there is is being trenched upon to-day. And of the products that need to be made go the furthest, wool is one of the most important.

It is probable that the wool clip of the Commonwealth will fall short of the average this season, for the drought was long and severe, and our flocks cannot be expanded in a moment. The aftermath of the drought ever seems more serious than when the dry weather was still with us. This is, of course, only seeming, for the recuperative process is at work as soon as the herbage begins to grow, and those who know anything of the interior of this country know how suddenly the dried-up paddocks don their coats of green once the conditions are favourable. Whatever the clip may be, it is certain to find a keen demand while the war continues. Lord Kitchener's millions, indefinite though they be, are sufficiently numerous to require enormous quantities of khaki, and though this is of more importance to growers of crossbreds than of merinos, there are now sufficient of the former in the Commonwealth to make it count in the market outlook. One gratifying feature of the wool market under war conditions is the growing importance of local demand. Practically the whole of the woollen mills of the Commonwealth are now operating under orders from the Defence Department, and though this is a little disorganising to those who were building up a local trade for the finer materials, it ensures their being kept very busily engaged for many months ahead. That part of Europe to-day ranged up against us in battle array happened to be the best customer for our wool in time of peace. It is satisfactory in these circumstances that our wool-growers can face another season in so optimistic a frame of mind. It will be well remembered how dark the horizon seemed when the war first broke out, and our staple product lay quite unsalable in the wool sheds inland and at shipping centres. Since then a wonderful change has come over the scene. It is possible that some of our last season's clip eventually found its way into enemy mills. By this time, however, precautions have been doubled, and the removal of the embargo now contemplated makes it clear that the Imperial authorities at least have no fears as to ultimate destinations in future.

MACHINE GUNS.

STATE EXPERIMENT.

The Premier referred last night to the 10 machine guns the State is making at the Walsh Island works.

Mr. Holman said that this number of guns is first being made by the Government as an experiment, and they will be presented to the military authorities. If it is proved, as he hopes it will be, that the guns can be manufactured here satisfactorily, the State will place its plant at the disposal of the Commonwealth Defence Department for the production of guns to its full capacity.

THE WAR TAX.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I have read quite a number of letters in the "Herald" on the subject of the Federal income tax, telling of the effect of the tax on the investor, on the farmer, on companies, etc., but I have not seen any particular reference made to the effect the tax is likely to have upon the Consumer. "Who pays the tax?" asks one of your correspondents. "Why, the Consumer, of course. If he doesn't, then all I can say is that it is going to be a very different kind of tax from what we have been accustomed to. Governments may put on their land and income taxes in the belief—fondest of individuals—that they are getting at the 'fat man,' but my experience is that this fat gentleman, like Dickens's Fat Boy, is a good deal of a joke himself, and he goes on quite comfortably despite all the taxes. When he has to pay a new tax he just tells his agent to put up the rents to pay for it. The men who occupy his offices and his shops pay the tax for him. But the men in the offices and the shopkeepers get the money back by passing it on to the Consumer. Up go prices. Then the Consumer—the butcher, the baker, and candlestick-maker—put in a demand for higher wages, because the cost of living has gone up, and ordinarily they get the increase. Then round again we go in the vicious circle. But the point I want to make now is that there is little hope of getting increased wages in these times. We have to be jolly glad our old wages are going on. The tax will be passed on to us all right, and the workers will have to pay it—and they won't get any equivalent rise in wages either. Land and income taxes they are all the same; the Consumer, the poor Consumer, pays all the time. Better, I say, to have some sort of taxation that all can contribute to in a fair way, instead of a class tax that is not paid by the 'class' at all but by the rest of us.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I read with much interest my friend Mr. Edmund Jowett's letter in your columns last week. I quite agree and condole with him and all the graziers and farmers of South Australia, Victoria, New South Wales, and Queensland who have suffered, and are still suffering, so much from the drought; but I cannot agree with the statements given that a farmer or grazier would have to pay four times as much income tax as a merchant. It does not follow that because a man loses, say, £1000 in 1914 he is sure to make abnormal profits in the next few years. If he makes no income he has no tax to pay, and Mr. Jowett's proposal to average or put losses of two years against profits of three years, would be impracticable, and could not be carried out; and, moreover, a merchant or trader may also have bad years, and may sustain heavy losses of capital and make no income. Mr. Jowett would be on much sounder ground if he argued against the excessive amount proposed to be raised in the present Federal financial year, from July 1, 1915, to June 30, 1916. We are to be taxed to raise an estimated amount of £4,000,000 on the income for the year ended December 31 1914, and before June 30, 1916, it is possible we may be asked to pay Federal income tax for the income earned to December 31, 1915. That is, perhaps, £8,000,000, not to speak of State income tax and land tax. Now presuming that the full amount of the war loan is raised, £20,000,000 by June 30, 1916, the interest cannot be more than £690,000 to £800,000; and even presuming that £40,000,000 is raised within the next 12 months, less than £2,000,000 would be sufficient to pay interest and a sinking fund of ½ per cent. per annum. Therefore, the amount asked is excessive, and can only be used to provide a current expenditure. Mr. Fisher preaches economy, but does not practise it. It would be quite possible to cut out three or four millions of expenditure from the present Budget.

Returning to the income tax, as, according to the census we are asked to give a statement of our incomes to June 30, 1915, it would be better to collect the tax on the year ended June 30, 1915, instead of the year ended December 31, 1914. Trusting the House of Representatives may give the matter careful consideration and alter the date as suggested,

FEDERAL INCOME TAX.

NECESSITY OF ECONOMY.

FINANCIAL COMMITTEE RECOMMENDED.

While disclaiming any pretentions to speak as a financial expert, and saying that the proposed taxation in its higher curves would be to him only of academic interest, Mr. A. Consett Stephen, chairman of the Sydney committee representing income tax payers, stated yesterday that there were some views concerning the Federal income tax proposals which he might express, because they were obvious to all.

"As chairman of the committee which has been meeting and discussing the various phases of the incidents of the Federal taxation," he said, "I am of opinion (1) that before the plan of taxation was issued a clearer statement should have been made as to the exact requirements of the Commonwealth, and how far they were to be met by taxation and how far by loan. (2) That next, and perhaps the most important of all, the Government should have looked round to see in what directions unnecessary expenditure could be cut off altogether, or if that were not possible, what modifications could be made.

"It is evident from the reports as to the Post Office that there has been shameful and wasteful extravagance on all sides there, and, as pointed out by Mr. Anderson, drastic savings and economies could at once be made without in any way impairing the efficiency of the service. In the same way the expenditure in connection with defence seems to have been characterised by extravagance, and in many cases unsatisfactory results, as evidenced by the finding of the commission due to Mr. Orchard's questions in the House.

"Now these are only two or three matters which have come prominently before the public eye lately, and have each disclosed almost chaotic disorganisation. What must be the condition of other departments in the Federal service which so far have not come under the acid of judicial inquiry? Primarily, therefore, there should be a complete reorganisation of Federal services. Having found out where economies could be made here, then the really necessary amount required for the carrying on of the Government of the country could be ascertained and taxation struck accordingly.

"Then, while admitting, as everyone does, that it is necessary to have increased taxation, and everybody being willing to bear it, the next point is how it can be most scientifically and economically adjusted? It is self-evident that the more you take out of the people's pockets and put into the dead weight of mechanical Government expenditure, the less there must be in the people's pockets for their own businesses and enterprises, which are the very life blood and mainspring of the manifold industrial and business activities of the State. It is essential, therefore, that the tax should be kept as reasonably low as possible, so that it will disturb the financial equilibrium as little as possible. It is also evident that if we are to look to capital from abroad to develop the Commonwealth, we must not impose such taxes on it as will prohibit it coming here altogether, especially bearing in mind that capital is already taxed in Great Britain. At present it would bear a triple burden, namely, a tax in England, a tax in the State, and a tax in the Commonwealth. This was one of the matters referred to in the resolutions passed at a representative meeting of taxpayers yesterday. These resolutions speak for themselves as eminently reasonable.

"Now, as they are talking about co-ordinating all the activities of the State so as to make them as productive in every direction as possible, it does seem that as finance is the beginning and end of all such successful co-ordination a permanent advisory financial committee to advise the committee, say, for the next two years, would inspire confidence. It would be invidious to mention names of gentlemen who should be put on this committee, but, assuming it consisted of, say, a dozen representatives of the Commonwealth and States, and that Parliament would be guided by such committee, I think it would be of immense value at a time such as this. It is evident that the British Government have not moved in any of their taxation or other proposals likely to disorganise finance without taking the advice of those who are regarded as experts in the City of London on such matters. There are at least three or four names in this city which immediately come into one's mind in such a connection here, and who would have a steadying and guiding effect upon the financial situation, which, to some extent, must be seriously influenced from time to time by the actions of the Commonwealth.

"In fact, the words of Mr. Gladstone, uttered many years ago, perhaps have more force in new democratic communities than they have in the old. Mr. Gladstone, perhaps the greatest Minister of Finance of any age, uttered these words: 'All Government expenditure beyond the legitimate requirements of the country are not only a political but a moral crime.' And the characteristic mischiefs flowing from financial prodigality are these, that they commonly creep on slowly and quietly, and remain long unforeseen until they attain a magnitude absolutely appalling. Surely at a time like this these words should be written up in letters of gold over the Ministry of Finance in every State and that of the Commonwealth."

A DETERRENT TO ENTERPRISE.

THE CANADIAN EXAMPLE.

Mr. Arthur Pickard, president of the Millions Club and a member of the income tax committee, made the following statement:—

"The Labour party should dismiss the idea from their minds that people who will be called upon to pay heavily under the proposed tax are anxious to shirk their responsibilities. I believe every citizen is quite willing to pay his fair share of taxation which is necessary on account of the war expenditure, but naturally those who will be called upon to pay unduly in proportion to others resent the class incidence of the taxation. And, looking dispassionately at the proposals, it surely is to be regretted that the Government have seized the opportunity for bringing into effect their ultra-class legislation. What is objected to are the steep graduations. All sections of the community would willingly bear their fair share of the taxation. Extreme taxation on the moneyed classes always acts as a deterrent to enterprise, but apart from local discouragement of capitalistic enterprise a more serious effect will be that in regard to English investors who have capital in the Commonwealth. The Federal Government surely cannot have recognised the fact that by penalising capitalists in this extreme manner they have practically served the English capitalists with a notice to quit, and a very peremptory one at that.

"The English capital invested within the Commonwealth is variously estimated at from 250 millions to 500 millions sterling, and it can readily be seen that it would only need a comparatively small portion of this huge sum to be withdrawn to bring about financial chaos. Money will become dearer, and trade and enterprise will get a set-back which might create a crisis. Dear money means higher rents and higher prices. In the end the consumer pays.

"This taxation would have been scarcely felt if it had been spread in an equitable manner, as in Canada, say, by a drag-net duty of 5 per cent. on all imports, and a duty of 3d on tea and 3d on kerosene, and then a Federal income tax of, say, a flat rate of 6d on incomes from £250 to £1000, 1s on incomes from £1000 to £2500, and 2s on incomes over that amount. In times such as these the Government should be careful to err on the side of moderation, and not increase the burdens of the people beyond what is absolutely necessary. Economy should be practised in regard to all expenditure, and a sane policy of taxation should be adopted which would not be likely to have the effect of clogging the wheels of industry, discouraging enterprise, or driving capital out of the country. I hope the Federal Government will see their way clear to modify their proposals to some extent. They certainly must recognise the sound reasons advanced for adopting the first year of the war as the period on which the payment of the tax for 1915-16 will be assessed."

STATE REVENUE.

DECREASE FOR THE MONTH.

The revenue of New South Wales last month amounted to £1,301,395, being a decrease of £26,952 on the returns for August, 1914. The earnings of the railway showed a decrease of £41,987, and the tramway returns fell off by £9027, in comparison with the returns for the corresponding month of last year.

THE MAILS.

The English mail will arrive by special train early this morning—probably about 3 a.m.—and the letter portion will be sent out by the first delivery. There are 666 bags of mails for this State, which is more than the average weekly consignment.

THE WAR.

BALKAN PROBLEM.

THE ITALIANS.

CARSO SUCCESS.

There is no appreciable change on the eastern front. A Russian communique reports a stubborn offensive with large enemy forces in the Prushany region. The Russian armies continue to retreat along the middle Niemen and towards the south as far as the River Pripet.

A French communique states that a violent artillery struggle, accompanied by mine explosions, bomb, and grenade fighting, occurred at a number of places in the Argonne.

Sir John French says that since the 18th there has been no fighting on the British front. There has been some mining, but the conditions are normal.

The Allies on Saturday, according to a Turkish communique, renewed their stubborn attack on Anafarta, and were repulsed with great losses.

Rome newspapers deny the alleged Turco-Bulgarian agreement, and state that Germany is spreading the report in the hope that Roumanian intervention will be avoided.

There are indications that Servia has sent a confidential reply to the Allies, who will negotiate with a view to obtaining further concessions.

The uncertainty of Bulgaria's policy is attributed to the hesitating attitude of Servia and Greece, and also to the fact that a revolution is considered imminent in Turkey.

GALLIPOLI.

ENEMY CLAIM.

"STUBBORN ALLIED ATTACK."

"REPULSED WITH LOSSES."

LONDON, Aug. 31.

Queen Alexandra received in audience Sir George Reid (High Commissioner for Australia), and expressed her admiration of the gallantry of the Australians at the Dardanelles.

A Turkish communique issued via Amsterdam says: "The enemy on Saturday renewed his stubborn attack at Anafarta, but was repulsed with losses. We counter-attacked, and recaptured trenches in the centre, killing the occupants. Our losses were comparatively small. During the last two days our artillery took part in the battle, successfully bombing hostile positions."

A Mitylene message states that unseasonable rains and locusts have damaged the crops in Asia Minor. The acreage sown was only 60 per cent. of the average. The scarcity of labour prevents the garnering of all existing crops. Should the war last till December, the sowings will be still smaller and famine will be in sight.

RECRUITING.

KITCHENER'S INVITATION.

LONDON, Aug. 31.

Lord Kitchener, when thanking Mr. Thomas Fraser for his recruiting efforts in Glasgow, wrote:—"I shall be glad to hear any reasons given by young and suitable men for not availing themselves of this opportunity for service in the field, where they are so much wanted."

CONTRABAND.

THE BATAVIER CASE.

The Foreign Office states that the effect of the decision of the Hamburg Prize Court in the Batavier case, and the refusal to pay indemnity for the Maria, which, laden with wheat, was sunk by the German cruiser Karlsruhe in the Atlantic last September, appears to be to abolish in practice the distinction between absolute and conditional contraband.

The "Daily Chronicle" points out that the decisions make practically any port a fortified place or base, and deprive the owner of the power of exercising his right in international law to rebut the German contention that the goods are intended for military use.

[A cable message on June 25 stated that the Prize Court at Hamburg ordered the confiscation of the foodstuffs aboard the Dutch steamers Zaanstroom and Batavier, destined for England and South Africa, but released the foodstuffs destined for India and Australia.]

EASTERN FRONT.

RUSSIAN RETREAT.

ENEMY OFFENSIVE.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 31.

A communique states:—The Germans are attacking our troops on the Ekau-Neunut railway, and at Biershalen. There is no important change on the Dwinsk front. At some points we assumed the offensive.

The enemy passed to the right of the Niemen, in the Olita region, and attempted to advance in the direction of Cramy.

Our armies continue to retreat on the rest of the front along the Middle Niemen, and towards the south as far as the River Pripet, covered by rearguards, which on the 28th repulsed attacks in the Lipsk region, inflicting heavy losses.

There is also a stubborn offensive with large enemy forces from the west on the front from Prushany to Gorandetz.

Portion of General von Mackensen's army, with Austrians, endeavoured to expel the Russians from their last hold on Galicia. General von Mackensen, while developing his offensive on the Zlota Lipa, started a turning move on Lutzk and southward of Vladimir-Wolynski. The only result of this effort was that the Russian rearguard engaged in a stubborn fight at Lutzk, covering the retreat of the main forces to a region in Poland, which is unfavourable for a rapid German advance, as it contains thick forests, ith swamps and numerous crosscutting streamlets, which prevent the enemy moving compactly on a wide front.

Captured German cavalry scouts brought to Vilna report that the troops are expecting new clothes before the winter campaign, for which Germany is actively preparing.

FIGHT TO THE END.

A special assembly at Moscow, representing many institutions of every description, passed a resolution that the war must be continued at whatever cost to a victorious end. They urged the creation of a Cabinet for national defence.

Since the assembling of the Duma, vigorous efforts have been afoot to devise means whereby the Government and the Duma will be able to co-operate more effectively. There is much opposition to the immediate introduction of Parliamentary government. Arrangements are therefore being discussed whereby five members of the Duma and five Imperial Councillors will enter the Cabinet as Ministers without portfolio.

Meanwhile, many Ministers, Governors, and minor officials who are regarded as indirectly being responsible for recent defeats are being replaced by men in whom the Duma has confidence. The newspapers are permitted practically to make free comment on the situation.

Three Albatrosses attacked a Russian aeroplane north of Vlodava. The Russian downed one and routed the other two machines.

A Geneva message says the Russians between Brest-Litovsk and Bielsk are inflicting 15,000 losses on the Germans daily, and those between Bielsk and Grodno 20,000 daily. The capture of the town of Narew cost the Germans 30,000.

GERMAN REPORT.

A German communique states: General von Bulow is fighting for a bridgehead southward of Friedrichstadt. General von Eichorn reached the district north-east of Odyta, capturing 1600. We stormed Lipsk, on the Bobr, forcing the Russians in the direction of Grodno to evacuate the Sidra sector. We passed through Sokolka and reached several points of the eastern border forests, north-east of Bielostok. Prince Leopold is fighting in the Bialowieska forest for the Upper Narew crossing. General von Woyrsch's Austro-German army ejected the Russians from their positions at Buchopal, and is sharply pursuing them. The Russians in order to enable a detachment to retreat through a marshy district, eastward of Prushany, gave battle to General von Mackensen on the Pal Dubno line, south of Kobrin, but were defeated, although a portion of the retreating troops returned to their assistance.

CAUCASUS COMMUNIQUE.

A Caucasus communique states:—In recent engagements to the 22nd we captured 81 officers and 5129 men. Our cavalry killed over 2000 Turks. We took 12 guns, six machine guns, 90 caissons, and a quantity of arms and ammunition, two convoys with supplies, two camps with requirements for headquarters, tents, over 1000 cattle, and 100 beasts of burden.

GERMAN AGENTS.

INTRIGUE IN AMERICA.

LONDON, Aug. 30.

The "New York World's" disclosures regarding German agents continue to cause a stir. Dr. Heinrich Albert is said to be the chief German agent, and he is handling immense sums of money which are being freely spent in fomenting strikes with the connivance of disloyal trade union leaders.

The Germans have arranged with a Bridgeport projectile company a contract to commence the manufacture of explosives on September 1, which will be exported through European neutral countries. The Germans arranged for the company also to promise to supply munitions for England and Russia, but to omit liability for failure to deliver them by a clause in the contracts, hoping, thereby, to deceive the Allies.

The campaign also includes an elaborate scheme to establish newspapers, news services, to finance lecturers and film exhibitions, and to publish pamphlets and books, also to pay the expenses of American writers' visits for the consideration that they will write despatches favourable to Germany.

CRUSHING BLOW.

GERMAN TRADE WITH RUSSIA.

The "Daily Chronicle" correspondent at Petrograd says that Prince Shahovski, the Minister of Commerce, in an interview, said the war had dealt German trade with Russia a crushing blow. If public opinion had its way Germany would never be allowed to recover her former position. "We should," he went on, "particularly welcome the co-operation of Englishmen in the industrial sphere."

All mills and factories in Warsaw that were directly useful to the State have been transferred to the interior. Many of these were Russian, but their propinquity to the frontier made them susceptible to German influence. The opening of the Dardanelles would mean the steady gravitation of Russian industry to the Black Sea basin.

WESTERN FRONT.

IN THE ARGONNE.

VIOLENT ARTILLERY STRUGGLE.

LONDON, Aug. 31.

A French communique states: Late yesterday a violent artillery struggle, accompanied by mine explosions, bomb and grenade fighting, occurred at a great number of places in the Argonne. The enemy's trenches were seriously damaged at Courte Chaussee, also at Meurissons and Boland. The night was calm.

THE BRITISH LINE.

Sir John French reports: Since the communique of the 18th there has been no fighting on the British front. There has been some mining, but the conditions generally are normal. We shot down enemy aeroplanes on the 18th and 21st.

Our heavy artillery on the 25th set fire to the railway station at Langemarck. The same evening the Royal Flying Corps cooperated with our Allies in a successful attack on the forest of Houtsulst, without the loss of any machines.

SUBMARINES.

THE ARABIC CASE.

REPORTED SETTLEMENT.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.

It is understood that Germany has definitely agreed to a settlement of the Arabic case on the basis of an apology and compensation, with assurance that every care will be taken to avoid causing loss of American lives in future.

The British Ambassador has informed the Department of State that Britain is amending the order-in-council to provide special consideration for any American cases of hardship or undue interference with trade by the blockade. Britain will permit the passage through the blockade lines of goods contracted for by American exporters before the war which are now lying at Rotterdam.

The general impression in regard to Germany's altered attitude regarding submarine war is that it is intended to clear the way for peace negotiations upon her part.

The "New York Sun" says that Germany is trying to rehabilitate herself in the eyes of neutrals in order that when peace is being discussed she may have larger support and sympathy of neutrals.

The "Daily News" correspondent at Washington understands that owing to the absence of a report from the submarine which sank the Arabic, and the failure to get into touch with the commander, Germany practically concludes that the assailant was sunk.

GOODS FOR AMERICA.

Sir Cecil Spring-Rice (British Ambassador to the United States) announces that Britain will permit German and Austrian goods for the American Christmas trade to pass the blockade if proof of the purchases is submitted to the Embassy. Sir Cecil Spring-Rice draws attention to Britain's offer of April 11 to allow two shipments of dyestuffs to be made via Rotterdam under a neutral flag if consigned to the secretary of the Chamber of Commerce. The offer still holds good, but Germany has not accepted it.

INDUSTRIAL.

COAL TROUBLE.

PROMISING OUTLOOK.

LONDON, Aug. 31.

It is understood that the South Wales coalowners have agreed to include the workers excluded by Mr. Runciman, President of the Board of Trade.

Three thousand Monmouth strikers are resuming work pending a conference.

The crux of the dispute before the South Wales conference is whether enginemen, stokers, pumpmen, and banksmen, are regarded as nightworkers. The miners contended that Mr. Lloyd George, Mr. Runciman, and Mr. Henderson previously agreed that all workmen on night shifts would be paid six turns for five turns worked.

Certain proposals have been made which will be submitted to the miners' delegate meeting in Cardiff to-day.

The conference will resume its deliberations in London to-day, and it is hoped a satisfactory adjustment will be reached in time for submission to the Cardiff conference this afternoon. A joint conference was not held. Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Runciman acted as intermediaries, and were in consultation with either party alternately.

The negotiations were carried on smoothly, and a tentative agreement was reached for a supplementary award, providing for a bonus to every night worker; also a date was agreed upon to which the wage advances will be retrospective.

After the miners had retired to their hotel Mr. Runciman intimated that a hitch had arisen necessitating further deliberations. It is understood that the difficulty is not between the coalowners and miners, but between both and the Government. All agreed to resume the conference this morning, when an agreement is likely to be arrived at.

BELGIUM'S PLIGHT.

THE WINTER PROBLEM

The National Council of the Belgian Relief Society points out the growing gloomy problem for the coming winter. Although the Germans have reserved the harvest for civilians, the Belgian industrial masses, numbering over three and a half million, will still be destitute. Even if food is abundant, they would not be able to purchase it, being dependent on charity.

AMERICAN EXCHANGE.

GOLD FROM BRITAIN.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.

Forty-two tons of gold have arrived in the United States from Britain to pay for war munitions. The United States now leads the world in the amount of gold available for loans.

The sterling rate of exchange is 4 dollars 61¼ cents.

ITALIAN SUCCESS.

IN CARSO REGION.

LONDON, Aug. 31.

It is reported from Milan that the Austrians are in full retreat at two points. They are blowing up bridges and viaducts at Valsugana, and retreating for safety to the nearest Trent defences.

The second point of their retreat is in the Upper Isonzo, where Alpini are fighting for an important summit. The Italians are menacing the entire line of defences in the northern Isonzo. The Austrians are precariously placed at Tarvis, Tolmino, and Gorizia.

An Italian communique states: Despite heavy artillery fire, we ousted the enemy and occupied the summit of Mount Cista (2185 metres), in Valsugana.

We ejected the enemy from some trenches in the Carso region, which were full of corpses, arms, and ammunition.

Our aeroplanes successfully dropped bombs on a station at Vogersko, encampments at Kostangevica, and ammunition depots at Sevana.

THE BALKANS.

TURCO-BULGARIAN AGREEMENT.

ITALIAN NEWSPAPERS' DENIAL.

ROME, Aug. 31.

Newspapers deny the alleged Turco-Bulgarian protocol. The Germans are spreading the report of an agreement, hoping to avert Roumanian intervention.

There are indications that Servia has sent a confidential reply to the Allies, who will negotiate with a view to obtaining further concessions.

The uncertainty of Bulgaria's policy is attributed to the hesitating attitude of Servia and Greece, and also to the fact that a revolution is considered imminent in Turkey.

GALLANT ENGINEERS.

RISKY WORK IN TUNNEL.

LONDON, Aug. 31.

Lieutenant W. Cooper, of the Royal Engineers, was driving a mine 192 yards long under a German position. When within a few yards of his objective he broke into a German mine, which was crammed high with explosives. Lieut. Cooper quickly cut the wires leading to the German trenches. He then obtained help, and removed the enemy's explosives piecemeal. The tunnel was very low. He and his men lay head to feet and passed back a ton and a half of explosives from hand to hand. The work occupied twelve hours. Five men who were rendered unconscious by the fumes received the Distinguished Conduct Medal, and Lieutenant Cooper the Military Cross.

PEACE TALK.

GERMANS TURNED DOWN.

The Paris correspondent of the "Daily Telegraph" declares that the German successes have been accompanied by repeated negotiations for peace, which have been refused unconditionally.

A Russian communique warns the public that the Germans are distributing mendacious accounts of thei. victories, and suggestions to conclude peace. In order to evade censorship, they are enclosing papers in chocolate boxes, photographic goods, and other articles smuggled through neutral countries.

WOOL EXPORT.

SURPLUS IN BRITAIN.

The Government is considering the further relaxation of the embargo on the export of wool.

The Board of Trade held a conference with the London Selling Woolbrokers' Association, and asked for an estimate of the amount available for export. In view of the demand in Britain for crossbred wool for military cloths, and probable Australian and New Zealand shipments, the association replied that 50,000 bales can be exported to the Allies and the United States.

WAR NOTES.

THE ARGONNE FAILURE.

In the western theatre of the war the German effort to push southward in the Argonne seems to have, for the time being, at any rate, died down. In this offensive the Crown Prince sacrificed a tremendous number of men, practically for nothing. He certainly gained a few trenches, but the ground won cannot by any process of reasoning be regarded as a fit compensation for the men lost. The only thing that would have justified this particular offensive was success, and that was denied it. The object of the operations was to smash through the French lines, drive down to the south-west of Verdun, and, if not actually to isolate that fortress, then seriously to threaten to isolate it. The Crown Prince is really as far off such a consummation now as the day he started out on his new offensive. The few yards of ground he gained at one or two points have not rendered his general position any the better jumping-off ground for another such move than it was formerly. The whole affair fitted in admirably with General Joffre's plan of letting the Germans batter themselves against his line at woeful cost to themselves, and it also shows how the French commander-in-chief is justified in his estimate of the strength of that line. For his part the trenches that had to be given up represented ground well lost—at the price; and, in the meantime, he is quietly nibbling them back again. The operations in the Argonne have been almost completely overshadowed in the public mind by the more spectacular events in the eastern theatre, but they will assume considerable importance when their full story becomes available. The German idea was that Warsaw and Verdun were to fall together, but, although the eastern armies won to the Polish capital, the Crown Prince has nothing to show for his great effort but one of the most sinister casualty lists of the war.

QUIET PREPARATIONS.

On the remainder of the western front the fighting continues to be largely a matter of desultory artillery duels, with comparatively very little infantry work. The Germans appear to be indisposed to attack—a circumstance which is probably connected with the calls the great eastern offensive has made upon them in the matter of artillery and munitions, if not also in the matter of men. The Allies, on the other hand, are content to still sit tight and continue to pile up their munition reserves against the big operations which will sooner or later develop on this front. (And by this time shells must be pouring into France at a tremendous rate.) In the meantime an important readjustment of forces is going on in the Allied line. It has lately been officially stated that the British line has been extended. Many divisions of Kitchener's army doubtless followed those which were reported by Sir John French to be in France some time ago, and ere this the French troops will in all likelihood have been relieved of a very considerable portion of their long-drawn-out line, which they have held so long and so heroically. This, of course, will mean that the purely French battle-front will be greatly strengthened. It is a development that will doubtless be greatly appreciated by our Allies, and the only regret is that it could not have taken place very much earlier. The world has yet fully to appraise the wonderful task accomplished by the French on that perilously long battle-line of theirs.

THE REPLY TO GERMAN GASES.

The long spell of comparative quiescence on the major portion of the western front, as far as fighting is concerned, will have been put to good use by the Allies in the way of preparation for events to come, and it is quite on the cards that there are one or two surprises in store for the enemy when operations are resumed on a big scale. We do not, of course, know how far it is true, but it is said that among other things the Allies are quietly preparing their reply to the German gases. It was officially given out both in France and Britain months ago that reprisals would be adopted in regard to this mode of warfare, and there has been some impatience on the part of the public because this threat has been so long unfulfilled. But obviously it would not be advisable to use the new "weapon" in minor operations. In such an event only comparatively unimportant results could necessarily be achieved with it, and thus we would disclose the exact nature of it to the enemy to no great end. By the time we came to use it in major operations the Germans would have devised means to combat it. Far better, if it is to be used at all, that we should hold our hands until it could be used in connection with the inevitable big allied offensive in the west, when its appearance would take the enemy by surprise—just as their own particular gases took us—and they would have no means at hand to cope with it.

FRENCH SUBMARINES.

The French navy was the first to establish submarine navigation on a sound, practical basis. In 1886 French architects tackled the numerous intricate problems regarding design and construction, and they were able comparatively early to place really efficient units in the service. Owing to the fact that the designing and construction were until recent years confined to Government architects, however, the steady progress achieved was but meagrely recorded. Later, however, the Government decided to call in the aid of private enterprise, and as a result of this step the famous Schneider firm secured the services of M. Laubeuf, a well-known naval architect, who has since won for himself world-wide renown in the designing of under-water craft. The Laubeuf submarine, of which France has now a large number, is among the finest in existence. Some interesting particulars concerning this craft recently appeared in "Engineering," which stated that the vessel consists of an inside hull, made slightly oval over its whole length, and of an outside hull, which completely guarantees the inside one against all shocks. The outside hull is given generally the shape of the hull of an ordinary sea-going ship, having a straight stem, a vaulted stern, fine water-lines, and transversal sections which ensure to the boat good nautical qualities. The comparatively great height of the outside working deck above the water-line when navigating on the surface allows the crew to occupy the deck as they would that of a torpedo-boat of similar dimensions. The space comprised between the two hulls serves to contain the water ballast; it is always entirely empty when navigating on the surface, and quite full when submerged. In submarines of the ordinary type buoyancy is comparatively low. The inside hull is divided by transversal watertight bulkheads into separate compartments, the number of which increases with the size of the boat. In all instances the crew space is forward in a separate compartment, containing no electric accumulators nor any other item of apparatus liable to vitiate the air. On the larger boats an extra room with four berths is provided for the petty officers, and one with two berths for the two officers. All boats contain a galley, with an electric range, a petrol stove, and one or two lavatories. The safety appliances include a dropping keel fitted in the bottom part of the boat, and which can be disengaged at a moment's notice from the inside. The water can be driven out of the outside ballast tanks and all the inside trimming tanks by compressed air. The oxygen of the air inside the boat can be renewed. A floating buoy, fitted with a telephone cable, can be disengaged for communicating with surface ships. These vessels, ranging up to nearly 1000 tons displacement, have already done well during the war.

CAPTAIN BROWN'S DEATH.

Mr. W. D. Brown, of Clarouma, Pine-street, Randwick, has received a letter from the official secretary to his Excellency Sir Ronald Munro Ferguson, conveying the regrets of the King and Queen on the death of his son, Captain Garnet Wolseley Brown, who was killed in action between August 6 and 8, after having been twice mentioned in despatches.

UNSATISFIED DEMAND.

NEWCASTLE, Tuesday.

The Colliery Employees' Federation to-day received from the Colliery Proprietors' Association a reply to an application for increases of 20 and 26 per cent. in the present ruling rates of wages. It is understood that the proprietors have stated definitely that they do not intend to grant any increase in wages at the present time. It is expected that during the next few days the men will hand in 14 days' notice, and it is also expected before that time expires a compulsory conference will be called.

STATE CABINET.

LABOUR FOR HARVESTS.

The State Cabinet yesterday considered a report by Mr. Estell on his scheme for supplying country producers with labour during the currency of the war.

The aspect of city workers being employed in harvesting operations was discussed, the Minister for Labour and Industry stating that he was inclined to think from advices he had received that there would be sufficient labour offering in the country, owing to the comparative slackness of shearing, which had not absorbed its usual complement of hands. A further report was called for by the Cabinet.

No decision was arrived at by Ministers regarding the dispute between the Chief Secretary and the Minister for Customs over a cargo of mutton Mr. Black desired to export for the Imperial authorities, and upon which the Customs placed an embargo. Mr. Black threatening to issue a writ.

AMERICAN MAILS.

CANADIAN ROUTE FAVOURED.

The Premier has been in communication with the Commonwealth Government respecting Mr. Nielsen's representations for an improved mail service between Sydney and San Francisco.

Mr. Fisher has now replied in the following terms: "It is considered this question should stand over till after the war. Should it then be decided to grant assistance, with a view to improving steamer communication with North America, such assistance would probably be in the development of the Canadian route rather than that to San Francisco."

THE SECOND DIVISION.

ARTILLERY BRIGADES.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Included in the units to be sent from Australia to complete the Second Australian Division which Major-General Legge is organising in Egypt are three field artillery brigades, the 4th, 5th, and 6th. It is stated that the following three Victorian officers have been recommended for the commands:—Lieut.-Colonel Grimwade, Major Ryrie, and Major Cohen.

DEFENCE.

DEPARTMENT CRITICISED.

THE MINISTER'S REPLY.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Strong resentment at the criticisms that have been levelled at the administration of the Defence Department was expressed by the Minister for Defence (Senator Pearce) in introducing the Supply Bill in the Senate to-day.

He pointed out that up till August 14 the number of men enlisted in Australia was 124,094, of which total Queensland had contributed 14,618, New South Wales 37,069, Victoria 46,504, South Australia 11,492, Western Australia 9953, and Tasmania 4458. The department had the training of these men, and it was therefore not surprising that the work should have called forth criticism. Much had been said about the camps, but these compared well with those in which the citizen forces had been trained. The dietary scale for the men was an ample one, but there were grumblers in every walk of life. It was not to be expected that they would not be found among the tens of thousands of men who had gone through the camps. These complaints had been taken up, however, by people who had no desire to help the country, but every desire to injure the Administration. War was war, and it was undesirable that men who were to go to the front should be pampered in the Australian camps.

With regard to the criticism of the medical arrangements, it had to be remembered that, although there had been so many men through the camps, there had not been a single case of enteric. There had been an outbreak of meningitis among the civil population of Victoria, and this had spread to the camps because overcrowding accentuated the disease. The work of the transport branch constituted a record of which Australia might be proud. Nearly 100,000 men had been sent abroad without an accident. He welcomed honest criticism, but the country should realise the humbug and hypocrisy that were behind much of the criticism.

Senator Millen (N.S.W.) censured the Minister for having said that the complaints were made by a few drunkards and grumblers, and he had said that Mr. Justice Rich had given undue credence to the evidence of a few grumblers. Why had not officers and men who were not drunkards and grumblers come forward and rebutted the evidence. He suggested that the Minister might with advantage adopt one of Sir Ian Hamilton's recommendations—that was, to appoint a business man as an initial step towards creating a business side of the department. The whole system of the Defence Department was chaotic.

THE NEW TAX.

IMPORTANT AMENDMENTS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Four pages of amendments to the Income Tax Assessment Bill were circulated to-day by the Attorney-General (Mr. Hughes). The income of friendly societies is to be exempt from income tax, but must not be derived from transactions carried on for pecuniary profit. Another exemption is the income from a provident, benefit, or superannuation fund established for the benefit of employees of any business.

Clause 13 (taxable incomes) is amended by leaving out the provision about dividends, etc., and inserting the following new paragraph: Dividends, interest, profits, or bonuses credited to any member, shareholder, or debenture holder of a company, but not including a reversionary bonus issued on the policy of life insurance. Provided that where a company distributes to its members or shareholders any undistributed income accumulated prior to the commencement of this Act the sum so received by the member or shareholder shall not be included as part of his income.

Cash prizes in a lottery are made taxable.

Clause 15, relating to the taxable income of a company is deleted, and the following clause is substituted: For the purpose of ascertaining the taxable income of a company there shall be deducted from the total income, in addition to any other deductions allowed by this Act, so much of the income as is distributed to the members, shareholders, or debenture holders of the company. Provided that, in the case of a life insurance company, there shall also be deducted so much of the income as consists of premiums paid upon the policies issued by the company. Provided also that a company, notwithstanding any contract, agreement, or arrangement entered into by it, may, with the approval of the commissioner, charge pro rata the amount of the tax actually paid by it against those beneficially interested in the income of the company; (2) where, in the opinion of the commissioner a company has not in any year distributed to its members or shareholders a reasonable proportion of its income there shall be included in the income of each member or shareholder, without in any way diminishing the liability of the company, so much of the income of the company which is not distributed in that year as bears to that income the proportion which the interest of the member or shareholder in the paid-up capital of the company bears to the paid-up capital of the company; (3) the commissioner shall furnish to the Treasurer annually for presentation to Parliament a report of all cases in which action has been taken under the provisions of sub-section 2 of this section, with a statement of the reasons therefor.

Clause 16 relating to the taxable income of a mining company is deleted, and the following new clause is substituted:—In connection with income derived from mining operations carried on in Australia, the following provisions shall apply: (a) The return required by this Act to be made by the person deriving the income in the first place shall show the total income so derived during the calendar year in respect of which the return is compiled; (b) the capital expended by the person carrying on the mining operations in necessary plant and development of a mining property from which income has been received, less the distributed and undistributed income derived prior to the year 1914 by that person, shall be divided by the estimated number of years during which payable mining operations may be expected to continue under normal conditions, and the quotient thus obtained, shall, in addition to any other deductions allowed by this Act, be deducted from the income. Where separate and distinct mining operations are carried on by the same person, either alone or in association with any other person, and a profit is made on some, and a loss is made on others, that person shall be entitled to deduct the sum of the losses from the sum of the profits, and the balance of profits, if any, shall be included in the income of that person.

In clause 17 (deductions) an addition is made of sums set aside or paid by an employer of labour as or to a fund to provide individual personal benefits, pensions, or retiring allowances to employees.

Two new clauses, 23A and 23B, are added, relating respectively to partners and trustees. They are (1) Partners shall be assessed and liable in respect of the income derived by them as partners, as if it had been derived by a single person without regard to the respective interests therein or to any deductions to which any of them may be entitled under this Act, and without taking into account any income derived by any one of them separately or as parnter with any other person. (2) Each partner shall, in addition, be separately assessed, and liable in respect of: (a) his individual interest in the income, together with (b) any other income derived by him separately; and (c) his individual interests in the income derived by any other partnership. (3) Partners shall in no case be deemed, in respect of their joint assessment, to be absentees, but any of the partners who is an absentee shall be separately assessed, and liable under this section as an absentee.

23B (1) Any person who derives income as a trustee shall be assessed and liable in respect of income tax as if he were beneficially entitled to the income, provided that where he derives income in respect of different trust estates for different beneficial owners, who are not for any reason liable to be jointly assessed, the tax payable by him shall be separately assessed in respect of each of these estates. Provided also that where a trustee also derives income beneficially he shall be separately assessed for that income and for the income of which he is trustee, unless for any reason he is liable to be jointly assessed independently of this section. (2) A trustee shall in no case be deemed to be an absentee, but any of the beneficiaries who are absentees shall be separately assessed and liable as absentees.

A new clause is also inserted relating to covenants by a mortgagor to pay the tax. This is clause 50A. It reads: A covenant or stipulation in a mortgage of land which has, or purports to have, the purpose or effect of imposing on the mortgagor the obligation of paying income tax on the interest to be paid under the mortgage—(a) if the mortgage was entered into before the commencement of this Act, it shall not be valid to impose on the mortgagor the obligation of paying income tax to any greater amount than the amount (if any) which would have been payable by the mortgagor if his taxable income consisted solely of a sum equivalent to the amount of interest to be paid under the mortgage, without taking into account any income tax payable on that interest; and (b) if the mortgage was entered into after the commencement of this Act shall be absolutely void.

WAR LOAN.

£10,000,000 EXPECTED.

SPLENDID SUCCESS.

CLOSE OF APPLICATIONS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The subscription for the first issue of the Commonwealth war loan of £20,000,000 closed to-day. In view of the importance of the loan it was decided that the public should be invited at first to subscribe £5,000,000, the remainder of the loan to be issued at a later date. At the same time it was indicated that, should the applications for the first issue exceed the sum asked, namely, £5,000,000, the subscriptions would be accepted.

As subscriptions were received throughout Australia the full figures were not available to-night, but the Prime Minister (Mr. Fisher) was during the day in communication with the Governor of the Commonwealth Bank (Mr. Miller), and was consequently able to make an approximate statement. Whilst unwilling to commit himself definitely to any sum, Mr. Fisher indicated that it would probably be found that the public response had been so generous that double the sum asked for had been obtained. This means that, instead of £5,000,000, the public had subscribed £10,000,000, or even more.

Mr. Fisher may possibly be in a position to-morrow to furnish complete details of how the loan has been subscribed. It is understood that the smaller subscriptions already amounted some days ago to a very large sum, and it will probably be found that a far larger amount has been received in this manner than even the most sanguine originally anticipated; in fact, the results have altogether exceeded the most sanguine anticipations, of not only the Prime Minister, but also of the financial authorities, whom he consulted. In alluding to-night to the result of the loan, Mr. Fisher stated that its success had never been in doubt. The only question being the amount that would be subscribed.

THE STOCK EXCHANGE.

VALUABLE ASSISTANCE.

Speaking to a "Herald" representative, Mr. Ernest L. Davis, chairman of the Sydney Stock Exchange, said last night that the general impression was that the loan would be applied for twice over—"probably the amount will reach over £10,000,000," he said.

The Stock Exchange members, he added, had done their very best to make the loan a success. "They have done all they could among their clients to get them to fulfil their duty to the country, even in cases where an investment was not being looked for. We have all worked to that end. It is a very good investment, and, apart from that, we should all stretch a point at such a time to take up all we can."

A.M.P. SOCIETY, £250,000.

The Australian Mutual Provident Society has applied for a quarter of a million in the Commonwealth loan.

In announcing this last night, Mr. Richard Teece, the general manager of the A.M.P. Society, said the directors had been actuated solely by patriotic motives, and he had no doubt their action would be endorsed by the policy-holders.

"No doubt, in one sense, we could have put the money to a better use," said Mr. Teece, "but we felt it was a duty we owed to the State."

CONSCRIPTION.

PARLIAMENT'S VIEW TO BE SOUGHT.

PREMIER'S INTENTION.

The Premier stated last night that at an early date an opportunity will be afforded the Legislative Assembly to express its opinion as to whether there ought to be compulsory military service in the Commonwealth.

Mr. Holman has recently received from country recruiting associations resolutions to the effect that conscription should be introduced. While he recognises that the Commonwealth Government is charged with the administration of defence matters, he thinks it would be quite within the province of the functions of a State Parliament as representing a portion of the Commonwealth to express its views on this all-important subject.

The Premier referred to the following communications from country recruiting associations advocating conscription:—

Burren Junction.—"In our opinion the time is ripe for conscription."

Corowa.—"It is the general opinion that conscription will be urgently needed before there will be any great increase in number."

South-west Rocks.—"That whilst this association still perseveres to stimulate recruiting in its district, it considers that the time is now ripe for the Commonwealth to mobilise the whole of its forces, and use all grades of its population advantageously."

Eden.—"That in the opinion of this recruiting association the time has arrived for compulsory service to be adopted."

Tumbarumba.—"That while it has met with a gratifying response from many eligible for service, it views with alarm the tendency among the bulk of the younger population to shirk service, and feels, further, that voluntary enlistment has failed, being unfair in its incidence, and considers that national service is the only way of equalising the burden."

METALS.

OPENING OF THE EXCHANGE POSTPONED.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The Federal Attorney-General (Mr. Hughes) yesterday presided over a further conference of representative men interested in the metals industry.

"On and after Monday next," said Mr. Hughes, "all prescribed metals and minerals must pass through the Metals Exchange." It was decided in order that the committee should have a further opportunity to consider the details of the scheme that the passing of metals through the Exchange should, for the time being, mean only the registration of all transactions with the Attorney-General. It was realised that the establishment of the Exchange would involve work of organisation, the appointment of a staff, and the drafting of regulations, and it was felt that an extension of time was necessary. In order that these things might be done, the committee is drawing up suggestions as to the minimum value of transactions required to be registered. The formal establishment of the Metals Exchange has been postponed for not more than one month."

BACHELORS.

A STATE CENSUS.

The Government Statistician, by direction of the Premier, has completed the census of unmarried males in the metropolis, aged from 17 to 60 years.

Mr. Trivett reports that 76,494 men returned themselves as being within the specified limits. Of this number 4555 stated that they were sick or laid up temporarily; 3092 that they were permanently disabled; and 9240 that they were sole supporters of dependents, leaving 59,577 as apparently sound.

"I regret to say," writes Mr. Trivett, "that the large number of approximately 15,000—one in four—men failed to return themselves, and were missed in the collection. At the present time I estimate that there are approximately 92,000 unmarried males aged 17 to 60 in the metropolitan districts."

FEDERAL SESSION.

INCOME TAX BILL.

THE BLAU CASE.

CAUSTIC STATEMENT BY MR. HUGHES.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

In the House of Representatives to-day, as a matter of privilege, the Attorney-General (Mr. Hughes) made an explanation regarding allegations made in the House on the previous day during his absence regarding the Blau transaction. He referred caustically to the reported statement of Mr. Gregory (W.A.) that he (Mr. Hughes) would have to use Eau de Cologne for the rest of his life to rid himself of the smell of the Blau transaction. "I desire to invite Mr. Gregory and those acting with him to make a plain statement of what they do mean," said Mr. Hughes. "That is a contemptible insinuation, and I desire to repudiate it. Mr. Kelly said that I knew when I allowed Blau to go to America that he was going to meet the head of one of the German firms there. That is untrue. He then goes on to say that the money Blau got from the sale of Eau de Cologne was to be remitted to the American exporters, and that they would then hand it to the head house in Germany. As to that, I have never approved of the importation of Eau de Cologne into this country." Referring to the allegation that he had appointed Blau's son-in-law to appear for the Crown in an enemy trading case in Sydney, the Attorney-General said the statement was entirely incorrect.

INCOME TAX BILL.

The Income Tax Assessment Bill was proceeded with.

The debate on the second reading was resumed by the leader of the Opposition (Mr. Cook), who said that it was unfortunate that they should be called upon to consider the question at present, when so little time was available for the purpose. He warned members in applying a Federal income tax not to forget the State taxes. They should always act in close consultation with the States in relation to these financial matters. General taxation of a moderate character was a fair thing at any time, but what they had been doing in Australia was to cut into these taxation resources for peace purposes. Now that a crisis had come they found their resources of taxation were not as plentiful as they ought to be. This taxation, coming upon taxation elsewhere, was too high in amount. If they had raised two millions for this year it would have been a fair thing. He thought it unwise at this stage of the war to exhaust their financial resources. The Government could have made part of this amount by careful retrenchment in ordinary services. He was afraid that there was no intention on the part of the Government to allocate specially this taxation for war purposes. He urged the Government to relieve the people of portion of this debt. It should be spread out, and some made to come afterwards. Taxation that amounted to 8s or 9s in the pound was excessively heavy. At this stage of the war the less irksome they made the tax upon the community the more they were increasing the staying power of the nation. He considered that the assessment should be made on incomes for the year ended June, 1915, and not December, 1914. It would not be fair to tax people on last year's income, and pay it out of this year's earnings. This was the worst year Australia had had for many years, so far as many of the primary industries were concerned. He asked when the tax was to be collected.

The Attorney-General: As soon as the machinery can be put in motion.

In conclusion, Mr. Cook said he believed that Opposition members would agree with him that Mr. Fisher was taking the right course in imposing direct taxation for war purposes. They only differed as to the methods of getting the money in. He hoped the war would be soon over that they could relieve the people of this taxation.

The Prime Minister, answering Mr. Cook, said that for every practical purpose the four millions raised by the tax would be devoted to war services. The tax should be made to cover interest and a small sinking fund on the money they would have to borrow to perform their share in the war. It might be late this year before the Government would be able to get the tax in, and it was also possible that they might be able to collect the tax in two parts. The Government felt they were in duty bound to impose this taxation on the 1914 year. It was an excellent and sound practice, and was in general use.

On the question of State co-operation Mr. Fisher said that it had always been the policy of the Government that the State Premiers could approach the Commonwealth at any time they thought fit. They would discuss all these matters at a Premiers' conference, which he thought would be held. The best thing they could do would be to invite the States to come and meet them in conference to discuss all affairs affecting the whole of the people of Australia.

Referring to the war loan the Prime Minister said that he believed the response would be large and patriotic. He believed that further appeals would receive an answer in the same way. "It is our bounden duty," said Mr. Fisher in conclusion, "to make sure while the people are prepared to provide capital funds that the amount we raise in taxation is sufficient to liquidate our obligations."

The second reading was agreed to on the voices.

In committee on clause 3 progress was reported.

SUGAR PURCHASE.

A bill was introduced in committee by the Attorney-General to provide for the borrowing of money from the Commonwealth Bank to the extent of half a million pounds for the purpose of financing the purchase of sugar by the Commonwealth and the payment of the duty on imported sugar.

Mr. Cook (N.S.W.) objected to the Government completing an agreement to expend about six million pounds for the purchase of sugar without consulting Parliament.

The Attorney-General said that no agreement had been completed with regard to the sugar affected by the bill. He thought it would have been most impolitic to notify all the sugar-sellers of the world that the Commonwealth was in the market. He was satisfied that the proposed agreement between the Commonwealth and the C.S.R. was a satisfactory one.

Mr. Cook: The Attorney-General, the Czar of Australia, was setting aside Parliament to carry out his nationalising schemes. It might be good business, but it was not good democratic government.

Mr. Carr (N.S.W.) said that he did not believe in spending half a million without knowing what it was for.

The first reading of the bill was agreed to. The second reading was set down for to-morrow.

At 11.10 p.m. the House adjourned till to-morrow morning.

THE SENATE.

WAR QUESTIONS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Replying to Senator Millen (N.S.W.), in the Senate to-day, the Minister for Defence (Senator Pearce) said that men who enlisted were not compulsorily sent on leave until they could be accommodated in camp in Sydney. Accommodation was provided for them at the Barracks immediately after enlistment if they required it.

In answer to a query by Senator Story, the Minister for Defence stated that Dr. Ramsay Smith, who had been recalled from Egypt, would not be entitled to demand a court-martial. Such officers were only engaged for the period of the department's pleasure. An inquiry had been held in Egypt by the Imperial authorities, but the papers were not yet to hand.

WAR PRECAUTIONS BILL.

The debate on the second reading of the War Precautions Bill was resumed by Senator Keating, who said that although the measure was only a small one, it was far-reaching, because it took away from the person any redress in the way of asserting his liberty. He thought that provision should be made for an appeal in camera on the part of an interned suspect.

Senator Millen viewed the bill with the utmost repugnance, as it was dangerous to place such arbitrary powers in the hands of any Minister. Any person should be given the chance to appeal to the Courts to try and show his innocence.

Senator O'Keefe (Tas.) considered that in dangerous times they had to give a Minister great powers, and trust them not to abuse them.

The Minister for Defence, in reply, said that by holding an inquiry they would probably prevent other suspects from afterwards being laid by the heels, and allow them to continue doing things prejudicial to the interests of the nation. They must not only take action against persons of enemy origin, but they had to consider that in every place there were people prepared to sell their country's secrets. They had to remember that they were fighting a nation that organised a spy system with more thoroughness than any other nation had ever done.

The War Census Postal Matters Bill, providing for free passage of war census matter, was read the first time.

POSTAL RATES.

INCREASED CHARGES ON NEWSPAPERS.

DEPUTATION TO P.M.G.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

This morning a deputation representing the principal newspapers of the Commonwealth waited on the Postmaster-General, Mr. Spence, to protest against the proposed new postage rates on newspapers.

Mr. W. G. Conley ("Sydney Morning Herald") said that the deputation did not wish to tell the Government how to do its business, but thought it proper, in view of the fact that the interests concerned were so diverse and far-reaching, that they should put the case before the Minister. None of the papers of Australia had any other desire but to help the Government in the crisis through which the nation was passing. He did not think there was any member of the Government who would not admit the newspapers had worthily borne their share in organising the nation in this crisis. Speaking for his own and for other papers, they were quite willing to bear whatever burden was imposed, as long as others of the community did so, too. They did not mind the income tax, plus the Customs tax and the added cost of carrying on business, as long as they could bear it, and they were going to support the Government in these matters to the fullest possible extent. They were not going to reduce wages or hands. The proposal was, he understood, to double the rate of postage on newspapers. That was going to fall very heavily on the very people the Government wanted to save. It was going to hamper the Government in getting to the people whom the Executive should be in close touch with. If this was the only extra charge competition amongst newspapers would ensure that it was not passed on. Ever since the postage on newspapers in New South Wales the proprietors had borne the extra charge. There were cases in which it cost 4d and 5½d to send the paper through the post to remote parts of the country. This charge was not passed on to the public. The firm he represented was a strong financial concern, and yet it stood to lose three-quarters of its income by reason of the imposition of the income tax, high duties on papers and other goods, increased cost of cable services, and other recent extra business charges. The proposed new rates were going to impose serious hardships on many people in the country, for the impost would have to be passed on. What a man bought now for 6d would in the future cost him 9d; if he did not want to pay the 9d, he would have to do without his paper. Newspapers at a time like this were important vehicles for the dissemination of news for the publication of the policy of the Government, for the creating and maintaining of patriotic public opinion, without which this war could not be won. It would be nothing less than a calamity if this vehicle of public opinion were to be hampered. It would react very severely on the policy of the executive Government.

Mr. A. C. C. Holtz, secretary of the "Argus" and "Australasian," said that he had also been asked to represent the "Courier" and "Telegraph," Brisbane, "The Register" and "Daily Herald," Adelaide, the "West Australian," Perth, and the Tasmanian Press Association, which embraced practically all the papers of Tasmania. Hitherto, he said, practically the whole of the postage of newspapers had been borne by the proprietors. Apart from business reasons, this had been done in a desire to see that the people in the most remote parts of the continent were able to secure their papers at the same cost as the people of the city. That fact must appeal to the Government. On all papers posted there was a dead loss. It would be necessary to pass on the whole of this new impost, and the people in the remote districts would be called upon to pay 1½d a copy instead of 1d as at present, placing them at a disadvantage to the people of the city. If the increased charges were insisted upon the newspapers would have to advise by circular hundreds of thousands of their readers throughout the country that the increased cost of their paper to them was forced upon them by the action of the Government, and one could easily imagine the effect of the public feeling against the Government which would be aroused.

Sir Winthrop Hackett, of the Perth "West Australian," had telegraphed, saying that the proposed rate was a tax on knowledge, especially in the outback parts of Western Australia, and must affect the people by compelling the proprietors to publish smaller papers.

Mr. L. V. Biggs (Melbourne "Age," Sydney "Daily Telegraph," Launceston "Daily Telegraph," Adelaide "Advertiser," and Hobart "Daily Post") said that the proprietors considered this movement to raise the cost of posting papers as a reactionary one, placing the Government entirely out of step, not only with the spirit of the age, but with the tendency of the postal administration throughout the world. It must not be thought that this proposal would only hit the wealthy proprietors. It would handicap severely the struggling country paper. Ninety per cent. of the country newspapers put the greatest part of their circulation through the post. Some of them in the past complained of the severe strain of competition with the metropolitan journals. This proposal would add to the burdens of the provincial papers.

Mr. A. H. Ross (Sydney "Sun") reminded the Postmaster-General that newspaper employers and employees were in close and sympathetic touch at the beginning of the war. It was decided by the proprietors to do everything in their power during the war not to drop a man or boy. Reasonable taxation was not objected to. If further unjust imposts were levied, they would have to dispose of the services of a number of men. That was not a threat but a fear.

The Postmaster-General said that it was needless to say that the Government recognised to the full the assistance which the press had given in this time of crisis. Its educational value was also recognised and its influence for good appreciated. He would take care to have the matter brought under the notice of his colleagues. This increased rate was not put on for revenue purposes, but because an appeal had been made to put the Post Office upon a business basis, and he had started out with that object in view. He had had an examination in detail into the various sections of the department, with a view to having it put upon a proper basis. The Chief Accountant (Mr. Haldane) had found as a result of an investigation that the cost to the department for the carriage of 20oz by rail was 1.6d. Even with the proposed new rate there would still be a loss to the department. He was very loth to have to introduce the new proposals. He had had a letter from Mr. Earle, the Premier of Tasmania, who was also associated with the Hobart "Daily Post," and had in mind numerous Labour papers, and he himself had close connection with the Sydney "Worker," being chairman of trustees. These were papers which could not pass on the additional charge to the public, and were consequently hit harder proportionately than other journals. He was hitting his own friends pretty hard. In this connection he would like to point out that the newspaper rates would still leave the department carrying papers at a loss, and in addition, it had to pay also for handling and mail coaching. A report regarding newspapers sent through the country post-offices in Victoria for the week July 24 to 31 showed the receipts were £34/9/5. Checking this on an average of distance, etc., they found that it cost the department 8.6d for 20oz, which was too high. It was actually more than was charged people for carrying ordinary goods over the railways.

Mr. Cox: Ordinary people are only charged at the rate of 1d for every 7lb of freight.

The Postmaster-General: I am going to try and get that altered, and get the papers carried for less. I have given notice to the various State railways for the termination of the agreement.

Mr. Cox: Is that the solution of the difficulty?

The Postmaster-General: I don't know. We are at the mercy of the railway Commissioners. The charge is theirs. We charge the papers nothing for handling and nothing for the carrying by mail coaches, which cost us a considerable amount.

Mr. Holtz asked whether the Minister would stay his hand until he had heard from the railway authorities?

The Postmaster-General: We have allowed for a margin in your favour. Even counting for a favourable response, even if the rates are reduced by the railways, there will still be a loss when we carry 10oz for a penny.

Mr. Biggs: Wouldn't it be a fair thing to postpone this until your further conference with the Railway Commissioners, because if you get these additional rates, and also secure a reduction from the railways, you will have it both ways.

The Postmaster-General: I allowed a margin for that.

Mr. Conley, in thanking the Minister, reminded him that, if he increased the rates in the direction contemplated, he would get less money, and give the people less facilities.

DIED IN CAMP.

GILGANDRA, Tuesday.

The funeral of Private Walter Walker, who died at Liverpool Camp of cerebro spinal meningitis, took place yesterday afternoon, and was one of the largest yet seen in Gilgandra.

MEN OF THE DARDANELLES.

MAJOR WM. DAVIDSON.

Major Wm. Davidson's death from wounds will make a gap in military circles that will be very hard to fill. He was one of the best known and most popular members of the administrative and instruction staff of the New South Wales district, and a soldier who rose from the ranks. Of Scotch birth, he joined the Seaforth Highlanders in 1883, when but 16 years of age. With this corps he saw several years' active service in India, for which the Hazara Medal with one clasp was awarded him. He was wearing his third stripe when he left England for Sydney, where he arrived in the early part of 1889. There being no military vacancies, Major Davidson joined the police force. For two years he remained in that body, during which time he was stationed at Lithgow and Bathurst. Then, in 1891, he entered the military service again, and served in various capacities at Singleton, Newcastle, Goulburn, and Richmond. At the outbreak of war he was Staff-lieutenant and Adjutant to the 39th Battalion, Ashfield, but he went to the front wearing his third star as Adjutant to the 1st Battalion, 1st Infantry Brigade. A member of the landing party that made history at Gallipoli, he was wounded on the afternoon of the memorable 25th of April. Next day he was promoted to Major. Notwithstanding his wound, he remained in the trenches, where, on August 18, he was mortally wounded, dying next day. He is survived by a widow and eight children, one of whom, Sapper W. J. F. Davidson, the eldest son, is now convalescent at Port Said, after a serious attack of enteric. Before becoming ill, Sapper Davidson was in the trenches for six weeks. His mother resides at Oatley.

On leaving there he underwent an engineering course at the Technical College, at the conclusion of which he entered his father's business, of merchants and importers, at 493 Kent-street. Here he remained until going away with the 1st Australian Expeditionary Force to Rabaul.

Major M'Pherson was for many years connected with the old Scottish Rifles. In this corps he was associated with the late Captain Scot-Skirving and Major Storey (wounded). When the old volunteer movement gave way to the universal training scheme, he was wearing three stars. With this rank he went away under Col. Holmes to Rabaul, where he remained about six months. On his return he was attached to the 18th Batt., D Coy., which he commanded. He was promoted to the rank of major before leaving here. The deceased officer was 28 years of age.

Prior to leaving for the front Major M'Pherson wrote to a friend of his, a clergyman, as follows:—"I feel confident that every officer and man under me will acquit himself honourably; we are all prepared, if necessary to die for our King and country, and consider it an honour to so serve the best and greatest Empire the world has even seen in fighting for all that is just and right at this great crisis in her history."

CAPTAIN BANFIELD.

News has been received that Captain Banfield, third officer in command of the 18th Battalion, has been killed in action. He left Sydney on June 25, and arrived at Cairo on July 24, leaving there for the front on August 14. A cablegram to Mrs. Banfield intimated that death took place on August 22. The deceased soldier was just 40 years of age. He had a great deal of military experience, and was attached to the 21st (Woollahra) Infantry. He was promoted to the rank of captain in 1895. He went through the Boer war, and his services were retained under Lord Kitchener to take charge of the military stock. He received an Imperial commission as captain in January, 1901. He was the holder of the Queen's medal, with five clasps. On the declaration of war Captain Austin, who was in New South Wales, immediately resigned his position as the Coolamon manager of James Bell and Co., and joined the 3rd Battalion, 1st Infantry Brigade, leaving in October last for Egypt, and after four months' active service was killed between August 6 and 8. He was an ex-student of the Armidale Grammar School, and one of the Coronation cadets to go from there. On the outbreak of war he enlisted in the 2nd Battalion, 1st Infantry Brigade, leaving his position as overseer of Borambil station, Condobolin. From the ranks he soon advanced to the position of corporal, and whilst in Egypt was offered a commission, but the offer was refused, as it would have meant staying out of the fighting line for some little time. As corporal he took part in the celebrated landing at Gaba Tepe, and though his regiment was in the thick of the fighting, he remained unhurt till June 28, when he was wounded, and returned to hospital for about a week. At this time he had advanced to the position of sergeant, and on again reaching the scene of action received his commission, and was again wounded in action on August 6. The following extract from one of his letters to his parents on leaving Australia indicates the spirit in which he and his comrades of the Brigade went to war, and made them fight with such valour:—"We are able to go out and fight in a cause which we are proud to do our little to uphold. May God help me and all of us to do our little bit thoroughly and well. We have a very strong cause to fight for; we have the backing of our nation's grand past history behind us; and we have the knowledge that this Australian army marks practically the first attempt of any importance that Australia has made to assert herself amongst the nations of the world. Any failure on the army's part means a blot on Australia's future history; while should we make our mark, be it ever so small, we will be happy in the knowledge that Australia has fought and been of assistance in a good and righteous cause."

Sapper Slattery was one of the first to land at Gallipoli, where he was wounded in the head. After spending about three months in the hospital at Alexandria he again returned to the fighting line, and was again wounded in the head. With other wounded men he was placed on board a transport, bound for the hospital at Malta, but he died before reaching land, and was buried at sea. RAILWAY BUILDING.

In an article which recently appeared regarding the progress on the North Coast Railway, it was pointed out that on the South Grafton to Glenreagh section a flying-fox of small power was being used, and the rate of progress was very slow. The engineer-in-charge points out that the flying-fox mentioned is adequate for carrying out the works. A small quantity of gravel was conveyed across from the Dorrigo bank to the Glenreagh bank of the Orara River and mixed there, but it was not carted back to the Dorrigo bank again for that abutment. Most of the concrete in the abutment on the Dorrigo bank was mixed by hand on that side purposely to avoid the expense mentioned in the article.

SOLDIERS' LETTERS.

FACILITATING DELIVERY.

BASE P.O. IN EGYPT.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

In order to improve the facilities for the speedy delivery of letters to soldiers serving abroad, and the despatch of soldiers' letters to Australia, the Commonwealth Government has offered to provide a base post-office for service in Egypt. This offer has been accepted by the Imperial Government, and the corps will be despatched at the earliest opportunity.

The staff of the base post-office will comprise one major or captain, two subalterns, one sergeant-major, three staff sergeants, three sergeants, seven corporals, and 26 other ranks, and will be composed of selected officials of the Postmaster-General's Department, nominated by the Postmaster-General. The officers will be granted commissions in the Australian Imperial force, and the remaining personnel will be enlisted therein after passing the prescribed medical examination. Before departure, the base post-office will be concentrated in Melbourne.

WAR CENSUS CARDS.

Mr. G. H. Knibbs, Commonwealth Statistician, states that a number of applications have been received from trade unions, solicitors, auctioneers, and other persons for large supplies of war census cards. It is pointed out that the arrangement made is that every person or company, etc., who by law is required to make a return, is to be supplied at a post-office with one card only for each return to be made. Duplicates will not be given. Were indiscriminate issues of cards to take place there would, of course, be a shortage for general applicants. Cards will not be issued in large batches to persons who are making a business of filling them in for others; the duty both of obtaining the necessary cards and of filling them in is personal, and every person required to make a return is responsible for himself or herself. Those, however, who are willing to aid by gratuitously assisting those who find difficulty as to filling in the various items on their cards have already been supplied with specimen cards, not the cards to be used on the census, and also with instructions to enable them to advise.

SCOPE FOR BRIBERY.

A DOCTOR'S ALLEGATIONS.

Further evidence was taken yesterday afternoon before the Parliamentary Select Committee appointed to inquire into the prevalence of venereal diseases, Dr. Arthur chairman.

Dr. Ralph Worrall, 27 years hon. physician for the Sydney Hospital, stated that gonorrhoea was a common thing among married women of all classes. In Germany the system of prevention was very thorough.

To Mr. Stuart Robertson: Mr. Wade's Police Act with regard to brothels, making them illegal, was a great mistake. The present system opened the avenues for graft among the police. The police were making a lot of money out of it.

The chairman: In what way?

Witness: By taking bribes for not proceeding against these women.

There are still many such houses in Sydney?—Any number. The system of bribery is equivalent to giving these places a license. They have really to pay a license by bribing the police. That has had a bad effect on the police and aids in the spread of disease.

VALUATION BILL.

ASSISTANCE FROM NEW ZEALAND.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Tuesday.

At the request of Mr. Holman, the Prime Minister has consented to Mr. Flanagan, Valuer-General, visiting Australia to assist the New South Wales Government in drawing up a Valuation Bill on somewhat similar lines to that in New Zealand. Mr. Flanagan leaves for Sydney on Thursday.

RED CROSS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

A meeting of the executive committee of the Red Cross Society was held to-day at Federal Government House. Her Excellency Lady Helen Munro Ferguson presided.

A cablegram was read from Mr. Adrian Knox, K.C., one of the Australian Red Cross Commissioners in Egypt, announcing that the stock of Red Cross goods was exhausted, owing to the demands from the hospital at Lemnos, and asking that a complete renewal of supplies be sent as soon as possible.

The hon. treasurer, Mr. Ed. Miller, reported that £24,000 had been received since the last meeting, making a total of £229,000.

The Governor, Sir Arthur Stanley, suggested that a general advisory committee be formed of representatives from all the various patriotic funds, in order to sift the stories and complaints of returned soldiers which were being given to a sympathetic public. Too many uninformed men, he said, were spreading gloomy stories, all of which were to the discredit of the various funds. The advisory committee could inquire into any case where a soldier considered he had been badly treated.

ALLEGED THEFT.

NEWCASTLE, Tuesday.

Ernest Buttrum, 42, in the employ of the pilot service, was at the police court yesterday charged with stealing various articles valued at £30, the property of the King, from the barque Susanne Vinnen between February 1 and July 5. The evidence showed that the accused was one of the guards of the ship, which had belonged to a German firm, and was detained here when war broke out. The property alleged to have been stolen was found at the accused's house. Buttrum claimed the right to be tried by court martial, and said that at the time he believed the property belonged to the Germans and not to the King.

Accused was committed to take his trial at the Circuit Court, to be held on October 5. Bail was fixed at £30, and a surety of a like amount.

STATE FINANCE.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Mr. Fisher stated to-night that the States are being financed by the Commonwealth up to the end of November, but after that date they will be obliged to make other arrangements for carrying on their public work. There can be no question of any further assistance being given to the States out of the Commonwealth Notes Fund. By the end of November the issue will reach the very large total of over £46,300,000, and beyond this sum Mr. Fisher will not be inclined to go. Some other means will therefore have to be sought by the States for raising money for their public works, and this, it is understood, will take the shape of seeking through the Commonwealth assistance from the Imperial Government.

STEAMER VICTORIA.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Tuesday.

The trouble with the crew of Huddart, Parker's steamer Victoria has been settled.

APPEAL TO ELECTORS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In the "Herald's" issue of to-day, under the heading "The Referendum," is the following:—"Government will go on." Then follows question by Mr. Cook, leader of the Opposition, and reply by Mr. Fisher that the referendum (if carried, I presume) will not weaken, but strengthen, Australia. This is absurd. In what? Well, not financially. No one can doubt the fact that the taking of the referendum will cost the Commonwealth £136,000. We are not in a position to squander £100,000, nor any money that belongs to our much-drained resources at this, a moment when all available moneys should be used in the manufacture of shot and shell. We are to be taxed, and may be taxed till we fail. Now that our sons, our brothers, our husbands, are fighting for our King and our Australian land, and for our wives', sisters', and daughters' honour and safety, we don't want to be annoyed and worried over referendum matters. I appeal to Liberal and Labour electors, put your foot down on such an unwarranted, cruel, unjust waste of the people's money. Men who will vote for such in Parliament are the servants of the people, paid by them to do the country's work, and not to squander its funds unmercifully.

I, with my family, once voted for Labour, but I would much prefer a German or Turk bayonet thrust through me than to ever do so again. I am, etc.,

TRUE AUSTRALIAN.

Aug. 31.

The question of the cultivation of medicinal plants rendered scarce by the war has been taken up by the Royal Society of New South Wales, and is the principal subject for discussion at to-night's meeting.

FIXING PRICES.

PRICE OF GAS.

The gas companies have been called upon to appear before the Necessary Commodities Commission to-morrow to show cause why the price of gas should not be reduced to 3s 6d from 3s 10d per 1000 cubic feet.

The case the companies will be invited to answer is that inasmuch as coal has been reduced in price the price of gas should fall accordingly.

PORK TRADE.

On Monday a proclamation was issued under section 8 of the Necessary Commodities Control Act—"Maximum selling price of pork shall be as follow: In the counties of Cumberland and Northumberland and at any place of slaughter outside the said counties, 7d per pound. At other places the above, plus actual cost of cartage."

This proclamation came into operation yesterday. The wholesale price of bacon had already been fixed at 11d per pound. As a consequence of fixing the prices, there was practically no market sale. Selling agents refused to do any business, and 1156 pigs were "held over pending developments," as one of the agents explained to Mr. Ovington, the secretary of the commission, shortly after the lunch hour.

The situation was discussed in the office of the commission, and it was arranged that a deputation would be received by the Commissioner (Judge Edmunds) this afternoon, at 2 o'clock. All sections of the trade, including bacon curers and pork butchers, have been notified, Mr. Ovington stated, that representatives will be at liberty to appear and put their views before the commissioner.

MILK, BUTTER, AND OATMEAL.

This morning at 10 o'clock Judge Edmunds, as Necessary Commodities Commissioner, will call upon suppliers and vendors of milk to show cause why the selling price should not be reduced. The representatives of the butter trade will be called upon "to show cause" at 11, and at 12.30 the reduction in the price of oatmeal will come before the commissioner.

WHEAT LOSSES.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Representatives of the Mill Owners' Association and the Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Hutchinson) to-day came to an agreement, whereby the price of imported wheat will be reduced to a fraction under 7s per bushel. This is due to a reduction in the prices of bran and pollard. It is understood that as a result of its wheat transactions the Government will lo . several thousands of pounds.

BRAN AND POLLARD.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The executive of the Victorian Millowners' Association decided yesterday to reduce the price of bran and pollard by £2/5/, making bran £5 and pollard £6 per 2000lb wholesale.

NORTH SYDNEY LIGHTING.

ALDERMAN RESIGNS.

At the North Sydney Council meeting last night, Alderman Darling, one of the representatives of Belmore Ward, resigned his position as a protest against the council's action in entering into a five-years' agreement with the North Shore Gas Company for the lighting of the streets of the municipality, and refusing the request of electors of Belmore Ward to take advantage of the agreement with the City Council and obtain electric light.

A long discussion followed on a motion in favour of affixing the council's seal to the agreement with the company, which eventually was carried by 6 votes to 5, the acting Mayor (Alderman Clark) giving his vote with the majority.

AMERICAN TRADE.

IMPROVED AUSTRALIAN SERVICE.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.

Arrangements have been concluded by the Government for a new sixteen-knot steamship service, to be operated by the Oceanic Steamship Company, between San Francisco, Honolulu, Pago Pago, and Sydney.

Future sailings from San Francisco will be every three weeks instead of monthly, beginning on October 26. All the ships, which will belong to the company, will be able to be used by the American Government as auxiliary cruisers in war time.

BOATING DISASTER.

LONDON, Aug. 31.

Twenty lads from the training ship Cornwall were rowing on the Thames at Purfleet, when a squall drove a tug upon the boat, which was cut in halves, and sank immediately.

An officer and sixteen lads were drowned, the current being too strong for the most powerful swimmer.

FLOODS IN INDIA.

FINANCIAL.

THE WAR LOAN.

The subscription list of the War Loan closed yesterday throughout Australia. Five millions sterling was asked for, but it is understood that the sum known up to yesterday was in excess of that amount. All, however, that Mr. Denison Miller, of the Commonwealth Bank, would say was that matters were progressing smoothly. The basement of the head office in King-street, where applications were received, was thronged yesterday. Though it is not absolutely certain, it is probable that the Prime Minister will make a statement in the House of Representatives this afternoon, when word has been received from all the subscribing centres. The banks have had many inquiries as to the advisability of investing in the loan, and invariably the inquirers have been told that not only is the investment of the soundest, but it is their duty also, as a matter of patriotism, to lend their money for conducting the war. In almost every case the advice has been taken. Small investors are numerous, that is judging by the amounts which have gone through the banks, there being many instances in which single £10 bonds have been asked for. Among a number of people there has been a hesitancy—natural, perhaps, to the inexperienced—to take up bonds because they would not mature for 10 years. Hence, they argued, they would be out of their money for that time. They believed that if they sold it would only be to people looking round for bargains, and that they would have to dispose of their stock at a reduction. While, of course, it is quite possible that the stock may be quoted at a discount, the rate of interest is so good, and the security also, that it is improbable that the discount, if any, will be serious. In all such transactions there is some risk, and no doubt in future loans the people will be more accustomed to the practice of taking up bonds, and even a more ready response than at present will be made by the small investor.

TOOHEY'S, LTD.

The half-yearly report of Toohey's, Limited, shows a net profit for the six months ended July 31 of £32,514, which, with £18,130 brought forward, made £50,644 available for distribution. The board recommends a dividend at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum, absorbing £16,000, adding £5000 to depreciation of plant and machinery account, £5000 to the reserve fund, £3000 to reserve for extension of premises, and £3000 to reserve for war tax, leaving £18,644 to be carried forward. The 27th half-yearly meeting of shareholders was held yesterday afternoon, Sir Thomas Hughes, M.L.C., chairman of directors, presiding. Resolutions were unanimously passed adopting the directors' report and balance-sheet, and re-electing Mr. S. H. Cary and Mr. W. A. Davis as directors; re-electing Mr. H. Dunstan Vane and Mr. C. A. Le M. Walker as auditors.

NOT NEGOTIABLE.

"P.B.C." writes:—

Sir,—I read with interest your remarks under the heading of "Not Negotiable" in the Monetary and Commercial column of to-day's issue of the "Herald," and would ask you what would be the position in the case of a cheque drawn to the favour of "A. and Co. or Order," and crossed "not negotiable." If B. obtains legal possession of the same after having it endorsed by "A. and Co." could B. pay it into the credit of his banking account?

The effect of the endorsement is to make the cheque payable to bearer, and B and all the holders preceding him having come into possession of the cheque legally, he can pay it to the credit of his banking account. A further quotation from Paget throws further light on the subject. "The effect" (of the crossing "not negotiable"), he says, "is that the cheque remains transferable, but is deprived of the full character of negotiability. No better title can be given than is possessed by the holder. So long as there is no defect, the cheque may pass from hand to hand just as if it were an open cheque, and each successive holder acquires full rights and titles thereon."

SAFEST WAY OF DRAWING A CHEQUE.

"S." writes:—

Sir,—The correspondence occurring in your columns recently on the safe way of drawing a cheque has been read by me, and others to my knowledge, with much interest. In your issue to-day a correspondent, "Bank of England," asserts: "Order cheques are absolutely the safest, and are always a receipt to the drawer, as the 'payee' must endorse them." If John Brown, of Orange, sends to John Smith, of Sydney, his cheque on his bank in Orange, in payment for goods purchased by him, must the bank in Orange make certain, before cashing it, that the John Smith who has endorsed it is the right John Smith, the cheque being payable to John Smith or order, or is it a fact that the words John Smith being written on the back of the cheque is a sufficient authority for the bank? I have always thought, and still think, "not negotiable," is the safer.

The words "John Smith" on the back of the cheque is quite sufficient authority for the bank. The addition of "not negotiable" is the safer way.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Kempthorne, Prosser, and Co., of New Zealand, have declared an interim dividend at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum.

The Amalgamated Pictures, Limited, has declared a dividend of 10 per cent. (1/ per share) on the preference shares, for the half-year ended August 31, and 1/ per share interim dividend on the ordinary shares, payable on September 15.

WAR TAX PROBLEMS.

In answer to "Doubtful," the value of the house must be included in the census, and in another portion of the same card there is provision made for deduction of the amount of the mortgage. Five per cent. on the value of the property, less the interest on the mortgage, should be added to your income.

In answer to "A.S.," the income and property held by all over 18 years of age must be returned on the census card. As far as income tax is concerned, your income, being below the limit, is exempt.

In answer to "Perplexed," a separate card should be made out as trustee of property, and if there is any income the amount should be stated. No income tax will be payable unless the amount of income is over £156.

WAR PROBLEMS.

S.S. POSEN'S CARGO.

The Sydney Chamber of Commerce has been making inquiries as to the question of delivery of Australian cargo on board the S.S. Posen, now sheltering at Rio de Janeiro.

In this connection a cable was sent to Lloyd's agent asking him to suggest a firm who would be prepared to represent Australian consignees, and on what terms required. Inquiries were also made as to the terms demanded by the N.D.L. Co.

A reply has now been received to the effect that the firm agreeable to do the work will require 5 per cent. The N.D.L., in addition to demanding full sets of bills of lading, ask for a general average of 30 per cent. Lloyd's agent further points out that the question of freight will be difficult to arrange.

In these circumstances it looked as if delivery will not be obtained till after the war. This rather bears out the information received previously which was to the effect that the whole matter would have to be settled in Bremen or Hamburg.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

SALMON PRICES REDUCED.

When the new season's salmon prices were announced early last week many merchants predicted that they were too high, and that the inevitable result would be a marked contraction in the demand. That they were not unduly pessimistic is demonstrated by the fact that the agents for one well-known brand—Scroll—have seen fit to reduce the quotation for one pound flats and half-pound flats 4/ a case, thus making the distributing price on the larger tins 15/ a dozen, and on the smaller tins 9/ a dozen. The opening rates were 16/ and 9/6 respectively. No reduction has been made in one pound talls, which remain at 13/10½ a dozen. It is understood that special permission had to be secured from the principals in America before the new prices could become operative. The salmon pack this year is unquestionably short, and, indeed, some agents have already booked their full quantities. One letter which arrived by the last mail said: "We don't want you to push our salmon this year—we simply want you to look after our established brands." Stocks of herrings on spot were very small, and full rates were wanted. For one pound tins of fresh herrings 9/ was the general quotation, while for half-pound tins 5/6 was demanded. As the result of the receipt of a cablegram from London, which stated that Oakey's Wellington knife polish had advanced 10 per cent. on all future shipments, there was some activity in this line on the local market, and all supplies offering under 6/ a dozen were cleared up. Some merchants made inquiries with regard to Greek currants for prompt shipment. Indentors quoted New Provincials at 30/, Amalias at from 30/6 to 31/6, and Patras at 33/ per cwt, c.i.f. and e. New season's Robusta coffee beans for September shipment were offered at 72/ per cwt, c.i.f.

Most lines of chemicals, with the exception of cream of tartar, were well held. The market for cream, however, was quiet, and some merchants who carried heavy stocks exhibited a desire to clear. For 95 per cent. 1/11 was usually asked, although a parcel could have been obtained at a concession on this figure. For 99 per cent. up to 2/ was wanted. Advices from France stated that supplies available for prompt shipment were small, and indicated that 95 per cent. could not be secured under 1/11 c.i.f. There was a steady demand on spot for citric acid, at up to 3/6 per lb. Prompt shipment of English was offered to merchants at 2/10, and November shipment at 2/7 c.i.f. and e. French acid for prompt shipment was worth 3/7, similar terms. Holders of tartaric acid were particularly firm, and requirements could not have been filled under 2/3 and 2/4 per lb. Forward shipments of French were quoted high. Prompt was worth 2/5, and November 2/ c.i.f. and e. English tartaric, however, for prompt shipment, was to be had at 1/10, and November shipment at 1/7 c.i.f. and e. Future supplies of Salicylic acid were difficult to secure, but small quantities could have been obtained at 15/6 c.i.f. and e. A cablegram was received from Brunner, Mond, and Co., Ltd., stating that they were prepared to book, for indent, caustic soda contracts for shipments over next year, at an advance of £2 a ton on their prices which were current before withdrawal of the line. There has been another strong advance in the prices of carbonate of ammonia.

Jute fabrics continued dull. Cornsacks for August-September shipment were offered at from 8/2 to 8/4 net to rails. Some merchants maintain that Australia has not yet bought sufficient sacks to bag the coming harvest, and affirm that unless orders are sent to Calcutta immediately there will be a shortage. But against the opinions of these importers we have the assurance of the jute trade, given at a recent meeting at the Chamber of Commerce, "that the trade will provide all the sacks which are necessary for the coming harvest." Is it necessary to worry further? The supply of cornsacks is a vital necessity to the well-being of the State, and it should go hard with any body of men who would deliberately hoodwink the Government and people regarding the position of supplies. We are of the opinion that the jute trade of Sydney knew what it was doing when it assured the country that all cornsack requirements would be filled. Branbags were unchanged at 7/3 net to rails. There was a small inquiry for woolpacks at 2/9 net. A parcel was sold to Melbourne at that figure.

CUSTOMS DECISIONS.

It is notified in the "Commonwealth Gazette" that the importation of Maxim and other silencers for use with firearms, is prohibited.

FIXED PRICE OF PORK.

EFFECT AT CITY YARDS.

The announcement in Monday's "Government Gazette," fixing the wholesale price of pork at 7d a pound, caused considerable alarm amongst agents and buyers at the City Yards yesterday. The pork trade was dislocated. For some time past porkers at the yards have been selling at from 9d to 9½d per pound. The proclamation does not provide for the regulation of the prices of live stock, and consequently buyers at the City Yards had to make their purchases on a scale which would enable them to sell at 7d a pound wholesale. If auctioneers had made sales they would have done so at prices which would have been about 4d a pound below late rates. Owners who were present advised their agents not to sell, preferring to keep their stock for breeding or for "store" purposes. Other agents adopted a similar course of action on their own responsibility.

With regard to the bacon section, a similar deadlock occurred. The wholesale price of cured bacon was fixed some weeks ago at 11d a pound, and in order to procure stocks the bacon curers made representations to the Necessary Commodities Commission for the price to be raised. They were unsuccessful. They found it practically impossible to carry on; many, indeed, finding even the securing of supplies a matter of impossibility. Yesterday things were not a whit better. In the majority of cases agents refused to sell without consulting the consignors. What few sales took place were made at prices which showed a drop of from £1 to £1/10/ apiece.

A deputation of those interested in the trade visited the secretary of the Necessary Commodities Commission, and placed the position before him. It was ascertained that the matter would be re-investigated at Wednesday's sitting of the commission. The opinion current amongst agents and buyers was that another blunder had been made in the price-fixing regime. In all probability the commission did not know that fixing the price of pork would not regulate the price of carcase bacon pigs.

BREADSTUFFS.

BRAN AND POLLARD AGAIN REDUCED.

On August 24 a proclamation was issued fixing the price of bran at £6, and pollard at £6/10/ a ton.

Yesterday the New South Wales Flour Millers' Association went one better than the Government, and reduced the price of bran to £5, and of pollard to £5/10/.

At Darling Harbour yesterday 7 tons of wheat and 97 tons of flour were manifested to arrive.

MELBOURNE STOCK MARKET.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

In the live stock market to-day 16,600 fat sheep were penned. The yarding was a fairly good one on the whole, and included a good proportion of prime sorts, with a few odd lots of shorn wethers. Though the demand was irregular, and opening sales showed a weaker tendency, prices on the whole were quite equal to last week's best rates, and closing sales were very strong.

Quotations:—Prime crossbred wethers, from 37/6, a few shorn from 31/ to 37/6, extra to 50/, odd pens to 57/6; odd wethers, to 45/; good crossbred wethers, 28/ to 35/, seconds 24/ to 27/, inferior to 22/6; prime crossbred ewes, 36/3 to 42/6, extra to 51/6, odd ewes higher; good ditto ditto, 27/6 to 34/6; seconds, 23/9 to 26/6, inferior from 17/6; prime merino wethers, 31/ to 39/, a few shorn from 24/ to 28/9; extra ditto ditto, 41/ to 45/6, odd pens to 50/; good ditto ditto, 25/6 to 30/, inferior to 23/6; merino ewes, from 25/3 to 30/; low-conditioned ewes, to 20/.

Fat Lambs.—4680 were penned, including only a moderate proportion of prime. This season's drop was represented by about 470 head, nearly all of prime and extra prime quality. Early sales disclosed a further marked decline in values, which, however, was recovered later on, and prices in the latter part of the market were fully equal to last week's best values, with prices for this season's lambs showing a distinct advance on late rates.

Quotations:—Prime, 26/ to 32/6, extra to 37/, odd pens to 46/; good, 21/9 to 25/; seconds, 18/3 to 20/; inferior, to 17/6; this season's prime, 18/9 to 21/6; extra 27/ to 36/6, a few others from 16/6.

PRODUCE.

DAIRY.

The Sussex-street markets, after Monday's trade, were absolutely bare of bacon yesterday. The price of pork has been fixed by the Necessary Commodities Commission at 7d per lb wholesale, with no limit on the retail price. In consequence, bacon-curers, the remedying of whose troubles was the primary object of the power given to the Commission to fix the price of pork, benefit very little. Such an action only enables the pork butcher to obtain bigger profits. He can sell fresh pork at 1/ and 1/1 a lb. The bacon-curer, with the additonal expenses entailed in curing, can only sell at 11d a lb.

Many grocers only took a limited supply of butter on Monday as a safeguard against any more sensational reductions in price on Tuesday. But as no such reduction occurred, they plucked up courage, and came back for the remainder of their orders yesterday. Consequently a rather larger volume of trade than is usual on the second day of the week was transacted. Supplies were also more plentiful. The Moruya arrived with a cargo of cheese. Total stocks were by no means sufficient to fill orders, the country being the chief sufferers. Lard was lightly supplied, and unchanged in price.

The egg market had a healthier tone. Supplies were still exceptionally heavy, but the demand improved, chiefly through the influence of Melbourne buyers on the market. The latter will have the same steadying effect on the Sydney market as Sydney buyers had on the trade in Brisbane a week ago. New-laids were mostly selling at 1/ a dozen. Case lines were quoted straight out at 11d. Duck eggs were unchanged at 1/2 for new-laid, and from 11d to 1/ for case.

Pigeons, young to 2/6, old to 2/ per pair.

FORAGE AND GRAIN.

End of the month conditions ruled in the forage and grain section of Sussex-street yesterday, and trade in consequence was transacted on restricted lines. Maize was unaltered at 5/4 for northern rivers yellow grain, and 5/2 for white. A few holders were asking up to 5/3 for prime samples of the latter. Good quality oats were scarce, and from 4/6 to 4/9 was asked. Japanese varieties, which were generally of poor grade, were offered at 4/3.

Feed chaff was rather scarce, but, as in most lines, little attention was given to trade. Prices for Victorian ranged up to £9/10/ a ton. Tasmanian was bringing £8. Straw chaff met with little support at from £4/10/ to £5.

The shipment of Victorian onions was smaller by 900 bags than last week, only 1800 arriving. Business was done at the unchanged price of £9. Tasmanian potatoes cleared at unaltered rates, and New Zealand tubers commanded the late price of £9/10/.

At the firewood auctions 21 trucks were yarded, and a fair sale was held at unchanged rates.

It is practically assured now that the crisis in the forage and grain trade is over, and with the advent of September and October, the opinion is freely expressed that the trade will resume something like its normal conditions. The new month should especially usher in a few changes for the better. New season's crops and a good season assured, it is also hoped that normal conditions will include a cessation of Government interference as regards price fixing and stock seizure.

RAILWAY MARKET.

Another big yarding of produce was placed in position for sale yesterday. It consisted chiefly of wheaten chaff, somewhat better in quality for the most part than the offerings of the last few weeks. The prime having been disposed of privately, no high prices were realised, albeit some good grades went under the hammer. The buying proclivities of the yard habitues did not show up very well, but the auctioneers forced sales, in many cases at very low figures. The reasons for the first fact are probably twofold—that uncertain state of the market and the imminence of the end of the month. What caused the auctioneers to act so is a very different thing, viz., the new demurrage dues. These have created quite a mild sensation in the yard, as the existing rates—they remain in force until to-morrow morning—are to be doubled. Whereas it used to cost £1 per day for a truck kept in the sheds, the cost from to-morrow morning will be £2, i.e., about 4d for each cwt in the truck, which contains about six tons. Up to the beginning of this week passes—by means of which the auctioneering consignee kept back the produce when his reserve had not been reached—were of frequent occurrence, but yesterday, they were few and far between. However, these new rates will effect what the Railway Commissioners probably intended them to do, the freeing of a good deal of rolling stock, which will be necessary for the handling of the new season's harvest.

Produce placed in position for sale:—Hay, straw chaff, 95; grain, 1; potatoes, 5.

Consignments manifested to arrive:—Hay, straw chaff, 107; grain, 4; potatoes, 3.

FRUIT MARKET.

At the fruit markets yesterday a good demand ruled for all kinds of locally-grown fruit, supplies of which were only moderate. Prices were on the firm side. Only about 12,000 cases of apples arrived from Tasmania, and being placed on a practically bare market there was an inclination for rates to advance. A few choice Croftons made up to 15/ a bushel-case. Pineapples were unchanged. Fiji bananas were worth from 17/ to 18/6 a case. Cavendish were bringing from 14/ to 16/ a case.

VEGETABLE MARKET.

Prices yesterday morning were slightly better than on Saturday or Monday. Demand was regular and the supply rather on the light side. Cabbages of an inferior quality, however, are still coming forward in large numbers. Root stuffs had firmed somewhat, as was the case with sweet potatoes, which were selling at £11 per ton.

As August is the seed month, it is anticipated that supplies are likely to be short rather than anything else for some little time.

Messrs. Raine and Horne report that at the sale of Symington Estate, Cardiff, near Newcastle, on Saturday afternoon, 55 blocks were disposed of at prices ranging from £6 to £50 per block.

SOUND LITTLE SILVER MINE.

THE NEW BURRAGORANG.

A representative number of shareholders in the New Burragorang Silver Mining Company, of Yerranderie, assembled at noon yesterday morning at the office of the company, Messrs. Jordan and Walker, Stock Exchange-buildings, Pitt-street, the occasion being the half-yearly meeting.

Mr. Charles H. Kerry, chairman of directors, presided, and in proposing the reception and adoption of the directors' report and balance-sheet, he made particular reference to the latter, as it stood on May 31 last. He said that the ore on hand then was valued at £2112/11/6. That value had been received in cash, whilst the amount of £614 13/9 (sundry creditors) shown on the liabilities side had also been liquidated. The exact position of the company to-day was that they had a surplus of £2519/6/5 in hand, over and above all liabilities (not taking into account the £1500 payable to the old company, simultaneously with the payment of dividends). Of this surplus, the sum of £1280/14/ was represented by cash in the bank, and the balance ore, in course of realisation. As against the cash balance of £1280/14/, the company's actual liabilities to-day were less than £100. At the last meeting of shareholders, held at the beginning of February, the company had a surplus of £1000, so that during the subsequent seven months the position has improved to the extent of £1500. They have been able to meet the whole of the expenses of the mine and pay for the large amount of development work done. In addition they had spent over £300 in machinery, and the mine was now fully equipped, including a first-class rock drilling plant.

Mr. F. B. Brown, one of the directors, spoke with regard to the technical side of the development of the mine, he having just returned from an inspection of it. He said it had been opened up in a thoroughly effective manner, and in the future the output of ore could be increased under advantageous circumstances. He remarked that the company had received from the Cockle Creek Smelters the sum of £19,187 in cash for 905 tons of ore, equal to a net return of £21 is per ton, or the equivalent of a little over 5ozs of gold per ton. This was after paying the cost of mining the ore, hauling to the surface, haulage by teamsters to the railway, train freight, and treatment charges.

A shareholder referred to the disability the Yerranderie silver field laboured under owing to the want of a railway, and said that for this reason, ore classed as second grade, yet carrying between £6 and £7 worth of metal per ton, had to be stacked on the surface, as it would not pay to send to Cockle Creek. The motion for the adoption of the report and balance sheet was then carried.

Mr. W. Bale, the retiring director, was re-elected, as was also Mr. H. V. Saddington, retiring auditor, and the meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman.

THE DANGERS OF INFLUENZA AND RELAPSE.—Medical men agree that one of the worst forms of influenza is at present afflicting the people of Sydney and country. It is attended with great fever, sickness, weakness, and pain in the body and head. It reduces the strength of the body rapidly. Care should be taken that relapse does not follow, with serious results. The medicine to take to banish weakness and create normal functional health is Clements Tonic. It gives vital strength rapidly. All chemists sell it. Take it, and get strong.—Advt.

When you feel off, unable to eat, rest, or sleep take Clements Tonic. It is THE great health restorer. It brings sleep and rest to the tired brain. Try it. All chemists. It is a magical medicine.—Advt.

MINING.

VERY QUIET DAY.

MARKET AFFECTED BY LOAN BUSINESS.

The vestibule of the Sydney Stock Exchange wore a semi-holiday appearance yesterday, so few members were about, whilst the sales board presented a beggarly array of empty lines, or nearly empty.

The explanation was that the members were absent in their offices in the different parts of the city, busily engaged in preparing applications from their clients for stock in the war loan. Judging by the rushing of office boys hither and thither, it looked as if a good many people had left the business to the last moment.

One broker remarked:—"My case is the same of many other brokers. The requests to me to lodge applications for war stock have rolled in a regular stream the last two days, especially this morning, hence, in order to keep up with the business, I have had to neglect the vestibule, and even the 'call' room. This, therefore, fully accounts for the semi-holiday appearance of the vestibule and the stagnation in mining transactions."

The morning proceedings saw business confined to four sales in four stocks, and they indicated firmness in Mount Morgan, but a slight easing of B.H. South, paid, and B.H. North. In the afternoon business livened up a little, as members had lodged the applications of their clients for stock in the war loan. Attention was largely confined to Barrier stocks, and the business transacted was on fairly steady lines.

At the last call of the day buyers eased their offers in a large number of cases, and generally, the tone of the market was less firm, a circumstance attributed to the fact that cables to hand announced a fall in the London metal market. Before this information came to hand, however, a sale on a firm line was booked in Wallaroo and Moonta. The effect of the sag in metal values, however, was to upset the market generally, and business for the rest of the day was practically impossible.

MINING NOTES.

At the Bodangora gold mine, the No. 3 western level is carrying a 15in reef, worth 63/ per ton, and not 6oz, as stated in Tuesday's issue.

The following telegram has been received from the Perth office of the Bullfinch Proprietary Company:—"No. 3 (Northern) series, 410ft level, off main north crosscut, have commenced driving east at co-ordinate distance, 485ft north, 247ft east. Drive extended 9ft, in ore averaging £1/6/9, over a width of 72 inches. Opposite east drive have commenced driving west at co-ordinate distance, 485ft north, 247ft east. Drive extended 8ft, in ore averaging £1/19/6, over a width of 60 inches."

The tunnel at the Mount David Gold Mine has been extended 18ft to 581ft. The face shows a rather well-defined make of stone. Up to August 28 it was very flat, but has changed, and has now a decided dip to the east, which is the general underlie of the lode proper. The manager is of opinion this make of stone is a footwall lens, and by extending the tunnel a short distance he thinks he should intersect the main lode. Some of the dolleyings give good results, but, taken on the whole, they were erratic.

The secretary of the Mount Morgan Gold-mining Company, Ltd., writes:—"A dividend of £50,000, being 1/ per share (free of income tax), has been declared, payable at the company's office on and after Thursday, September 30. I also have to inform you that Mr. A. A. Boyd, who has been acting general manager since the 1st May last, has now been appointed general manager of the Mount Morgan Gold-mining Company, Ltd.

For the fortnight ending August 28 the battery of the Hawken's Hill Reward Gold Mine crushed 150 tons for 120oz gold.

The A1 Gold Mines (Victoria) have declared a dividend of 1/ per share, payable on September 15.

MANAGERS' REPORTS.

Wild Cherry Tin (week ended August 26):—Smith's lode: No. 1 level south, stopes Nos. 1 and 2 in payable ore; timbering completed. North-east crosscut, north of shaft extended 8ft, total 8ft, in low grade ore. North level, No. 2, extending leading stope in payable ore. South level, No. 2, timbering in progress. Burns' block, Marks' timbering completed; lode 3ft of high values.

AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.

Another 750 miles easting of the pressure systems has brought the centre of the eastern "high" to the vicinity of Lord Howe Island, whilst the rear isobars now run through the western districts of New South Wales. The effect of the presence of the "high" in this State has been fine weather practically general, with pleasant day and cold, frosty night.

The high pressure over Western Australia on Monday had also worked rapidly eastward, and at 9 a.m. yesterday had extended as far as Port Augusta, having dislodged the apex of the Antarctic disturbance from the Great Bight southwards. This disturbance is now almost wholly situated over the Southern Ocean, although just touching the extreme south-western corner of the continent, where strong winds to gales from the south-west and south are being experienced, with rough to high seas. A portion of this low pressure is also shown to the south of Adelaide, where it is co-operating with the "col area" (or region of unsettled conditions between two high pressures) in causing cloud and showers in the far southern extremity of the area.

The easternmost portion of the disturbance is also operating over New Zealand and the Tasman Sea, where fresh to strong north-west to westerly winds are blowing.

Present indications favour cloudy to showery weather fairly general, associated with thunder during the next 48 hours, but temporarily fine in the north-east.

Ocean Forecast.—Squally, westerly winds and rough seas in the western Bight, extending eastwards.

To the Home Seeker it means a rare opportunity to secure a Home Site for Your Own Home in a position that is central, uniquely convenient, and in a rapidly growing district. It means Freedom! To The Builder.—An inimitable location for house-building—the Estate being practically level, park-like land, fronting tram line in a suburb where population is continually arriving, increasing, and extending. It is a profitable position! To The Investor—The same argument will appeal. Land values hereabouts are continually rising, and this subdivision Auction means substantial profits in a very short time.

STATE SESSION.

THE LATE MR. BADGERY.

HOUSE'S TRIBUTE.

When the Legislative Assembly met yesterday afternoon Mr. Perry and Mr. Nesbitt introduced to the Speaker Mr. Zuill, the new member for the Clarence, which the late Mr. John McFarlane represented for so many years. Mr. Zuill took the oath of allegiance, and then sat on the front Opposition benches.

The Premier moved "That this House desires to express its deep sense of regret at the loss sustained by the death of the late Mr. F. A. Badgery, the member for Wollondilly, and that this House do now adjourn." He said it was with extreme regret that he had to move a motion of this character so soon after the occasion on which they had met to express their sense of the loss sustained by the death of Mr. McFarlane, who was referred to as one of the oldest members of the House. Now hon. members had to deplore the loss of one of the newer members, a gentleman who entered the Chamber for the first time a little over six months before the last general election, and one who had endeared himself by unfailing courtesy and geniality of manner. While he had been amongst them, he had made no personal enemy on either side of the House. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. Wade said he rose with keen regret to second the motion which the Premier had so appropriately submitted, and to express on behalf of the Opposition side of the House the unanimous and sincere sense of the loss which they had all sustained in the death of their comrade. Mr. Badgery was a man in the true sense of the word, large hearted, genial, and possessing a character overflowing with the milk of human kindness. He felt sure that it would be some measure of consolation to his relatives to know that they had the full sympathy of members with them in their bereavement.

The resolution was carried.

LIMITATION OF RACES.

The Premier stated, in reply to Mr. Fitzpatrick, that the Cabinet had not yet given consideration to the question of limiting the number of race meetings at present held in New South Wales or to the matter of closing down upon certain other forms of sport. These questions would, however, be given attention.

HOTEL KOSCIUSKO.

The Premier stated, in answer to Mr. Fitzpatrick, that the total revenue of the Government hotel at Kosciusko for the year ended June 30 was £7188, and the expenditure £9736. Payment was made to the hotel for all persons visiting it at rates varying according to the season and the accommodation, from 12s 6d to 17s 6d per day, inclusive rates, and from £3 8s to £5 15s 6d per week.

WOMEN IN PUBLIC DEPARTMENTS.

The Premier stated, in reply to Dr. Arthur, who asked about the employment of women in public departments, that a number of girls and women who depended upon employment in shops were at the present moment probably to some extent affected by the seasonal depression which occurred in the month of August of each year. There was no evidence as to employment being affected by the shop assistants' award. It would be time to consider the replacement of men by women when the supply of men's labour ceased to be in excess of the demand for that class of labour.

ROCKS TENANTS.

The Premier stated, in reply to Mr. Cochran, that many tenants of the Rocks area were in arrears for rent. He added:—"It is understood that work for wharflabourers has not been good for some time past, and a number of tenants have suffered in consequence. In all cases where the tenants are genuinely unable through want of work, or other satisfactory cause, to meet their rental payments they are not being pressed by the board. Where, however, it is found on investigation that tenants are in a position to pay, but neglect to do so, proceedings are taken against them."

CONTROL OF FISHERIES.

The Chief Secretary stated, in reply to Mr. Levy, that Mr. D. G. Stead was not the commercial manager of the State Fisheries Department, nor was he the Director-General of State Fisheries. An appointment to the former position was under consideration.

ANTI-GERMAN MOVEMENT.

The Minister for Lands stated, in reply to Mr. Wade, that an officer in his department named Schulze was not reported for pro-German statements. Rumours that he had made such statements came to the ears of the Under-Secretary, who directed the matter to be inquired into. No formal finding was made. Schulze, though not on the permanent staff, had been engaged for 40 years in contract work for the department. For some time he had been permitted to do this work at his own home at Helensburgh. He occasionally did his work at the Lands Department. These arrangements had continued unaltered since the inquiry. Papers, containing particulars of statements alleged to have been made by Schulze, were referred to him as the Lands Minister on March 3, 1915, by the Premier, who had received them from the Prime Minister. No report was made direct to the Minister for Defence. The particulars, as far as they could be ascertained, were sent to the Premier, and by him forwarded to the Prime Minister. No instructions had been given to Schulze to prepare a map of Wollongong. It should be stated that Schulze had been naturalised for upwards of 19 years; that his wife was an Australian by birth (of English parentage); and that he had five daughters dependent upon him.

The Premier stated, in reply to Mr. Levy, that his attention had been drawn to a circular issued by Mr. A. J. Hare, Under-Secretary for Lands, relative to conversations (said to be indiscreet) with Germans in the Public Service. "Inquiry by the departmental officers showed," said Mr. Holman, "that on two occasions warm discussions had taken place during office hours on matters relating to the war between an officer of the Lands Department and one of the contract draftsmen, who was of German origin. Such discussions are undesirable, and in the interests of discipline the circular in question was very properly issued by the Under-Secretary."

ADJOURNMENT.

The House adjourned till the following day, after carrying the resolution expressing sorrow at the death of Mr. Badgery.

WILLOUGHBY SEAT.

Mr. John Leslie Chambers, J.P., of Ernest-street, North Sydney, the Labour nominee for the vacant seat of Willoughby, was born at Cobargo 34 years ago. His father was the proprietor of the "Cobargo Chronicle" for many years until recently, when his health failed.

The Labour nominee has been a member of the Tramways Union ever since he entered the service, 14 years ago. He has been a member of the management committee and a vice-president of the union for many years. At present he is a member of the Superannuation Board. He was a member of the committee in 1908, during the tram strike. Mr. Chambers is married, and has one child.

There is every likelihood of a contest, after all, for the Willoughby seat, an independent candidate, Mr. Wilson, having announced his decision to contest the electorate. He has started his campaign in North Sydney.

Mr. John Haynes is a candidate for the Willoughby seat.

At a public meeting held at the Friendly Society's Hall last night, it was decided to invite Mr. J. G. Wilson, general secretary of the Post and Telegraph Association, to contest the Willoughby seat. Mr. Wilson said he would enter the contest.

TREASURERS' CONFERENCE.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The Treasurers' Conference will be held in Melbourne next month to discuss the financial question. The Premier (Sir Alexander Peacock) announced that the Prime Minister (Mr. Fisher) was desirous that the conference should take place. The suggestion had been made that the conference should take place in Melbourne on September 10, as previously arranged. Mr. Fisher had approved of the suggestion. At the conference the common interests of the States would be discussed. The decisions arrived at and the requirements of the various States would be communicated to the Agents-General before the adjourned conference called by the Chancellor of the Exchequer met again.

BLOCKADED COASTS.

The Secretary of State for the Colonies notifies that his Majesty's Government has decided to declare a blockade of the coast of Asia Minor. The area of the blockade will extend from latitude 37 deg. 35 min. N. to latitude 40 deg. 5 min. N., and will include the entrance to the Dardanelles.

The Secretary of State also notifies that the Italian Government has declared a blockade of the coast described below:—

1. Austro-Hungarian coast from Italian frontier on north to Montenegrin frontier on south, including all islands, ports, bays, etc.

2. Albanian coast from Montenegrin frontier on north to Aspri Ruga (latitude 40 deg. 9 min. 36 sec. N., longitude 19 deg. 35 min. 45 sec. E.) inclusive on south.

CASUALTIES.

FATAL ELECTRIC SHOCK.

Last week, while climbing a tree in Avenue-road, Glebe, John Percival Bradley, 10, caught hold of a live electric wire, which passed through the thick foliage of the tree. He received a shock, which caused him to fall to the ground, fracturing his skull. He died soon after the fall.

Mr. H. S. Hawkins, City Coroner, on Tuesday found a verdict of accidental death. A recommendation was made that the City Council should remove the tree.

BOY'S DEATH.

The City Coroner on Tuesday returned a verdict of accidental death in the case of Eric Gillies, 13, who fell off his bicycle, at North Sydney on Saturday, and was fatally injured by a passing motor car.

LITTLE BOY INJURED.

William Boyce, aged 4 years, and residing at Amy-street, Erskineville, fell from a pile of bricks shortly before 6 o'clock yesterday evening. He received concussion of the brain and a severely lacerated wound on the forehead. He was taken to the Royal Prince Alfred Hospital by the Newtown District Ambulance, and admitted by Dr. Quesey.

TWO FARMERS KILLED.

PERTH (W.A.), Tuesday.

Two farmers, named Albert Summers and Harold Watson, were driving in a sulky across country near Katanning on the Great Southern line yesterday, when a tree which had been burning crashed on to the vehicle, and killed the occupants.

STRIKES AT DARWIN.

DARWIN, Tuesday.

Industrial troubles and strikes have been of such frequent occurrence in Darwin during the past two years that little importance was attached to the recent outbreak, and the refusal of the wharf-lumpers to work a cargo of coal from the Nisshu Maru on a matter affecting the personnel of the gangs. The local branch of the Australian Workers' Union, after having repudiated the waterside section of their branch, and fining each member 2s 6d, now demand that the agent for the Nisshu Maru repudiate his guarantee given to the members of the Industrial Workers of the World, who are mostly Malays, that they should finish the cargo after having started upon it. The latest phase now is that the railway men have been ordered not to touch the coal. There being no trucks available, the men ceased work, and pending the return of the administrator on Tuesday evening, the railway superintendent has closed the wharf. A general strike is threatened, though the union officials state no strike exists; only a stoppage pending adjustment.

SOUTH COAST MINES.

WOLLONGONG, Tuesday.

During the past few days great anxiety has prevailed in South Coast mining circles, reports having gained currency that, if the demands of the surface hands, wheelers, and other outside employees were not granted an eight-hour bank to bank, commencing from September 1, there would be a general stoppage of all South Coast mines.

A meeting of the delegate board of the Illawarra Colliery Employees' Association was held to-day, when the following motion was carried:—"That the newly-framed miners' federation be asked to make an effort to secure an eight-hour bank to bank for all outside employees, and that such be brought into effect on January 1, 1916."

The board will meet again to-morrow to discuss other matters of importance.

A miners' delegate subsequently expressed the opinion that there was no possible chance of a general stoppage of work taking place.

STATE COAL MINE.

LITHGOW, Tuesday.

Messrs. G. and C. Hoskins point out that the proposal to establish a State coal mine involves a matter of serious concern to the future of the ironworks. The coal seam from which the ironworks supplies are now drawn will be exhausted in a few years. Foreseeing this the firm some time ago acquired by purchase from the Vale of Clwydd Company a block of 195 acres to the north of Mort's Gully and immediately adjoining the Government coal land. The Government now desires to resume this land compulsorily in order to secure an effective right of way. The firm does not object to a right of way, but points out that resumption would deprive the ironworks of its coal supply, and thereby ruin the industry. The firm thinks that the Government might meet the difficulty by resuming a strip adjoining that acquired by G. and C. Hoskins, which would not interfere with any industry. Arrangements are in hand for a deputation to the Minister on the matter.

PEACE ADVOCATES.

DEMAND FOR FREE SPEECH.

ADELAIDE, Tuesday.

As a sequel to the recent Sunday afternoon disturbances at the Adelaide Botanic Park in consequence of utterances by anti-war advocates, a deputation waited upon the Chief Secretary (Mr. A. W. Styles) and requested that greater freedom of speech should be afforded supporters of peace principles.

The Chief Secretary said the Government would not condone offences by people who preached and wrote things which they had no right to express. During a time of war it was the duty of peace advocates to refrain from uttering things which might lead to trouble. They would not help the nation by setting up indiscreet citizens to voice absurd views, and it was ridiculous to expect that a Government would permit people to talk peace when many of their boys had returned from the field of battle, some armless, others without legs, and a few sightless. Mr. Styles objected to soldiers being regarded as murderers. The purposes of a peace society should be to maintain peace at home rather than to bring about breaches of it.

TRANS-PACIFIC TRADE.

An important addition to the trans-Pacific steamship service has been decided on, and the Oceanic liner Sierra will once again be seen in Sydney Harbour.

Mr. V. A. Sproul, managing agent for the Oceanic Steamship Company, has received a cablegram to the effect that, commencing with the Sonoma, leaving Sydney on Wednesday, December 15, there will be a three-weekly mail-passenger-freight service to London, via Pago Pago (Samoa), Honolulu, and San Francisco.

The Sonoma will leave San Francisco on Tuesday, November 16, and will be followed by sailings 21 days apart.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE PETER DAWSON RECEPTION.

Mr. Peter Dawson and Miss Annette George (Mrs. Dawson) have now completed a year's tour of Australasia, which closed with a wonderfully prosperous visit to New Zealand. These popular artists gave no fewer than 80 concerts under the J. and N. Tait direction in the Dominion, and then retraced their steps and gave 60 more, covering in all a period of rather more than six months. Now the Adelaide baritone, who has made name and fame in London and the great centres of the United Kingdom more than in his own country, proposes resting here a while before returning to England.

Accordingly a welcome-reception was organised at the Repertory Theatre last night, at which Mr. and Mrs. Dawson were the guests of honour, by Mr. Oswald Anderson. During the evening that song-composer explained that he had undertaken that labour of love owing to Mr. Dawson's kindness to him in London. On arrival there he found that the Australian baritone had a great position on that side of the world, not only as a concert artist, but, arising from his successes in that direction, he had become one of the foremost gramophone artists living.

An enjoyable concert followed, at which Mr. Dawson himself declaimed with passionate feeling the "Pagliacci" prologue, and then acknowledged the enthusiasm of the audience with further contributions, including the clever setting of Kipling's "Kangaroo and the Dingo." Other artists who kindly entertained visitors were Misses Vera Tasma, Dorrie Ward, Vera Tree, Gertrude Palmer, Hazel Doyle, Sylvia Roberts, Messrs. Malcolm M'Eachern, Bryce Carter, Sid Macdonald, Carlton Fay, Harry Thomas, and Frederick Whitlow. Later the whole party adjourned to the Hotel Australia for supper.

DRUMMOYNE EISTEDDFOD.

In connection with the gala week organised by the Drummoyne shopkeepers and friendly societies in aid of the Australian wounded soldiers, an eisteddfod will be held at Clare's Picture Palace, Drummoyne, on the 7th, 8th, and 9th instant. There will be two sessions daily, viz., at 2.30 p.m. and 7.30 p.m. A grand choral competition, limited to choirs of 60 voices, holds the chief place on the programme, the first prize being £30 and a cup presented by the local aldermen, and the second £7. The prizes for the second choral competition, limited to choirs of 40 voices, will be £10 and a cup presented by the local shopkeepers for the winners, and £3 for the choir securing second place. In all there will be 20 vocal competitions, including ladies' chorus, male chorus, mixed quartet, soprano, contralto, tenor, and bass solo, and contests for persons who have never won a prize at an eisteddfod. Provision has also been made for a number of instrumental and elocutionary competitions. Mr. John Greene will officiate as adjudicator in the vocal and instrumental competitions, and Mr. H. Thomas in the elocutionary numbers. The prize money aggregates £200.

WAR CHEST.

The hon. treasurer of the Citizens' War Chest Fund, 113 Pitt-street, acknowledges the further following contributions:—Already acknowledged, £14,194/1/4; war chests, Emp. Col. Sugar Refining Company, Pyrmont, £19/10/11½; war chests, Emp. Mill, Col. Sugar Refining Company, Harwood, £19/2/2; war chests, emp. Hardie Bros., £5/1/6. Special donation: Electric Light and Power Supply Co., Ltd., Balmain, £15. Total, £14,255/10/.

Tickets for the 40-h.p. motor car presented to the Citizens' War Chest Fund by Mr. T. Black, of Toney, Cassilis, valued at £250, can be obtained at the War Chest Depot, Macdonell House, 321 Pitt-street, and at the office, 113 Pitt-street. The tickets are 2s 6d each, and the total proceeds are to go to the fund.

The balance-sheet of the Citizens' War Chest Fund, showing the operations of the fund for the 12 months ending August 17, 1915, discloses the fact that the total income from all sources is £23,982/11/4, and the expenditure to date of 17th inst. £21,267/12/11, since which date a further remittance of £1250 has been made to the Belgian Relief Commission in London.

The small margin that is left in hand is causing the committee anxiety, as their constitution, which is "to meet any emergency arising from the war," is fully availed of from many sources, including the military authorities. Indeed, the only reason for having a balance in hand at all is that the committee feels that it must meet promptly the calls which will be made by the commissioner, Mr. Henry Budden, who will arrive in Egypt this week.

The fund is practically the only fund available to meet the contingencies of "well" soldiers. The committee solicits the support of those who realise the need for keeping as efficient as possible our fighting units, and relieving, where possible, the causes for anxiety amongst those who have enlisted. The War Chest Fund publishes statements of its receipts and expenditure every three months.

The needs are greater than the committee can adequately provide for, and the secretary, at 113 Pitt-street, will be glad to receive contributions.

WOMEN ON FARMS.

The Minister for Labour and Industry (Mr. ...) received a deputation on Monday ... the Women's Agricultural and Home ... Society on the subject of providing an agricultural college and agricultural ... horticultural employment for women.

Miss Moss said that the decision of the Government to establish an agricultural farm ... school of domestic science for women ... welcomed by the society. The object of ... deputation, Miss Moss pointed out, was to ... for a definite understanding as to the ... for the training that the Government ... to give, and whether any other ... for sheltering destitute women would ... decided upon.

Dr. Grace Boelke said that it was erroneous ... think that women were incapable of doing ... work, and those who had been out west ... that many women worked just as labor... on the farms as the men.

Mr. Estell replied sympathetically, but ... out that he could not promise to ... establish an agricultural college for women, ... such an undertaking would have to ... dealt with by the Minister for Agriculture ... the Education Department. The Government had a large area at Pitt Town, and it ... proposed to use the fruit grown for the ... manufacture of jam. He promised that women should be given opportunities for ... work in this way, and the Government ... give the society every assistance in pro... facilities for women obtaining further ... employment agriculturally and horticulturally.

Alderman Sandy urged that the bylaws be enforced, and the barrowmen kept moving, instead of being permitted to remain in stationary positions. The difficulty might be ... over by spaces being set apart in certain ... in the city where the barrowmen might ... stands and pursue their calling.

The Town Clerk: We cannot do that. One ... offered us £200 a year if we would ... guarantee him a stand.

It was decided that no action be taken ... pending a conference with the Government.

SPRING SHOW.

MODES FOR THE SEASON.

(By "FANELLA.")

For years women have sighed in vain for Fashions which would meet the limits of the average pocket, and there is an old saying, that "All things come to those who wait." The long-looked-for has come to pass, for the Modes designed for the Spring and Summer are not only extraordinarily charming and acceptable, but they are priced at figures so moderate that no woman can be so ungracious as to lift up her voice in dissent. Ball and Welch's Home buyers should be congratulated on the wonderful achievement which is theirs, for this firm to-day is displaying imported Modes in Gowns, Millinery, Blouses, Coats, and Wraps, all of which have been carefully and judiciously selected with the special view of meeting the requirements of a shopping public which has been compelled to curtail its expenditure.

GOWNS AND SUITS.

There is a distinct note of change in the gown of the hour. In a short period of 12 months the wizards of Fashion have rung in yards of material into our skirts, and whereas we were perambulating as sheaths, now we shall flounce and amble, and our frills shall swing and away in the manner once so approved of by our grandmothers, except that we shall not (as yet) wear either steels or hoops; but that even may eventuate. A delightful little frock suggesting the photo. of grandma in the family album is shown amongst Ball and Welch's New Models. It is built of Black Chiffon Taffetas, the skirt very wide, and trimmed with three quaint, narrow frills, piped and laid on flat. The fulness is gauged into the waistband, and here joined to a queer but really smart Early Victorian sleeveless bodice, which is worn over a sheer White Organdie Muslin Blouse; a frill finishes the neck, which is an open V, and altogether it is a coy little frock, and the price a mere bagatelle at 75/. Crepe de Chine is the genuine standby of the smart frocker, and a number of pretty models are to the fore, one specially good example being of Mole, in Robe effect. The graceful Skirt is shirred at the hips, and the Bodice, which is really a Magyar of plain and floral Ninon, has a loose Eton coat of Crepe de Chine. The Pierrot collar of kilted Ivory Brussels Net caught with rouleaux of Silk is especially good, and a finish which is as unique as it is pretty. This little gown is marked 4 Guineas.

Returning to Black Taffetas again, mention should be made of a really distinctive model, which is allied with the same fabric embossed in colours in a floral sprig pattern. The ample skirt finished with an upturned hem and kilted frill is subjunctive to the bodice, for the design of this is novel in the extreme, exemplifying the smart way in which a vest may be treated. It is edged with a tiny kilting, and is rounded off under a bolero of figured Taffetas, effectively piped and trimmed with ball buttons of gold. The sleeves are of White Ninon under Black, and are the correct wrist length. The model is really moderate at £4/18/6.

Suits are the perennial garments of a wise frocker's wardrobe. It matters not how the style may change, the fact that the two-piece suit is there is a guarantee that a woman has at least one decent "rag to her back," and that is a blessed state in which very few husbands have known their wives to be. But frivolities aside, the suit is, as ever, our best friend, and Ball and Welch's show a number of interesting and up-to-date styles, all inexpensive and desirable. The Tussore and Assam Suits assert their claims to recognition in numerous ways, and a remarkably good-looking example is fashioned with a sack back coat, the fronts being pleated and confined with a belt. Rows of self buttons are effective trimmings, and the skirt conforms to the new rule in width, by showing a circular flare on a deep hip yoke. This suit is 52/6, but others particularly smart are marked at 59/6, 72/6, and 4 guineas. For the woman of very moderate purse there is a charming little Washing Suit of Bedford Cord, in White and Black. The sac coat is belted, and finished with collar and cuffs of fancy Sponge Cloth, in White. It is to be had for 21/, but the style has not been sacrificed to the cost, as is so often the case with low-priced goods.

MILLINERY.

Our headgear may be said to be as sensible as our frocking, and except where flight of fancy has been sanctioned, as in the case of chapeaux destined for very special and dressy occasions, millinery artists have been content to design very simple but withal pretty conceits. The Ready-to-Wear comes in numerous styles, shapes, and straws, but Tagel, by common consent, appears to lead the van of modes. One good example is in white, very plain, the straight leaf, which is bound, has an inch droop all round. The crown is simply banded, and there is a smart flat bow extending from the brim to the top of the hat. This style is priced at 18/6. The Tagel Boater is less expensive, and is featured in the smart shades of the hour—Navy, Nigger, Buff, and Saxe, the trimmings being of the quietest, and mostly running to corded ribbon of an exact match, or else a contrasting shade, such as is the case in the buff hat just mentioned, which is allied with a deep Vandyke brown silk ribbon. At 14/6 these hats are excellent value.

For very smart wear one looks to the Aerophane model, which is being offered in almost every shade and colour to be found. A specially chic hat is carried out in pink of a delicate shade, and of very generous dimensions. The brim is lined with black tulle, the trimming consisting of a swathed watered ribbon, caught with bunches of ninon-covered grapes, a fad of the moment, and the colourings often so weird that one might really attribute them to Luther Burbank, the wizard of horticulture. Pink waterlilies also figure in this lovely chapeau, and it is one of the smartest to be seen. For a blonde there is a black Tulle Picture hat, with high soft crown, the brim fully trilled to match a little frock already mentioned, and pink grapes, black roses, and green foliage run riot round the crown in the prettiest confusion. The ticket states it is a model, and the price but £4 10/. It is some time since we paid homage to crinoline straws; but, like the harlequin in the pantomime, they cry "Here we are again," and it is so lovely a plait, and so fine, that we shall be ready to accept it as something quite new. The model showing is a droop flop, with great folded and looped bows in dull reseda, green, picot, edged silk ribbon, and evidently this trimming feels that it is so desirable that it has spread itself into two long tails which reach to far below the waist of the wearer. One fancies this lovely affair on the head of a dainty miss wearing a befrilled and besprigged muslin gown. She is its proper complement.

BLOUSES AND COATS.

Putting aside the legion of smart styles in silk and linen, besides those built of muslin in block striped and coin spot muslins, one is really glad to be able to avail oneself of the fussier and more frivolous styles which materialise in Crepe de Chine and other fabrics. Ball and Welch's buyers have specialised in a shirt waist in crepe de chine, made with a high close stock collar, and finished with a black watered ribbon bow at the back, and a kilted organdie frill which is very smart, and this style at 22/6 offers in pink and ivory. An Irish embroidered voile is dainty, as well as new. The collar a militaire, whilst a veining relieves any aspect of tailoring, which is essential where the shirt waist note is emphasised; for we call them shirt waists this season, even when they are often less than soft-looking blouses. Meteor crepe de chine is also another fabric in favour for waists, and to be quite acceptable the trimming must be slotted, a style which is in evidence amongst Ball and Welch's new season goods. Space does not permit of more than a mere mention of these charming items, but theirs is a specialty Blouse House, and visitors will see for themselves.

The coat is a garment which, like the cloak of charity, covers a multitude of sins. This is to be accepted in a broad sense, for one does not infer that the former shall cover a shabby gown, but that very often it helps out the wardrobe of those whose allowance does not run to a range of frocks for all occasions. The Tussore and Assam Coat this year is more than a garment; it is an institution, and in some cases its cut is so ample that the wearer could be minus a frock and the public none the wiser. Ball and Welch exhibit a fine range of styles, of exceedingly smart cut and design, and for the most part self trimmed, though here and there a colour-note is afforded by the introduction of Roman striped silk. Such moderate prices as 49/6, and thereabouts, prevail, and bring this frocking essential quite within the reach of the average devotee of fashion. This same firm offers a new coat in black Taffetas. It is fully flared, very plainly cut, and girdled with a wide black silk military scarf, the buttons being of silk and the buttonholes bound. It is quiet elegance in every line, and there are other variations of the same mode, some trimmed with gun-metal buttons, but the majority all black in treatment. The coats may be said to be a specially pleasing feature, and the designs quite the newest to be seen in the city.

CORSETRY.

We were promised that a new line should grace our corsets for this year, but there has been no fulfilment, much to the relief of the majority of women who have got used to the present style of comfort-giving corsetry. Ball and Welch offer quite the last word in these matters in their Succeso Corset, a model built on scientific lines, and so perfectly cut and designed that every figure can be suited. They show a trio of special Succeso models, adapted for the present style of frocking, one at 10/6 fashioned in Tricot, and prettily trimmed with lace. It is slightly boned, and the acme of comfort. At 25/6, a White Coutille corset with low bust and free hips, will also be in demand on account of its lines and finish, and at 30/ there is a White Brocade model, of durable and selected material lightly and firmly boned and bound with satin. All these are built for laundering, and are exclusive corsets from every point of view. New goods are showing in every department of Ball and Welch's during their Spring show, and the firm cordially invite the public to make inspection of their novelties featured during this week in Laces, Neckwear, Gloves, Hosiery, Lingerie, and all other departments, which comprise their exclusive Drapery Emporium.

WELCOME SPRING!

While the combatants in the war zones of Europe are apprehensive regarding the coming autumn, which will preclude another season of winter fighting, with all the attendant terrors of snow and ice in the Northern Hemisphere, we in this sun-kissed land are greeting the arrival of the loveliest period of the year, when Nature garbs herself in all her finery—when birds don their daintiest plumage wherein to go a-wooing; when a wealth of blossoms, rainbow-hued, greets the Great Orb each day, in welcome abandon, after his prolonged absence, and seeming neglect, through the dreary autumn blasts and piercing winter's cold. This blythesome season, which poets sing and artists paint, is once more here.

And woman, of course, turns with longing eyes to the feast of

Spring's birthday is to-day, and Dame Nature in hundreds of glad ways is joyfully greeting the new-born season.

Grass is sprouting in answer to Spring's call to life and activity, and already the Music of the Mower is sounding on the Lawn.

We Sell Mowers, We Sharpen Mowers, We Mend Mowers, and here's how we help to keep Lawns everywhere neat and trim at

NOCK AND KIRBY'S NOTED LOW PRICES.

"THE CORNSTALK" LAWN MOWER.

The grandest bit of all-round grass mowing steel on the market. Nothing comes amiss to it—fine grass, coarse grass, Buffalo or Couch, all go down close and clean to the all-conquering "CORNSTALK."

It's a real treat to push a "CORNSTALK" Lawn Mower—she runs so easy, cuts so clearly, and is so perfectly set and balanced. A plain bearing, strongly built, reliable, FIVE-BLADE MACHINE is "Cornstalk," and here follow the prices:—

10	12	14 inch cutters,
22/6	24/6	26/6 each.

"THE PARAGON" LAWN MOWER.

A ball-bearing grass-cutter that runs as smoothly as a sewing machine—a mower that gives maximum results with minimum effort—a machine that takes all kinds of grasses as they come, and beats 'em.

Clean, close, quick cutting is the "Paragon's" forte, its FIVE HIGHLY TEMPERED BLADES resisting wear and tear in a highly satisfactory and very remarkable manner.

10-inch Cutters, 32/6 each. 12-inch Cutters, 35/ each.

CANVAS GRASS CATCHERS.

A modest 4/6 will attach one of these indispensable aids to proper mowing to any of the above-priced mowers.

Fixed in a moment, always useful, never a worry, and they only cost 4/6 each.

THE "CAPITOL" LAWN TRIMMER.

When we tell you that this ingenious garden help will clip the grass right close up to fences—when we assure you 'twill trim circles, squares, and every other shape of bed without disturbing or damaging the plants—when we impress upon you that the "Capitol" will trim where now you have to bend your back and "shove the shears," then you'll dimly comprehend what a wonder-worker it really is. 6-inch Cutters, 25/ each.

LONG LISLE GLOVES AGAIN CLAIM ATTENTION.

With the advance of warmer days many short-sleeved frocks will be in evidence. This brings a demand for Long Lisle Gloves, and we have been successful in securing a large supply of this popular line. This is particularly fortunate, as, owing to war conditions, they are very scarce goods. Ladies will do well to inspect early, and so be provided with good washing gloves throughout the summer.

12-BUTTON LENGTH LISLE GLOVES, self points. Colours: Black, White, Pastel, Drab, Grey. PRICE, 2/3 per pair.

FARMER'S ARE STILL RECEIVING CLOTHING FOR BELGIAN AND BRITISH POOR.

The demand for this Clothing is increasing, and whilst Farmer's Provident Society has despatched shipment after shipment of garments as a result of the generous response to its appeal, still more garments are required.

In view of the approach of the European Winter, a heavier and warmer type of clothing will prove most acceptable.

Either New or Second-hand Clothing is acceptable. Parcels should be addressed to Farmer and Company, Limited, Bulk Stores, 263 Kent-street, Sydney; and, if clearly addressed "Clothing for Belgian and British Poor," the Railway Commissioners will allow packages to be sent Freight Free.

PITT-STREET HORDERNS' WATTLE DAY

ATTRACTIONS.

This year Wattle Day is shorn of much of its interest. And it is because the Spirit of Nationhood was never so alive and insistent as now, and more celebration is giving way to deeds. It is not that we think less of Wattle, but more of Gallipoli. But Wattle means Spring, and Spring means Fashions, and here are one of two exhibiting the latest developments of London and Parisian Styles, that we should like to show you.

CAPTIVATING AND DISTINCTIVE

SOFT TAFFETA GLACE, is the Fabric chosen for the construction of a charming model Robe in late style. The shade is a Rich Navy, which is particularly effective in the skirt, with a long full overdress. The bodice is relieved with a fine White Ninon Vest and Collar. The employment of a very fine wide Black Silk Braid as trimming has a most striking effect. PRICE, 8½ GUINEAS.

A SMART COAT AND SKIRT of Moire Silk is in a dainty shade of Sea Blue. The Coat has a short scalloped basque; collar and cuffs of White Corded Silk. The skirt with a long shaped overdress and underskirt scalloped at edge is charmingly effective. PRICE, 9 GUINEAS.

ANOTHER MODEL COAT AND SKIRT of Rich Glace Taffeta is in a light shade of Navy. This Costume has a short, full sac coat, with belt, trimmed with Nigger Brown Glace and Collar of same shade. New full skirt. PRICE, 6½ GUINEAS.

There are many and many again, New Models and Smart Ideas in our Costume Showroom that you will find interesting if you will spare us an hour any day this week.
